Peak Vista Physician Recognized for Community Service

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. – Dr. Amy Clauss, an obstetrician serving Peak Vista Community Health Centers, has been named a recipient of a 2014 Community Connection Award from the Colorado Health Service Corps and the Colorado Community Health Network. Dr. Clauss, part of the medical staff at Peak Vista’s Women’s Health Center, is being recognized for her leadership, collaboration and exceptional service in healthcare.

“It’s truly an honor to be recognized, but I am part of a team that is deeply committed to our mission,” said Clauss. “This is an amazing place to work and Peak Vista’s model of integrated medical, dental and behavioral care allows us the ability to effectively treat the whole person.”

In 2011 Clauss joined Peak Vista specifically to care for those who face challenges in receiving quality healthcare. “Dr. Clauss has been an asset to our clinical staff,” said Dr. Michael Welch, Peak Vista’s Chief Medical and Dental Officer. “Her passion, combined with her expertise in women’s health, make her a unique resource for women seeking treatment in the communities we serve.”

The Community Connection Award will be presented on October 10th at the Corps Community Connection Event and Awards Ceremony at the Crowne Plaza Hotel in Denver.
