About Richard B. Stephenson

Richard is a graduate of business administration, political science, economics and philosophy from universities and colleges in Canada, where he is from.

He began his career as a consultant for a corporate communications training company in 1995 based in Oslo. Within four years Richard worked his way through senior consultant and manager positions to managing director and company owner.

In 2001, he helped build Norway's first rhetoric skills training company, becoming managing director and senior partner within three years.

Today, Richard is a founding partner at TrueNorth Consulting - specialized in international performance development in leadership, sales, communication, team and culture. He works with many international heavy weights including Accenture, Microsoft, Sony, Exxon and Shell; and with many national Olympic committees and sports federations. Richard trains and consults for 16 of Norway's 20 largest companies and regularly speaks at universities on sales, leadership and communication.
