

I dreamt of a jumble of letters in a honeycomb pattern, alongside a series of Shaper glyphs. With effort, three words made themselves plain

I found translations of the glyphs snaking through the honeycomb. The first word appeared in the gaps. The second word came to me, initially, when I considered the glyphs I had found. The glyph I could not find left traces of the third word.

These three words led me to one of the primary portals.