TRT Launches New Websites in New Zealand and Australia

TRT (Tidd Ross Todd Ltd), a leading transport and construction manufacturer and distributor, announced today the launch of its newly designed websites for both New Zealand and Australia www.trt.co.nz and www.trtaustralia.com.au

The websites have been designed to create a user-friendly experience with easy-to-use navigation and functionality throughout. Customers can now access comprehensive product information, technical specifications, drawings and videos across all business divisions; - trailers, manufacturing, cranes, defence, parts, and service.

New Zealand's website also showcases the extensive range of truck and trailer parts and truck seats, featuring information and drawings to make parts identification easier for customers.

The new websites feature a streamlined, user-focused design with improved functionality and mobile friendly views that will help customers find the right information more effectively, and to contact the right people across the organisation more quickly.

"We are excited to launch our new websites to customers, suppliers, and visitors who are looking to understand the breadth of TRT's capability and how we can help them," said Lawrence Baker, TRT's COO. "This investment is part of our commitment to creating the best experience for our customers on both sides of the Tasman, for the long haul."

The websites will be regularly updated with new products, new projects, news and information. Visitors are encouraged to explore the websites and get in touch with any questions.
