Last Time Out — UCLA posted its third-highest score of the season, scoring 196.75 to place second at the Pac-10 Championships. The Bruins ran into a hot Oregon State team that scored a season-high 197.2 to win its first conference title since 1996. Freshman Olivia Courtney validated her Pac-10 Freshman of the Year award, winning two events - vault with a career-high 9.95 and bars with a career-high 9.9. Tying with Courtney on bars was junior Aisha Gerber, whose 9.9 was a season-high. Junior Elyse Hopfner-Hibbs claimed a share of the floor exercise title with a 9.9. The Pac-10 titles were the first for all three Bruins.

Courtney Named Pac-10 Freshman Of The Year — Olivia Courtney became the seventh Bruin to be named the Pac-10 Freshman of the Year since the award was established in 2000. She won two individual titles at the Pac-10 Championships, winning vault with a career-high 9.95 and tying for first on bars with a career-best 9.9. She currently ranks sixth in the nation on vault and has posted season-highs of 9.9 or better on all four events. Courtney has totaled eight event wins on the season, including at least one on each event, and she is averaging 9.7 or better on all four events and 39.119 in the all-around. One of the Bruins' most consistent gymnasts, she has hit 31 of 32 routines this year.

Six Bruins Earn All-Conference Honors — A total of six Bruin gymnasts were named to the All-Pac-10 team for 2011. Junior Elyse Hopfner-Hibbs earned first-team honors in the all-around for the second time in her career, and senior Brittani McCullough earned second-team all-around acclaim for the first time. Olivia Courtney and Tauny Frattone earned first-team honors on vault, the first such honor for Courtney and second consecutive honor for Frattone. Pac-10 co-champion Aisha Gerber received first-team honors on uneven bars, and freshman Sydney Sawa earned first-team honors on floor exercise.

Frattone has scored 9.8 or better on vault in 22 consecutive meets and in 26 of 28 career meets.

Peszek Back On Three — Freshman Samantha Peszek is now back on three events (vault, bars and beam) after sitting out the first five meets of the year with a foot fracture. Peszek made her collegiate debut on Feb. 11 and tied for first on uneven bars with a 9.9 on her first collegiate routine. She was awarded the Pac-10 Special Performance of the Week honor for this routine. On Feb. 27, she scored a career-high 9.925 on bars to win the event.
