WILDCATS IN THE PROS

Part of the college experience is preparing students for the next level. Playing collegiate golf at the University of Kentucky is no different.

UK has a long history of preparing players for the professional ranks. Players like Nancy Scranton, Myra Blackwelder, Amy Read, Kate Rogerson, Tonya Gilla, Noelle Daghe and now Laney Frye have molded their games at Kentucky and gone on to successful careers at the next level.

Scranton is the most noteworthy of the bunch. She won three times on the LPGA Tour, including a major championship victory at the 1991 du Maurier Classic. A member of the 2000 U.S. Solheim Cup Team, she posted top-10 finishes at three other majors, including third place at the Women's PGA Championship in 1999 and 2000. All told, Scranton made an estimated $3,324,205 on the LPGA Tour alone. She was also inducted into the LPGA Legends Tour Hall of Fame in 2017 for her success on the women's senior tour.

Blackwelder earned approximately $634,522 on the LPGA Tour during her career before transitioning to the LPGA Legends Tour and eventually a college coach, including at Kentucky from 2008-10. She was the LPGA Rookie of the Year in 1980.

Most recently, Nicholasville, Kentucky, native Laney Frye first earned her LPGA card through the Epson Tour in Fall 2025, but then improved her LPGA status through the LPGA's Qualifying Series (Q-Series) in Winter 2025. In her rookie season in 2026, she made 13 starts, including five cuts, on the tour. She even had one top-10 finish at the CPKC Women's Open in August 2026. (as of Sept. 2, 2026)
