

Donor Recognition

Donors to the Virginia Athletics Foundation play a critical role in advancing the mission of the athletics program. Their loyalty is clearly demonstrated by the generosity of 9,775 donors who made gifts between January 1, 2005 and December 31, 2005. Among these are 426 donors who have asked that their gifts remain anonymous.

The Virginia Athletics Program is designed to build support for and add value to the academic purposes of the University, while developing students with strong values of leadership, sportsmanship, equity, citizenship, physical fitness, teamwork and a commitment to excellence. Gifts to the following areas supported every aspect of the athletics program:

- | | |

For the truly gifted, winning can seem like an obligation.

“I knew growing up, that because I placed well, I was expected to be an All-American,” Virginia swimmer Brielle White said. “It was almost automatic. I was supposed to make finals at NCAAs. I expected it – I didn’t take it for granted – but I knew that was a goal I was expected to achieve.”

White, a seven-time All-American, capped her brilliant career at the 2006 NCAA national championship meet with a third-place finish in the 100 backstroke – swimming the sixth-fastest time ever by an American – and a fourth-place finish in the 200 back, earning first-team All-America honors and breaking her own Atlantic Coast Conference records in both events. She was also rewarded with her second consecutive ACC Swimmer of the Year award.

“I wanted to leave U.Va. on a really high note,” White said. “I wanted to go out with a bang and I succeeded.

“I’m so happy I placed fourth because that was my first time in the top eight in the 200 back, and I just wanted to bring it back for the team and represent U.Va.”

When Rich Murray moved into the John Paul Jones Arena after spending 23 years working in University Hall, he said it was like leaving a co-worker behind.

“In some ways, it’s like an old friend you’re going to miss, but the opportunity to move to a new facility like the John Paul Jones Arena is wonderful,” said Murray, who provides media relations support for the U.Va. men’s basketball team.

Moving his office to the new arena wasn’t the only significant change for Murray in 2006. His responsibilities changed when he assumed the position of Associate Athletics Director for Public Relations. He continues to work with Coach Dave Leitao and the men’s basketball program, but also serves as a public relations liaison for the department. He works closely with the department’s senior staff on public relations initiatives and provides additional support in that area for Athletics Director Craig Littlepage.

Murray previously was responsible for the day-to-day administration of the department’s athletics media relations office. Those responsibilities are now held by Assistant Athletics Director for Media Relations Jim Daves, who arrived in December of 2005.

“My goal with these new responsibilities is to make a positive contribution to the work of the athletics department,” said Murray, who attended Washington & Lee University and previously worked for a decade in media relations at James Madison University. “It’s an exciting time to be a member of the Virginia athletics department staff.”

THIRD-YEAR CAROLINE HAMMOND COMPILED A 16-7 OVERALL RECORD AND WAS 4-1 IN ACC MATCH PLAY.

Dawn Staley is perhaps one of the most decorated point guards to come out of Philadelphia. After a stellar college career at Virginia in which she earned two National Player of the Year awards, Staley won three Olympic gold medals and returned to her hometown as the head women's basketball coach at Temple University.

So you can imagine why Virginia third-year Sharneé Zoll – who grew up in nearby Marlboro, N.J. – was a little tongue-tied when she first met her childhood idol in Boston when she was nine years old.

“Honestly, I was kind of embarrassed because I couldn't talk,” said Zoll, who for her entire college career has adorned her sneakers with “729,” which is Staley's NCAA record number of career assists. “I just shook her hand and was starstruck. I've never been like that before.”

To the delight of Cavalier women's basketball fans, Zoll hasn't shown those same jitters on the court. She has started all but one game in her first two seasons, and the 5'7" Zoll averaged 11.2 points and an ACC-best 6.3 assists per game in 2006.

Zoll credited her confidence on the court to her experience playing in the Women's Under 19 World Championships, held in Tunisia in July 2005. The United States team went 8-0 and brought home gold.

Zoll brought that leadership back with her and led the Cavaliers to the quarterfinals of the WNIT. And, at the midpoint of her Virginia career, Zoll is nearly halfway – 360 assists – to Staley's record of 729.

“For me to even be in the same sentence as Dawn or even the same record book as her is an honor for me,” Zoll said.

FORWARD IAN HOLDER TIED FOR THE THIRD MOST GOALS ON THE TEAM IN 2005-06 SEASON.

Mother, it seems, does indeed know best.

Growing up in India, Dilaawar (Danny) Mistry was playing semi-professional cricket but came to a juncture in his life where he needed to decide whether to continue pursuing a career in sports or focus on his education.

“It was either medicine or cricket – I think my mom swayed me to medicine,” Mistry said. “She said, ‘You have a career ahead of you. Cricket’s not a guarantee.’ So I gave up cricket and went into medicine.”

Mistry received his M.D. at India’s University of Madras and then came to the United States on a student visa, earned his M.S. in exercise science at the University of Massachusetts and came to Charlottesville in 1995 to complete his residency training at the University of Virginia.

Now, Dr. Mistry serves alongside Dr. John MacKnight as co-medical director of Virginia’s Sports Medicine program. In that role, Mistry provides primary medical care to U.Va.’s approximately 700 student-athletes, travels with men’s lacrosse as team doctor, conducts integrative research on high-performance athletes and does some classroom teaching as an assistant professor.

“Essentially, I’m doing what I’ve always wanted to do – use my background in sports, exercise physiology and athletic training,” said Mistry, who has also worked with U.S. Soccer Federation and U.S.A. Swimming national teams. “My dream is to have that comprehensive approach to sports medicine.”

FOURTH-YEAR RACHEL MARKS BECAME ONLY THE FOURTH JUMPER IN SCHOOL HISTORY TO CLEAR 5'11" IN THE HIGH JUMP. SHE QUALIFIED FOR THE NCAA EAST REGIONAL IN THE EVENT.

The year is 1794 and a match between the Seneca and Mohawk Indians is about to create the first official rules for the game of lacrosse. It's not a surprise then that Jade White, a Mohawk Indian raised on a reservation in upstate New York and a Virginia men's lacrosse team manager, recalls that, "lacrosse was something sacred in my house."

White grew up around the sport, as her father coached a local high school lacrosse team. But she never played the game because, "Girls don't traditionally play back at home," said White.

Her father, Dave White, played the sport at Brown, and in 1973 one of his teammates and a fellow All-Ivy League selection was a young defenseman named Dom Starsia. Twenty years later, Starsia became the Cavaliers' head coach, where he remains today, and he encouraged White to join the team as a manager. She was eager to help out in any way she could.

"Oh, definitely," White, a rising sophomore, said. "I couldn't even imagine what I would be doing with my time if I weren't involved with lacrosse." Now that White has been a part of the Virginia lacrosse family every day for a year, she too is falling more in love with the sport.

Her father continues to work as a coach, recently earning a national award, and as a counselor at a predominantly Mohawk school. "I understand now," White said, "all those nights when he would have to leave the house for practice, weekends spent at tournaments or traveling around the world; I have an appreciation for the demands of the sport now."

 Colonel Charles R. Alexander, Jr.

When you leave a voice mail for Marcus Hamilton, his prerecorded greeting doesn't ask you to leave a message after the beep. Instead, there's this: "I'm not perfect, but my goal is to put a smile on your face, just as God has done for me."

Unless, of course, you're an opposing receiver. Hamilton, a second-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection at cornerback in 2005, led the league with six interceptions and ranked third on the team with 63 tackles.

Hamilton, a devout Christian who attends First Baptist Church in Vienna, is quick to give credit where credit is due.

"None of what I'm able to do on and off the field in my life – none of those things would be possible without God and without my faith," he said.

An exemplary student and team leader, Hamilton is able to balance his faith with his football. "It's a sport and it's a game," he said. "As long as you're not taking it out of context and not going out there intentionally trying to hurt people, but just playing the game, the physical nature of the game requires you to play it. I don't think it's a situation where it's counterproductive."

The fifth-year defensive back overcame a season-ending knee injury in his first game as a true freshman and moved into the starting lineup as a sophomore, intercepting four passes that year.

Hamilton, who will serve as one of Virginia's four co-captains for the 2006 season, is proud to embrace his role on the team. "I just want to lead by example, go out there every day and push myself and continue to strive to be better than I was the day before," he said. "And if any of the young guys have questions, I try to help them the best I can and help them grow as players, athletes and people."

The ACC All-Academic honoree finished his undergraduate degree in sociology a semester early and will compete this fall as a graduate student in education. But for now, his career plans are still on the gridiron.

"Lord willing, I'd like to continue to play football," Hamilton said. "If that's what His plan is for me, to continue to play football, then that's what I'd like to do."

THIRD-YEAR DAN GABEL TIED FOR 13TH PLACE AT THE 2006 CAVALIER CLASSIC.

An All-American at South Carolina, an assistant coach at Alabama and a head coach at Florida, softball coach Karen Johns came to Virginia with a background rich in the storied Southeastern Conference.

Citing a desire to rejuvenate the Cavaliers' program, to raise her eight-year old daughter in the Charlottesville community, and to move closer to her native state of New Jersey, Johns took the Virginia job in June 2005 after having compiled a career record of 192-131 in five years at Florida.

"This is definitely a new challenge," she said. "Virginia offered the total package as far as Division I college athletics, obviously a top-quality education and it's all kind of put together in a nice small setting."

The Cavaliers improved from a 31-32 record in 2005, to a 29-26 record in 2006.

"We wanted to have a winning record this season and establish the philosophy of the program and what elements are a part of it," Johns said. "The team has done a good job sticking with it because there have been frustrating times, there have been down times and there have been times where maybe they wanted to quit. But they hung in there, and we're starting to see some good results from it."

Perhaps more important is the work Johns has done to lay the foundation for future seasons. She has attacked recruiting with a renewed focus on retaining in-state student-athletes and bolstering the team's depth and speed.

"The biggest challenge is trying to develop a winning mentality," Johns said. "There are a lot of elements and components that go into that. We want to have the same expectation level in the classroom as we have in the field."

Handling the financial aid of 670 scholarship student-athletes and an additional 80-100 walk-ons—and doing all of it within the NCAA’s seemingly never-ending regulations—is no small feat.

“It keeps me really busy,” said Sharlene Sajonas, Assistant Director of Student Financial Services at the University.

Sajonas, who came to work at U.Va. in August 1999, works with Steve Flippen, Art Markos and Jim Booz in the U.Va. Athletics Department to ensure that all athletic grants are accurately processed. Despite the long hours, Sajonas said it’s worth it for the interactions with the student-athletes.

“Interacting with them keeps me young, that’s for sure,” Sajonas said. “A lot of people have the misconception that student-athletes have it easy, but they really don’t. All people see are all the perks – what they see is that they’re on full scholarship and that they get all this coverage – but what people don’t realize is that there are a lot of NCAA rules that the students have to abide by.”

In one instance, Sajonas worked with a female student-athlete who had to consider taking a $5,000 academic scholarship or staying on her team without receiving financial aid. Each team has a limit of allowable aid and her team had reached the limit.

“That’s pretty hard for a lot of families, especially with new students who don’t really understand that. There’s a lot of red tape to explain.”

Having student-athletes return from professional athletic careers to graduate and an occasional compliment keeps Sajonas happy.

“Usually, you see at the very end that it was worth all that work,” she said.

ERIC ALBRIGHT WAS NAMED ACC FRESHMAN OF THE YEAR, THE FIRST CAVALIER WRESTLER HONORED WITH THIS DISTINCTION.

Claudia Pirkle took on more than an hour commute when she became the Director of Academics for the U.Va. football team in the fall of 2005. She also entered a school more than 10 times the size of her previous one. For 12 years before coming to U.Va., Pirkle managed the academics of all the athletes at Virginia Military Institute.

“I was ready for the challenge,” Pirkle said. With just over 100 student-athletes on the football roster, Pirkle has her hands full, but the players, she said, made the transition a lot easier for her.

“The players have been very receptive to me and very welcoming which has allowed me to hit the ground running,” she said.

An alumna of Clemson and self-professed football lover, Pirkle said she’s always loved ACC football but admitted there’s an important goal beyond wins and losses.

“This is an institution of high integrity and we are here to uphold that,” Pirkle said. “A degree from U.Va. is worth something and we want players to know that.”

Minutes after the Virginia men's lacrosse team put the finishing touches on its national title, defenseman Mike Culver and assistant coach Marc Van Arsdale approached

No, Goodale wasn't a key midfielder, generous booster or ardent fan.

Rather, Goodale is the Associate Director of Athletics for Marketing and Video Services at Virginia, and his department assists coaches and teams by taping events for scouting purposes and producing recruiting videos.

"That's what we're all about – helping student-athletes succeed," Goodale said.

The more visible side of video services – creating a positive gameday environment for fans – is in the midst of a major expansion. With state-of-the-art technology installed in the video control room at John Paul Jones Arena, along with new video scoreboards at JPJA, Klöckner Stadium and Davenport Field, Goodale's department will now shoot and produce more than 110 live events each athletic year – up from the six regular-season and one spring football game it usually works.

"It's a thrill. You don't get this opportunity in a career often, if ever," Goodale said. "We're the first college that I know of that has large video displays in four athletic facilities."

One highly specialized responsibility that won't be divvied up is the animation for the highly popular Adventures of Cavman videos that roll before football games.

"No one else has ever animated Cavman other than me," senior producer/ animator Erik Elvgren (above) said, before sheepishly admitting that he nearly nixed the animation sequences. "I actually tried to talk [the athletics department] out of it and try a different type of opening, but I was wrong."

"Erik's phenomenally talented," Goodale said. "There are very few people who can do the character animation work that he does."
