2010-11	UVa	16-15
2011-12	UVa	22-9	NCAA
Overall		122-73
at Washington State		69-33
at Virginia		53-40

Tony Bennett is in his third year as the men's head basketball coach at the University of Virginia. Bennett came to Charlottesville after spending the previous three seasons as the head coach at Washington State where he was the 2007 National Coach of the Year.

Under Bennett's direction UVa's record has improved each season and the Cavaliers have compiled an overall record of 53-40. In his third season in Charlottesville, he has led Virginia to a 22-9 record and its first NCAA Tournament berth in five seasons. The 2012 U.S. Basketball Writers Association District III Coach of the Year, Bennett guided the Cavaliers to their first winning season in the Atlantic Coast Conference (9-7) since 2006-07 and their most regular season wins (22) since 1982-83.

Virginia was ranked in the Associated Press poll for 11 consecutive weeks this season, its longest span as a ranked team in a decade. The key to the Cavaliers' success has been their defense. The team has been ranked among the national leaders in points allowed per possession and scoring defense this season. The Cavaliers held 11 opponents to less than 50 points, most by an ACC team in the shot clock era.

His 2010-11 Virginia team compiled a 16-15 record (7-9 in ACC regularseason games). It was UVa's first winning season since 2007-08. Virginia finished tied for seventh in the ACC regular-season standings after being picked to finish 11th in the preseason by media representatives attending the conference's Operation Basketball media day. In ACC regular-season games, UVa led the league in three-point percentage (.396), scoring defense (62.2) and defensive rebound percentage (.714).

Bennett won his 100th game as a head coach during the 2010-11 season when the Cavaliers defeated Maryland 74-60 in College Park, Md. He enters the 2012 NCAA Tournament with a career record of 122-73.

Bennett's first Virginia team finished the 2009-10 season with an overall record of 15-16, an improvement of five wins over the previous season (10-18 in 2008-09). The 15 wins included three victories over nationally-ranked opponents. The Cavaliers ranked 13th nationally in fewest turnovers a game (average of 10.7 turnovers per game) and 18th nationally in free throw percentage (74.8 percent, 386-516) in 2009-10. UVa also ranked third in the Atlantic Coast Conference in points allowed per game at 63.6, an improvement of 8.9 points a game from the 2008-09 season.

Bennett was introduced as the head coach of the Virginia men's basketball program on April 1, 2009.

In three seasons at Washington State, Bennett led the Cougars to a 69-33 record, including a 32-22 mark in the Pac-10. Washington State's 69 wins over those three seasons are the most over any three-year period in school history. He led the Cougars to the 2007 and 2008 NCAA Tournaments, the only time WSU has made consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances.

In his first season as a head coach in 2006-07, Bennett took a Washington State squad projected to finish last in the Pac-10 prior to the season and led it to 26 wins (26-8 record), matching the school record, and a second-place finish in the conference with a 13-5 mark. That year, the Cougars made their first NCAA Tournament appearance in 13 years, defeating Oral Roberts in the first round before suffering a double-overtime loss to Vanderbilt in the second round.

For his work in 2006-07, Bennett became the most decorated Pac-10 coach in a single season. He was named National Coach of the Year by nine organizations, including the Associated Press, The Sporting News and the U.S. Basketball Writers Association. In addition, Bennett was the Pac-10 Coach of the Year, the U.S. Basketball Writers Association District 9 Coach of the Year and the National Association of Basketball Coaches District 14 Coach of the Year that season.

In 2007-08, Bennett's Cougars were ranked in the AP preseason poll (10th) for the first time in school history and were ranked a school-record No. 4 during the season. That squad finished with a 26-9 record, once again tying the school record for wins, and had an 11-7 mark in the Pac-10. Washington State advanced to the NCAA Tournament's Sweet 16 for the first time in school history, defeating Winthrop and Notre Dame in the first two rounds of the tournament. The Cougars fell to top-seeded North Carolina in the regional semifinal in Charlotte, N.C.

In 2008-09, Bennett led the Cougars to their third consecutive postseason appearance. Washington State posted a 17-16 record and participated in the National Invitation Tournament. The Cougars defeated NCAA Tournament teams Arizona, Arizona State (twice), Mississippi State, and UCLA during the season. The road victory at UCLA was just the second for the Cougars at Pauley Pavilion in 53 years.

Bennett's teams have not only been successful on the court, but also in the classroom. Virginia's Jerome Meyinsse received the ACC's Skip Prosser Award in 2010 as the conference's top men's basketball student-athlete, and Meyinsse and Will Sherrill were named to the 2010 ACC All-Academic Men's Basketball Team. Sherrill was named to the ACC All-Academic Basketball Team for the second consecutive year in 2011 and Will Regan was also named to the team. Four Washington State players were named to the 2009 Pac-10 All-Academic First Team, while a school-record five players (three first team and two second team) were honored as Pac-10 All-Academic selections the year before. The conference's Scholar Athlete of the Year for men's basketball in 2008 and 2009 were members of the Washington State program.

Before taking over as the head coach at Washington State, Bennett was on the staff of his father, Dick, for three seasons in Pullman, the last two as associate head coach. The previous four years Bennett was at Wisconsin, serving on the staffs of his father, Brad Soderberg and current Badger head coach Bo Ryan. While Bennett was at Wisconsin the Badgers participated in the NCAA Tournament all four years, reaching the 2000 Final Four and the Sweet 16 in 2003. Wisconsin also earned a share of the Big Ten title in 2002 and 2003. Bennett was instrumental in the recruiting of Devin Harris, the fifth overall pick in the 2004 NBA Draft, to Wisconsin.

In the summer of 2011, Bennett was selected by USA Basketball to be a court coach for the USA Basketball Men's World University Games National Team training camp at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Bennett played for his father at Wisconsin-Green Bay from 1989-92. He graduated from Wisconsin-Green Bay in 1992 and finished his career as the Mid-Continent Conference's all-time leader in career points (2,285) and assists (601). His 49.7 career 3-point field goal percentage is still an NCAA record. Bennett helped the Phoenix to an 87-34 record during his collegiate career, including one NCAA Tournament and two NIT appearances. He was twice named MCC Player of the Year, was the 1992 Frances Pomeroy Naismith Award winner (best senior player under six-feet tall) and was the 1992 GTE Academic All-American of the Year. Bennett was the 35th overall selection in the 1992 NBA Draft by the Charlotte Hornets and played with the team for three seasons.

In August of 2011 Bennett was named one of the Summit League's (formerly the Mid-Continent Conference) Top 30 Distinguished Contributors for the league's first 30 years at the Division I level.

RITCHIE MCKAY ASSOCIATE HEAD COACH

Ritchie McKay is in his third year as the Virginia men's basketball program's associate head coach. McKay was the men's head basketball coach at Liberty University prior to coming to UVa. He joined Virginia head coach Tony Bennett's staff as associate head coach in April of 2009.

McKay came to UVa with 13 years of Division I head coaching experience. Prior to his two years at Liberty (2007-09), he spent five seasons at New Mexico, two at Oregon State, two at Colorado State and two at Portland State. Over his career as a head coach, McKay's teams posted a record of 204-186.

In 2008-09, McKay led Liberty to one of the most successful seasons in school history. The Flames were 23-12, tying the school record for wins in a Division I season, and reached the quarterfinals of the inaugural CollegeInsider.com Postseason Tournament. A key to the program's success was a group of freshmen that comprised McKay's first recruiting class at the school. It was the first Liberty recruiting class to be ranked in the top 50 nationally and was highlighted by Seth Curry, the nation's top freshman scorer at 20.2 ppg.

McKay has the top winning percentage (.582, 39-28) among the head coaches in the history of the Liberty men's basketball program.

Prior to arriving at Liberty, McKay was the head coach at New Mexico for five seasons. His tenure in Albuquerque was highlighted by the 2004-05 season when the Lobos went 26-7 and won the Mountain West Conference championship. McKay coached Danny Granger at New Mexico, a first-round draft choice of the Indiana Pacers and an NBA All-Star.

McKay began his head-coaching career in 1995 when he took over a Portland State program that had been dormant for 15 years. He led the Vikings to nine wins in 1996-97, the program's first year of competition since the early 1980s, and Portland State compiled a 15-12 record in 1997-98. He followed his two years at Portland State with two seasons at Colorado State, leading the Rams to an NIT appearance. He has the second best winning percentage (.617, 37-23) among the head coaches in the history of the Colorado State men's basketball program. McKay then led Oregon State for two seasons before taking over at New Mexico.

A 1987 graduate of Seattle Pacific where he played basketball, McKay began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Washington in 1988. He also served as an assistant coach at Queens College in North Carolina (1989-90), Seattle Pacific (1990-91), Bradley (1991-93) and Washington (1993-95).

RON SANCHEZ ASSISTANT COACH

Ron Sanchez is in his third year as an assistant men's basketball coach at the University of Virginia.

Sanchez was an assistant men's basketball coach at Washington State University for three years before coming to UVa. During that period the Cougars participated in the NCAA Tournament twice and in the National Invitation Tournament once. Washington State reached the second round of the NCAA Tournament in 2007 and reached the Sweet 16 of the NCAA Tournament in 2008. The Cougars tied the school record with 26 victories in both 2006-07 and 2007-08.

Prior to serving as an assistant coach at Washington State, Sanchez was the coordinator of men's basketball operations for the Cougars for three years. He joined the staff at Washington State after spending two years as a volunteer assistant in the men's basketball program at Indiana. While at Indiana, he earned his master's degree in athletic administration/sports management. Indiana finished as runner-up for the NCAA Championship in 2002.

Sanchez is a 1997 graduate of the State University of New York College at Oneonta where he played basketball. He was named the State University of New York Athletic Conference Player of the Year in 1996. He also earned the Eastern College Athletic Conference Championship Most Valuable Player award that season.

Sanchez was an assistant coach at SUNY-Oneonta in 1998-99 and served as associate head coach at Delhi College (N.Y.) for two years. Delhi posted a 31-2 record for the 2000-01 season, won the Region III championship and finished fourth at the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Championship Tournament.

EDUCATION: Graduated from James Monroe High School in Bronx, N.Y., in 1992; received his bachelor's degree in secondary education and Spanish from the State University of New York College at Oneonta in 1997; earned his master's degree in athletic administration/sports management from Indiana University in 2002.

COACHING BACKGROUND: Assistant coach at SUNY-Oneonta (1998-99); associate head coach at Delhi College (N.Y., 1999-2001); volunteer assistant at Indiana University (2001-03); coordinator of men's basketball operations at Washington State University (2003-06); assistant coach at Washington State University (2006-09); third year as an assistant coach at the University of Virginia.

Jason Williford is in his third year as an assistant men's basketball coach at the University of Virginia and his 12th year as a men's assistant basketball coach at the collegiate level.

A former Virginia player, Williford was an assistant coach at American University for four years before coming to UVa and prior to that was an assistant coach at Boston University for five years. American won the Patriot League Championship and participated in the NCAA Tournament each of his last two seasons with the program. During Williford's final four years at Boston University, the Terriers earned an NCAA Tournament berth in 2002 and then participated in the National Invitation Tournament for three consecutive years.

A native of Richmond, Va., Williford is a 1995 graduate of Virginia. During his four years as a member of the UVa men's basketball team, the Cavaliers won the NIT in 1992 and participated in the NCAA Tournament three times. Virginia reached the NCAA Tournament's Sweet 16 in 1993, the second round in 1994 and the Elite Eight in 1995 when he was a team captain.

After graduation, Williford played four years in the Icelandic Professional League and the Korean Basketball League. In 1995-96, he was named the Foreign MVP for the Haukar Club Team in the Icelandic Professional League. He also began his coaching career that season by heading up the Under-20 Haukar Club Team. From 1996-99, Williford played for two teams in the Korean Basketball League and earned All-Star honors.

Williford was an assistant coach with the boys' varsity basketball team at his alma mater, John Marshall High School, in 1999-2000.

MIKE CURTIS STRENGTH AND CONDITIONING COACH

Mike Curtis is in his third year as head strength and conditioning coach for men's basketball at Virginia. He was named to the position on May 11, 2009. Before accepting the position at UVa, he was the director of strength and conditioning for the Michigan athletics department.

At Michigan, Curtis supervised and managed the training efforts of more than 20 athletic teams, five assistant coaches and two training facilities. He was primarily responsible for the implementation of performance training programs for men's and women's basketball.

Curtis, a former basketball player at Virginia, was the head strength and conditioning coach for the Memphis Grizzlies of the National Basketball Association for six years (2002-08) before assuming his responsibilities at Michigan.

He also served as the basketball strength and conditioning coach at South Carolina for one year (2001-02) and was the director of strength and conditioning for Olympic sports at Dayton for one year (2000-01).

Curtis, who is from Richmond, Va., earned a bachelor's degree in sports medicine from Virginia in 1998 and a master's degree in exercise physiology in 2000. He lettered four times as a member of the Cavaliers' men's basketball team and was a team co-captain for the 1997-98 season.

Curtis also serves as the head strength and conditioning coach for the Virginia women's basketball team.

BRAD SOUCIE DIRECTOR OF BASKETBALL

Brad Soucie is in his third year as director of men's basketball operations at the University of Virginia.

Soucie has 15 years of experience as a collegiate men's assistant basketball coach. All but one year of his coaching experience came as an assistant to former Liberty head coach Ritchie McKay, who is now the associate head coach at Virginia. Soucie was an assistant to McKay at Portland State, Colorado State, Oregon State, New Mexico and Liberty.

He played college basketball at Eastern Michigan University for two years before transferring to Christian Heritage College (now San Diego Christian). He earned his bachelor's degree in business administration from Christian Heritage in 1991 and later served as an assistant basketball coach there for one year.

Soucie played in the National Basketball Association Summer League with the Cleveland Cavaliers and Dallas Mavericks. He was also a member of the Athletes-in-Action traveling team.

THE BRAD SOUCIE FILE:

FAMILY: He and his wife, Kendra, have two daughters, Mikayla and Mariah, and a son, Levi.

EDUCATION: Graduated from Inter City Baptist High School in Allen Park, Mich., in 1986; attended Eastern Michigan University (1986-88); transferred to Christian Heritage College (now San Diego Christian) and earned his bachelor's degree in business administration in 1991.

ASSOCIATE ATHLETICS DIRECTOR/ HEAD ATHLETIC TRAINER

Ethan Saliba is in his 29th year as a member of the Virginia athletic training staff. He was promoted to associate athletics director for sports medicine in September of 2007 after serving as an assistant athletics director for four years. He has served as UVa's head athletic trainer since August of 1998. He oversees all daily athletic training room operations, including: staff, clerical and student assignments; injury management and rehabilitation; and ensuring medical coverage for all UVa varsity athletes.

Saliba was previously promoted to senior associate athletic trainer in September 1995 after serving as associate athletic trainer since 1990. He originally joined the UVa athletics department as an assistant athletic trainer in 1983.

He was honored as the 2007 Division I Athletic Trainer of the Year as selected by the National Athletic Trainers' Association's College/University Athletic Training Committee. The award recognizes outstanding service to the athletic training profession and the National Athletic Trainers' Association at the Division I level. In 2010 he was inducted into the Virginia Athletic Trainers Association Hall of Fame.

Saliba came to Charlottesville from Lincoln, Neb., where he worked for four years as a staff physical therapist at the University Health Center at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

After attending Southeast Missouri State University for three years on a football scholarship, Saliba received his bachelor's degree in physical therapy in 1979 from the University of Kansas.

RONNIE WIDEMAN ASST. DIRECTOR OF OPERATIONS/ VIDEO COORDINATOR

Ronnie Wideman is in his third year as assistant director of men's basketball operations/video coordinator at Virginia. Wideman was an operations assistant in the men's basketball program at Washington State University for three years prior to joining the staff at UVa.

At Washington State, Wideman coordinated team travel, official visits of recruits and video exchange, organized summer camps, oversaw facility scheduling and the managerial staff, managed the program's budget and performed a number of other administrative duties.

Wideman joined the Washington State staff after four years as a student manager with the Cougars' program. He assisted with the day-to-day operations of the program as a student manager, including working with video exchange, team travel, equipment distribution, summer camps, the supervision of volunteer managers, and editing game and practice video footage.

THE RONNIE WIDEMAN FILE:

EDUCATION: Graduated from Washougal High School in Washougal, Wash., in 2001; earned his bachelor's degree in health and fitness education from Washington State University in 2006; currently working on a master's degree in higher education administration.

EXPERIENCE: Operations assistant for the men's basketball program at Washington State University (2006-09); third year as assistant director of operations/video coordinator for men's basketball at the University of Virginia.

Following graduation, Saliba went to work at the Truman Medical Center in Kansas City, Mo., as a physical therapist. After one year, he enrolled at Nebraska to do graduate work in exercise physiology.

Saliba earned a master's degree in sports medicine/athletic training from UVa in 1986 and received his doctorate in sports medicine from UVa in 1992. He completed his doctorate in physical therapy degree from Virginia Commonwealth University in 2010 and completed his certification as a corrective exercise specialist from the National Academy of Sports Medicine that same year. He completed his certification in the functional movement systems level 1 and his certification in selective functional movement assessment in 2011.

Saliba has faculty appointments as a professor in Virginia's Curry School of Education and as an assistant professor in the Department of Clinical Orthopedic Surgery and the Department of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation. He is a Certified Athletic Trainer by the National Athletic Trainers Association and a licensed athletic trainer and physical therapist. He is a Sport Certified Specialist by the American Board of Physical Therapy Specialties.

He is married to the former Susan Foreman. The couple has a son, Sami.

2011-12 MEN'S BASKETBALL GAME NOTES

WITH A WIN

- If UVa defeats Florida, it will meet either Missouri or Norfolk State in the 3rd Round
- The Cavaliers lead the all-time series with Missouri 4-1
- The last meeting was an 81-77 Missouri win in Columbia in 2001-02
- The Cavaliers lead the all-time series with Norfolk State 1-0
- The only previous meeting was a 50-49 UVa win in Charlottesville last season

70 IS A MAGIC NUMBER

- Under Tony Bennett, Virginia is 25-2 when scoring at least 70 points
- The Cavaliers are 28-38 over the past three seasons when scoring under 70 points

60 IS THE NEW 70

- This season, Virginia is 18-2 when scoring at least 60 points
- The Cavaliers are 4-7 this season when scoring under 60 points

HOLDING FOES UNDER 50

• Virginia has held 11 opponents this season under 50 points, the most by an ACC team in the shot clock era

• The 11 games of holding opponents under 50 points are the most for the Cavaliers in a season since holding 16 opponents under 50 points in 1945-46

• Virginia has accomplished the feat 18 times in the Tony Bennett era

• The Cavaliers held three consecutive ACC opponents under 50 points (Georgia Tech, Virginia Tech, Boston College), marking the first time in the shot clock era (second overall) an ACC team has held three consecutive conference opponents under 50 points (UNC accomplished the feat in the '82 ACC Tournament)

CAVALIERS GET DEFENSIVE

• Virginia ranks among the national leaders in numerous defensive categories

• The Cavaliers are second in the nation in scoring defense, points allowed per

• UVa also ranks in the top 20 nationally

- ${\scriptstyle \bullet}$  UVa has held 24 of 31 opponents to single digit second chance points
- Virginia has held three opponents, Longwood, Virginia Tech (both meetings), to zero second chance points

2011-12 MEN'S BASKETBALL GAME NOTES

MIKE SCOTT NAMED ALL-ACC

- Mike Scott was named a first-team All-ACC selection
- He was the second-leading vote getter in this year's balloting
- Scott is first Cavalier to be named first-team All-ACC since Sean Singletary in 2008
- Scott joins Singletary as the only Cavaliers to be first-team All-ACC in the past 20 years

SCOTT NAMED ACC PLAYER OF THE WEEK FOUR TIMES

• Mike Scott led the league with four ACC Player of the Week awards this season • The four awards are a Virginia single-season record, surpassing the previous record of three by Barry Parkhill (1971-72), Ralph Sampson (1982-83), Bryant Stith (1989-90) and Norman Nolan (1997-98)

• Scott was named ACC Player of the Week on Dec. 19, Dec. 26, Jan. 9 and Mar. 5 • With his awards on Dec. 19 and Dec. 26 he became the first Cavalier to be honored in consecutive weeks since Sean Singletary in January 2007

SCOTT NAMED AN ALL-AMERICAN

- Mike Scott was named a third-team All-American by the Sporting News
- He is the first Cavalier honored by the publication since Ralph Sampson in 1983
- It is the first All-American honor of Scott's career

MIKE SCOTT DOES IT ALL

• Mike Scott ranks in the top 10 in the ACC in scoring (2nd), rebounding (5th), field goal percentage (1st), free throw percentage (7th), and defensive rebounds (3rd) • He is the only player in the ACC to rank in the top seven of scoring, rebounding, field goal percentage and free throw percentage

MIKE SCOTT'S HOT SHOOTING

• Mike Scott tied a UVa record for best perfect shooting game by going 9-for-9 from the floor against Wake Forest (eight of nine baskets were jumpers outside the paint) • It was the best perfect game by an ACC player since Corey Raji of BC went 12-for-12 vs. Maine on Dec. 23, 2008

MIKE SCOTT DOMINATES IN COLLEGE PARK

• Mike Scott had a career-high 35 points, along with 11 rebounds, in Virginia's 75-72 overtime win at Maryland in the regular-season finale on March 4

• Scott's 35 points were the most by a Cavalier since Sean Singletary scored 41 points at Miami on Mar. 1, 2008

Scott's 35 points are the most by an ACC player this season

• It was the first "30-10" game by a UVa player in an ACC game since Norman Nolan had 31 points and 12 rebounds against Wake Forest on Jan. 4, 1998

 Combined with his 28 points vs. Florida State on March 1, Scott becomes the first Cavalier to have consecutive 25-point games against ACC competition since J.R. Reynolds in 2006-07 (40 vs. Wake Forest, 29 at NC State)

SCOTT DOUBLING IT UP

Mike Scott enters the tournament with 34 career double-doubles (3rd in UVa history)

- He has 10 double-doubles this season
- His 34 career double-doubles are 2nd among all active ACC players
- Scott has six "20-10" games this season (10 in his career)

SCOTT JOINS 1500-900 CLUB

• Mike Scott enters the tournament as the ACC active leader in points (1,523) and rebounds (938)

• He is the 33rd player in ACC history to record at least 1,500 career points and 900 career rebounds

• He joins Ralph Sampson, Junior Burrough and Travis Watson as the only Cavaliers to accomplish the feat

2011-12 MEN'S BASKETBALL GAME NOTES

EVANS HONORED FOR DEFENSE

- Jontel Evans was named to the ACC All-Defensive Team
- He ranks fourth in the ACC at 1.6 steals per game

EVANS DISHES IT OUT

- Jontel Evans ranks fifth in the ACC at 3.8 assists/game
- Evans has had 12 games this season with at least five assists

ZEGLINSKI FROM LONG RANGE

 Sammy Zeglinski enters the tournament with 198 career 3-pointers, which ranks fifth in school history

• He has made at least three 3-pointers in 11 games this season, including six games with four 3-pointers

BENNETT HONORED

• Tony Bennett was named the District III Coach of the Year by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association

• It is the second district honor of Bennett's career (was the 2007 District IX Coach of the Year at Washington State)

AGAINST FIELD

• UVa played five teams that made the NCAA Tournament, posting a 2-6 record • The Cavaliers defeated Michigan and NC State, while losing to Duke, Florida State (twice), North Carolina (twice) and NC State

• Virginia went 4-0 against teams selected to the NIT (Drexel, LSU, Miami, Oregon)

CLOSE LOSSES

• Seven of Virginia's nine losses this season have been by a single possession, and in five of the games the Cavaliers had the final shot to win or tie

• In the 57-55 loss to TCU in the Paradise Jam, Joe Harris' 3-pointer to win the game missed as time expired

• In the 61-58 loss at Duke, Mike Scott and Jontel Evans each had opportunities from 3-point range in the closing seconds to force overtime

• In the 58-55 loss at Florida State, the Cavaliers had a chance for a desperation three from midcourt to force overtime

• In the 54-51 loss to North Carolina, Jontel Evans had a chance from near midcourt to hit a three that would have forced overtime

• In the 63-60 loss to Florida State, the Cavaliers had a chance for a desperation three from midcourt to force overtime

BIG ACC WINS

- Virginia defeated Georgia Tech 70-38, Wake Forest 68-44 and Maryland 71-44
- It marks the first time UVa has defeated three ACC opponents by at least 20 points in a season since 2000-01
- Before this season, UVa hadn't beaten an ACC opponent by 20-plus since 2005-06

NOTABLE WIN IN ATLANTA

- Virginia's 70-38 win at Georgia Tech on Jan. 19 was notable for several reasons
- The 32-point margin of victory was UVa's largest in an ACC game since a 104-72 win over NC State on Jan. 29, 1991 at University Hall

• It was the Cavaliers' largest margin of victory in an ACC road game since a 33-point win (107-74) at Wake Forest on Mar. 2, 1983

• The Yellow Jackets' 38 points were the fewest allowed by UVa in an ACC game since a 61-37 win over Clemson on Jan. 11, 1995 at University Hall

• Georgia Tech shot 29.2% (14-48) from the floor, the first time UVa held an ACC opponent under 30% since Wake Forest (29.0%, 20-69) on Feb. 24, 1996

VIRGINIA 2011-12 MEN'S BASKETBALL GAME NOTES

ROAD WARRIORS

- Virginia was 7-4 this season in true road games
- Dating back to last season, UVa has won nine of its last 13 true road games
- The Cavaliers won seven road games in a season for the first time since 1986-87
- It is the first time since 1994-95 that Virginia had a winning record in true road games (6-4 in 1994-95)

AT HOME AT JOHN PAUL JONES ARENA

- Virginia was 13-3 this season at John Paul Jones Arena
- Virginia won 13 home regular-season games in a season for the first time since 2006-07 (16-1 at home that season)
- The Cavaliers are 35-15 at home under Tony Bennett

CAVALIERS TOP MICHIGAN

• UVa's 70-58 win over No. 14 Michigan was its highest ranked win of the Bennett era • It was the Cavaliers' first double-digit win over a top-15 opponent since a 72-58 win over No. 11 Boston College on Feb. 21, 2006 at University Hall

THEY CALL THEM FREE THROWS FOR A REASON

• UVa set a school record by going 19-for-19 from the free throw line against Winthrop

• The previous school record was 16-for-16 against South Carolina on Jan. 8, 1965 • It was the best free throw performance by an ACC team since Wake Forest shot an ACC-record 32-for-32 against North Carolina in 2005

Virginia also went perfect from the line vs. BC (8-8) and at Clemson (1-1)
It is the first time in school history that UVa has had three perfect games from the line in the same season

HARRELL AND JOHNSON DECIDE TO TRANSFER

• Sophomore guard KT Harrell (Dec. 23) and redshirt freshman forward James Johnson (Dec. 24) announced they were transferring

- Harrell appeared in 11 games (starting five) and averaged 4.7 ppg this season
- Johnson appeared in six games and averaged 1.5 ppg this season

FOUR SIGN WITH VIRGINIA

• UVa signed four players to National Letters of Intent for the 2012 recruiting class • The four players are 6-6 wing Justin Anderson of Spotsylvania, Va.; 6-0 guard Teven Jones of Kannapolis, N.C.; 6-8 forward Evan Nolte of Alpharetta, Ga.; and 6-11 post player Mike Tobey of Monroe, N.Y.

JONES JOINS CAVALIERS

• Teven Jones, who signed with Virginia in November, enrolled at UVa for the start of the spring semester

• Jones, who was attending Fishburne Military Academy, will practice with the Cavaliers for the remainder of the season, but will not play in games

• He will still have four years of eligibility at Virginia beginning with the 2012-13 season

First Line of Defense

by Luke Winn

The basketball coach at Virginia 30 years ago, Terry Holland, was flush: He had 7'4" center Ralph Sampson—a singular player who was so talented that he declared himself "the next stage of basketball development"-and the nation's No. 1 team, which was headed toward a No. 1 seeding in the NCAA tournament. The coach of the Cavaliers today, Tony Bennett, has a Sampsonsized challenge: His 7-foot center is out with a broken ankle, his righthanded shooting guard is hindered by a broken left hand, and his 22--8 team, which is clinging to UVA's first big-dance bid since 2007, has only one real option on offense: senior forward Mike Scott.

Bennett didn't inherit the anxiety that drove his father, Dick, out of the game shortly after taking Wisconsin to the Final Four in 2000, but he is the caretaker of a defense created by his father to help overcome competitive disadvantages. The Pack-Line defense is a containment system in which one man pressures the ball and the other four stay in help position within an imaginary 16-foot arc around the basket. Virginia deploys it well enough to rank first in the nation in fewest points allowed per possession (0.87). But what the Cavaliers do, Tony says, isn't groundbreaking. "It's just about having an iron will and saying we won't budge on certain things defensively."

Bennettball demands stubbornness; its rules are called "nonnegotiables." What's unusual about this system, which has spread to high schools and colleges around the country, is that to become a Pack-Liner, Dick Bennett had to do more than budge: He had to ditch the system that first made him famous.

IT'S 1984 AND Dick Bennett, 41, is standing in front of a dusty chalkboard. At the top he has written STOP BALL and underlined it. Drawing attention to himself isn't his sort of thing; he was talked into making this instructional video by his assistant, Rod Popp, who's working the camera. Bennett is the reigning NAIA coach of the year, having taken Wisconsin--Stevens Point to the national title game, but he has no expectation that the tape, Pressure Defense: A System, will spread very far.

Bennett tells the camera that defenders in this man-to-man system must apply intense pressure and gamble with reckless abandon—a curious order from someone whose teaching style is painfully thorough (the video will run 82 minutes) and whose yellow UWSP polo shirt is neatly tucked into his blue polyester coaching shorts. He's a tightly wound man with a blueprint for suffocating "oh-fenses," as he occasionally says in his Nordic Wisconsinese.

This early version of Dick Bennett D aims to force 20 turnovers per game by following these rules: All five defenders must sprint back to prevent transition baskets. The ball is pressured as soon as it crosses half-court, and off-ball defenders are always in denial mode-"on the line and up the line," Bennett says-in the path of potential passes. (The players in the practice footage he splices in, including a young Terry Porter, hop around like trained jackrabbits.) There is no switching, only early help and quick recovery. The ball must be pushed to one side of the floor and then to the baseline, where a help defender is dead-fronting the post. Once the defense has ganged up on that side, the ball cannot be allowed to swing back around the perimeter.

If you can get the ball on the baseline, eliminating ball reversal is a pleasure," Bennett says. "That's where you're gonna create tremendous turnovers." His earnestness is what makes this the tape's most precious quip, although Bennett's piece of chalk leaves a more lasting impression about 20 minutes into the video. During a vigorous drawing of a court diagram, it snaps in half, causing a brief crack in the coach's demeanor. After a chuckle he quickly gets the lecture back on track, but for years he'll hear broken-chalk jokes from coaches he's just met. That's evidence that his VHS went the pre-Internet equivalent of viral.

Where did the video spread? Where didn't it spread? Bob Hurley of St. Anthony's in Jersey City received a copy at a Marquette clinic in 1985. An instant convert, Hurley implemented the defense during his son Bobby's freshman season and used it to win 15 of his 24 overall state titles and induction into the Naismith Hall of Fame. Iowa-based Championship Productions bought the video for wider distribution, and in an SI poll in the '90s, college coaches said Dick Bennett was one of the men from whom they most wanted to take a clinic (along with Bob Knight, Mike Krzyzewski and Rick Majerus). When Pat Riley became the Miami Heat coach in '95, he cited Bennett as an influence on his aggressive Knicksera defenses, even though he and Bennett had never spoken.

The sideline fraternity knew Bennett as a professor of pressure, but a national audience will meet him as a purveyor of something else.

It's March 17, 1994, and Dick Bennett is a Division I coach in an NCAA tournament firstround game in Odgen, Utah. This isn't his first national TV appearance; he took Wisconsin--Green Bay to the dance three years earlier, when Tony was its star point guard, and nearly knocked off Michigan State. Now the Phoenix is a No. 12 seed, pitted against No. 5 Cal, an up-tempo scoring machine with Final Four aspirations and a soon-to-be No. 2 overall draft pick, Jason Kidd, at point. CBS tells viewers that Bennett is a "guru," but it's an indication of his employer's lack of prominence that analyst Ann Meyers refers to the school as "Green Bay Wisconsin" for the first six minutes of the game. By the time she corrects herself, the Phoenix has a 6--2 lead and two things are evident: Kidd's Bears are flummoxed, and Bennett's new defense has taken a philosophical 180 from the one that earned him guru status.

After the Phoenix sprints back in transition, the team builds a wall in front of Kidd to keep him away from the paint. Gary Grzesk, a 6'5" sophomore guard, is the primary defender on Kidd and becomes the game's quiet hero. Once the defense is set, the player on the ball applies pressure—but his teammates don't. Instead of denying "on the line and up the line," they pack themselves in a 16-foot arc around the basket and constantly reposition themselves, either as helpers who shrink Kidd's potential driving lanes or as angled post-fronters who prevent feeds from the top of the key. (Cal coach Todd Bozeman says it's almost as if the Green Bay defenders are "in the lane posing for a team picture.") The players are content to let the ball rotate, but they refuse to let anyone drive baseline, because post defenders aren't in position to help. No one ventures outside the pack line unless his man is about to catch a pass, at which point the defender closes out with a vengeance, his hands high to prevent a rhythm jumper, while the passer's man retreats to the pack. Gambling for steals is kept to a minimum, in favor of forcing a contested shot and sending all five men to the glass to end the opponents' possession.

How well did the Pack-Line D work on that St. Patrick's Day? The Bears did not get a field goal until almost midway through the half. Kidd was held to 12 points on 4-of-17 shooting. And UWGB pulled off the greatest upset in school history, 61--57.

Tony was watching from a sports bar in Charlotte, where he was an against-the-odds NBA success as a backup guard for the Hornets. He saw this coming. When he was a junior at Green Bay in 1990--91, Dick started to doubt that all-out pressure was right for a D-I David that would always be at an athletic disadvantage when it faced power-conference programs. The north-south driving offenses that had come into vogue were tough to stop with slower defenders, and the Phoenix was getting caught out of position and giving up too many offensive rebounds. Dick reluctantly sought out a system that would neutralize the talent gap, and as an experiment he taped down a pack line on UWGB's practice court.

Tony's teams were the guinea pigs, but Dick didn't fully make the pushing-to-packing conversion until after his son turned pro in 1992. A few years after his NBA career ended in '95, Tony became an assistant to his father, who had moved on to Wisconsin. There the pack line was painted on the practice floor. Disciplined defenders are the key to Bennettball, and that season's pack leader was the unscreenable Mike Kelley, who guided the 1999--2000 Badgers to the Final Four.

Tony's Virginia team has a player in the same mold as Grzesk and Kelley. Junior guard Jontel Evans is a 5'11" self-proclaimed "pest" who leads the Cavaliers in steals with 48.

The most difficult part about doing a Pack-Line D story is that the Bennetts pressure you not to do a Pack-Line D story. They just don't believe it's a worthy topic. "The Pack Line isn't revolutionary," Tony says. "It's a basic containment man-to-man, built on simple rules that my dad put together. I wouldn't want to waste your time."

From Dick, more of the same: "We're very respectful of the work that's gone into developing defense," he says, "and the last thing that I want is to be thought of as an inventor of a defense that's been played in many variations." He adds that he didn't even coin the term pack line—that came from a marketing guy who talked Bennett into making a DVD on the new system.

So, in order to do a story on the Pack-Line D, you must assure the Bennetts that you won't say it's sui generis.

future branch of coaches.

Everything in modern basketball is built on something else, and Bennett stresses that he was influenced by Bob Knight's helping man-to-man at Indiana, Lou Henson's ball-line defense at Illinois, and Colorado State's Boyd Grant's emphasis on the importance of a player's keeping his hands high while closing out. Bennett selected the pieces that best fit his team, made a set of rules and drilled his players incessantly. He may not have been an inventor, but he has been a shrewd editor and an even better teacher.

His 2005 Pack-Line DVD became one of Championship Productions' best sellers and helped the defense gain traction outside the Bennett family. (Dick's daughter Kathi teaches it at Northern Illinois, and his brother Jack did the same at Stevens Point.) Arizona coach Sean Miller's father, John, a high school coach in Beaver Falls, Pa., admired Bennett's methods. When Sean got his first head coaching job, at Xavier in 2004, he implemented the Bennett's D and used it to reach the 2008 Elite Eight. Now, with the Wildcats, Sean has made the Pack Line the third most efficient D in the Pac-12. According to Synergy Sports Technology, Arizona is the nation's fourth-best team at defending jump shooters. Miller's successor at Xavier, Chris Mack, stuck with the Pack-Line, and Northern Iowa's Ben Jacobson used a hybrid of it to upset No. 1-seeded Kansas in the 2010 NCAA tournament. Butler used Pack-Line principles in its recent back-to-back runs to the national title game, although coach Brad Stevens has reconfigured his defense, as Bennett had before him, into something that will inspire a College basketball's steady deacceleration since the '90s has less to do with stalling offenses than with the rise of containment defenses. Virginia plays at the 339th slowest pace in D-I because the Pack-Line is next-to-impossible to score on early in the shot clock. By limiting the number of possessions, Pack-Lining can fuel Cinderella runs but also produce aesthetic atrocities, like the 53--41 Final Four grudge match that Dick Bennett's 2000 Wisconsin team lost to Michigan State. That the system's highest-profile showcase was widely panned as a peach-basket-era grinder does not bother Tony Bennett, whose Cavaliers could be in the bracket as a No. 8 seed, just like his dad's Badgers. Says Tony, "I'd love to get to the Final Four and have them say that about me."

Virginia Coach Tony Bennett Is Building Another Winner

by Steve Kelley

The beginning was rough. Lopsided losses were stacked on top of each other like so many junkyard tires.

Virginia lost nine of its final 10 games in Tony Bennett's first season there.

After getting used to winning at Washington State, even Bennett's family began doubting the sanity of his decision to move across the country and take over another reclamation project.

At one point in the losing, Bennett's 10-year-old son Eli said to his father something along the lines of, "Remind me again why we moved from Pullman?"

Take over a job like this and you can expect those kinds of questions, from your family, from the writers, from yourself.

Virginia won 10 games in 2008-09, the season before Bennett arrived and just like the job Tony and his father Dick faced at Washington State, he knew that an NCAA tournament contender wouldn't be built in a day, or a season, or in one recruiting class.

Aside from finding five McDonald's All-Americans (see Kentucky, Calipari, John), there are no quick fixes in college basketball. Rebuilding a program as low as Virginia's had tumbled takes time and Job-like patience.

"It's humbling," Bennett said, sitting in a downtown Seattle hotel lobby Tuesday afternoon. "It's challenging. You sit there and you always hope that you want to hold true to what you think is going to happen. You hope, but you're never certain. That's why you just keep plugging. You just keep doing what you know how to do."

At times, the rebuilding process can feel as if it is moving as slowly as a glacier. Success is hard to measure without wins. Bennett calls the early stages of building a program "a battle of wills" with his players.

"Now we have guys with both feet in the boat," said associate head coach Ritchie McKay, a former University of Washington assistant. "In the first year, when we had adversity, guys would have both feet out of the boat, or one foot out. It was a constant battle. There was a lack of buy-in."

In the early stages of rebuilding, coaches, like big-league pitchers, have to trust their stuff.

From Wisconsin-Green Bay, to Wisconsin, from Washington State to Virginia, the Bennett philosophy, passed from father Dick to son Tony, has been to consistently play hard-nosed man-toman defense, value the basketball, make good decisions, take good shots.

When he got to Virginia, Bennett trusted his stuff.

"There's always resistance in anything," he said. "Players want instant gratification. There's always going to be some growing pains."

Tony Bennett, 42, is doing it again, just as he did at Washington State, where the Cougars went to two NCAA tournaments in three years. He is awakening the echoes of a once-great program and turning it into a winner again. In his third season at Virginia, after six seasons at WSU, three as an assistant under his father, Bennett has the Cavaliers ranked in the Top 25 for the first time since November 2007.

"Everybody's bought into the system now," McKay said.

If 24th-ranked Virginia beats Seattle University on Wednesday night at KeyArena, it will be 10-1, the best start the program has had since the 2000-01 season.

"When you're building, you do everything you can to paint a picture, sell a vision," Bennett said. "You have to do that. That's your job as a coach. When it gets a little dire, when it doesn't look good, you have to find a way to rejoice in the little successes. In the initial stages of rebuilding, it has to be about the quality, and it may not always be reflected on the scoreboard."

Do players understand the importance of every possession? Does your opponent have to work hard to get a good shot? Do you surrender few offensive rebounds and limit fast-break points? Are you getting good looks at the basket and outlasting the opponent?

"These things matter," Bennett said. "They're nonnegotiable. We try to highlight those things and try not to let them slide at all. We have an identity out there and we're seeing it more consistently now. You see guys getting mad at each other when there's a breakdown on defense or a careless turnover. You see the look in their eyes after they've beaten a really good team because they've imposed their will on them."

Wherever he's been, Bennett never has wavered from his principles. There is a level of integrity with a Bennett-coached team that is reflected in the way it plays.

"I was a head coach for 14 years before I joined Tony and I thought I had everything figured out," said McKay. "But after being with Tony for three years, I'm so much a better coach, especially defensively. He's so humble. He takes no credit for anything. He's not looking for any attention. He's one of the greatest guys I've ever met."

At Virginia, Tony Bennett is doing it again. Nobody should be surprised.

Virginia Freshman Atkins Has Athleticism Aplenty

by Whitelaw Reid

After Virginia's 69-42 win over Maryland-Eastern Shore on Tuesday, coach Tony Bennett was effusive in his praise of freshman Darion Atkins — with the exception of one minor thing.

Late in the game, Atkins threw a pass to freshman Malcolm Brogdon, whose sneaker had just fallen off.

"My one criticism of [Atkins] is don't throw the ball to a guy who has his shoe off," Bennett joked. "I think that's probably what he needs to learn.

"I said, 'Darion, when a guy throws you the ball because his shoe fell off, you probably don't want to throw it back."

The sneaker episode aside, there was plenty to like about Atkins' performance. The Clinton, Md., native notched career highs in points (13) and rebounds (seven).

The 6-foot-8 Atkins, who has a 7-foot-1 wingspan, showed off his athleticism with two dunks and two blocked shots.

"He shows you some things naturally that you just can't coach," Bennett said. "It's valuable for our defense especially. I saw that in the summer and I'm starting to see that in games."

In the first half, Atkins snatched a Brogdon miss out of mid-air and threw down a thunderous twohand jam. The hoop was part of nine straight points scored by Atkins and Akil Mitchell.

"I feel like we both have some chemistry when we're out on the court together," Atkins said, "and I think it will progress." In the second half, Atkins had another dunk, swatted a couple shots and threw in a mid-range jumper from the baseline for good measure.

"Darion has so much talent," said Virginia fifth-year senior Mike Scott. "He's long and athletic and he has a good soft touch. He just has to keep working at his offense, and take his time to really think and get the process on defense down and he'll be fine."

Games against the likes of Maryland-Eastern Shore and Towson (Virginia's opponent on Friday) must be taken with a grain of salt, but Atkins — who missed the first three games of the season because of a suspension for team rules violations — says he's starting to feel more comfortable.

"I feel like I'm coming along with the team a little better from a game perspective and I'm just having fun," he said. "When I'm on the court, I just try and stay aggressive.

"The way I'm going to get my points is just crashing the glass."

Bennett says he has seen improvement.

"You see the signs and flashes," he said. "There's no teacher like game experience. I think the more he gets, the better he'll become and I think he has a nice upside."

With James Johnson's decision to transfer last week, Atkins' role could loom large given the fact there are no more big bodies on Bennett's bench after Atkins. But Atkins says Johnson's departure doesn't change his approach much.

"I need to still come out, still play my game and give it everything I got," he said.

Bennett will gladly take that. It's been a long time since Virginia has had a player as athletically gifted as Atkins.

"He has natural athleticism," Bennett said. "His timing if you watch — it's really impeccable how he can block shots. I told [strength coach] Mike Curtis, 'I'm going to give you all the credit for how Darion has been jumping' and he said, 'That's God-given.'

"He has those physical tools, but he's raw. It's kind of tying it together, not trying to do too much, slowing down a little bit. Sometimes he gets too rushed, but the more experiences he gets in games, the better he gets."

UVa Freshman Brogdon has a Commander in Chief Presence

by Whitelaw Reid

ATLANTA — If you're expecting freshman Malcolm Brogdon to be champing at the bit to put on a show for fans in his hometown tonight when No. 15 Virginia plays at Georgia Tech, well, you don't know Brogdon very well. There's a reason why Brogdon was recently selected by Akil Mitchell as the most likely Virginia player to run for President — and the only teammate Mitchell would actually want to see run for President.

The even-keeled Brogdon is mature beyond his years and always seems to have the big picture in mind. Right now, that vision entails helping Virginia (14-2, 1-1) bounce back from a loss at Duke last Thursday that snapped a 12game winning streak.

"I think it's very exciting," said Brogdon, when asked about returning to Atlanta, during coach Tony Bennett's radio show earlier this week, "but at the same time I don't think I can get caught up in going back home because we're still going there to play a very good team and we have to take care of business when we get there."

Brogdon grew up in Decatur, Ga., which is about 10 minutes from downtown Atlanta, then moved to nearby Norcross, Ga. for his final two years of high school, where he attended Greater Atlanta Christian.

Tonight, Brogdon expects to have about 30 people in the stands at Phillips Arena rooting him on. The contingent will include family members, former high school teammates and classmates, along with his former coach at GAC, Eddie Martin. Two of Brogdon's most enthusiastic supporters will be his brothers, Gino and John. When Virginia played at the Paradise Jam tournament in the Virgin Islands in November, the brothers got on a court-side microphone and began chanting "UVa!" John Brogdon delayed his return to college in San Francisco just so that he could see tonight's game.

"It's not going to be like when we went to Seattle and I think there were 200 or 300 people there for Joe Harris," said Jann Adams, Brogdon's mother, laughing, "but I think there will be a few people there for him which should be real nice."

Brogdon, whose jersey was retired at GAC during a ceremony back in August, will also see plenty of familiar faces on the court. He knows Georgia Tech's Glen Rice Jr., Mfon Udofia and Julian Royal well from his high school and AAU days.

Brogdon has been an important player off the bench for Virginia this season. The 6-foot-4 guard overtook KT Harrell in Bennett's rotation a few games in and has never looked back.

Brogdon numbers aren't jawdropping — he's averaging 6.7 points and 3.1 rebounds in 20.7 minutes per game — but he's shown he's not afraid to take (and make) big shots in crunch time. He's shooting a team-best 83 percent from the free-throw line and has been good at protecting the ball, which is a huge emphasis in Bennett's system.

"It's rare that you can find a young player with composure in those settings," Bennett said, "and he has that." Brogdon, whose teammates say he looks and sounds like Barack Obama, had a career-high 16 points in Virginia's win over Michigan in November.

"I thrive in situations where coaches and teammates believe in me and I think here I have coaches who really believe in me and are willing to give me an opportunity," Brogdon said. "I think that's what makes a player really good."

Jann Adams, an associate dean of science and math at Morehouse College in Atlanta, is extremely pleased with how her son's first year in Charlottesville has gone.

"I think academically he's doing well; he's adjusted," Adams said. "I was concerned that the step up academically would be big and the step up basketball-wise would be big...but academically he did really well last semester.

"I honestly felt that he would do well basketball-wise in terms of acclimating because I think he has really good people around him. I feel like those boys just really embraced him from the beginning. He's become really good friends with Paul [Jesperson] and they're roommates and he has good teammates and coaches. I think he feels like he's in a supportive environment."

The best thing about Brogdon: He doesn't appear to be the kind of player who rests on his laurels.

"I think he wants to play better than he's been playing," Adams said, "and he feels like he needs to step up and keep working, and do what it takes to be a really important contributor on the team."

With about  $3\frac{1}{2}$  years still ahead of him — nearly a full presidential term — Wahoo fans should be excited about Brogdon's days in office.

Dunks

Georgia Tech is playing most of its home games this season at Philips Arena while Alexander Memorial Coliseum is being renovated and is still looking for its first win in the building following losses to Northwestern, Alabama and Duke...Glen Rice Jr. is averaging 13.8 points and 6.6 rebounds, ranking 10th in the ACC in both categories...Nine of the 13 players on the Yellow Jackets' roster are from the state of Georgia...Bennett on Tech: "Coach [Gregory] is doing a good job. They probably getting more accustomed to him and what he wants — his system...they've got some talented players. They defend hard. They run good offense. They make you earn your possessions on offense. When they're playing well, like most teams, they're well-rounded. They have the size. You're just going to have to be solid."

Evans Enjoys His Turn In Spotlight

by Jeff White

CHARLOTTESVILLE -- At the end of practice Tuesday afternoon, Tony Bennett gathered his players around him on the main court at John Paul Jones Arena. Moments later came a burst of applause for Mike Scott and Jontel Evans, who, Bennett told his team, had been honored by the ACC the day before.

Scott, a 6-8 fifth-year senior, received the second-most votes in All-ACC balloting. He's the first men's basketball player from UVa to make the all-conference first team since Sean Singletary in 2008.

Evans, a 5-11 junior, became the first UVa player since Adam Hall in 2001 to be named to the ACC's All-Defensive team.

For Scott, who leads the Cavaliers in scoring and rebounding, such recognition is nothing new. After all, he's been named ACC player of the week four times this season, a UVa record. Defensive standouts, however, rarely make headlines, and so the Wahoos' starting point guard was thrilled to get the news Monday.

"It was a huge honor," Evans said. "I really didn't know until I started checking my Twitter and I had like a hundred mentions saying, 'Congratulations.' It just shook me. It's been a while since I've been part of a huge accolade like that.

"It surprised me, and I'm very honored. I have to give credit to my teammates and especially Coach Bennett. I came in here as a good defender, but playing three years underneath him, he's made me a great defender, so my props to him." At Bethel High School in Hampton, Evans was known on the football field for his offense. He was a star tailback who came off the field when the Bruins were on defense. As a UVa basketball player, defense has been his forte since the day he arrived in Charlottesville.

A chiseled 188-pounder, Evans leads UVa in steals with 48 this season. More significant for a player who has long been able to pressure opponents into turnovers, Evans is much sounder fundamentally now than early in his college career.

"I used to always go for the home run on defense," he said. "I was always gambling, losing vision. I'm still losing vision, but it's not as bad as it was when I first got here. When I first came in here, I was a guy that gambled a lot, and that's what hurt me as a defender and hurt my team as well."

At Bethel, Evans was able to get away with such risks. "But when I got here," he said, "guys were just as good as me. I tried to do that, but it was a rude awakening, so I had to learn Coach Bennett's principles and put that into my defensive game."

In the Cavaliers' third season under Bennett, they rank among the nation's top defensive teams, and Evans' role on the perimeter is crucial. In some ways, he reminds his coach of Muggsy Bogues, with whom Bennett played on the NBA's Charlotte Hornets.

Bogues, a former Wake Forest great, wasn't tall, but he was quick and strong. "His nickname was 'Pocket Hercules,' " Bennett recalled recently.

Most people "really couldn't appreciate how powerful he was,' Bennett said. "Sometimes you don't think of that, but I think when you have both of those things present, it makes you really effective as an on-ball defender. When Jontel is really focused at keeping a guy in front or just working, he has the ability to do that because of that combination. Unlike other guys, sometimes if they get out of position or something happens where they're a little late, they're usually quick enough to cover up a mistake, and they get back in position."

Like Scott, who's from Chesapeake, Evans grew up in the state's Tidewater region. That's not all they have in common. Before the season, they made a pact: Neither would cut his hair until the 'Hoos made the NCAA tournament.

Their barbers may soon be able to turn on the clippers. As Selection Sunday approaches, UVa is positioned to advance to the NCAAs for the first time since 2006-07. The 'Hoos, 22-8 overall, are seeded No. 4 in the ACC tournament, which starts Thursday in Atlanta.

During games, Evans and Scott usually wear their hair in cornrows. Evans was sporting a full afro at practice Tuesday, but he's hoping to have a new look by this time next week.

"It all depends on Sunday," Evans said with a smile. "If our name gets called, then the hair comes off."

How much of it?

This has been a memorable season for Evans (7.3 ppg). Not only has he excelled on defense, he leads the 'Hoos in assists, with 115, and has made significant strides as a scorer, becoming adept at finishing floaters and runners. He also proved recently that he's comfortable in front of the camera.

"I think I did pretty well," Evans said of his turn as host of the Cavalier Sports Weekly show. "I just was calm, cool and collected. The guys weren't there to interrupt me and make me laugh."

The Cavaliers leave Wednesday afternoon for Atlanta, where they will be one of four teams with first-round byes. UVa will meet No. 5 seed NC State or No. 12 seed Boston College in the second quarterfinal Friday (approximately 2:30 p.m.).

A win would send the 'Hoos to the ACC semifinals for the first time in what seems an eternity. Not since 1995 has Virginia has played on the Saturday of an ACC tournament.

"We want to change that," Evans said. "That's a bad tradition right there. We're going to go down to Atlanta and try to play on a weekend. This team is very focused. We've been through a lot of ups and downs this year, with people transferring, and big-time injuries to big-time players. But we pulled through, and we hung in there, and it's a clean slate going down to Atlanta."

Evans Determined to Make Up for Lost Time

by Jeff White

CHARLOTTESVILLE -- After the recent addition of firstyear guard Teven Jones, the UVa men's basketball roster includes 10 scholarship players. Virtually all have this is common: By the 12th grade, they had given up every sport except one: hoops.

Then there's the Cavaliers' starting point guard. Jontel Evans, like Jones, played basketball and football throughout high school.

"Football helped me to be physical, be quick and be a competitor and always want to win," Evans said this week at John Paul Jones Arena.

Those are the benefits. The downside is that Evans, a 5-11 junior, isn't as advanced in basketball as he might be. Most of his peers in Division I played hoops yearround when they were in high school. When Evans could have been honing his shooting and ball-handling skills in the fall, he was starring at tailback for Bethel High in Hampton.

"I always had to play catch-up when basketball season came," Evans said. "I feel like if I'd had the whole year just to work on my basketball game, then I would have been a better basketball player."

Virginia coach Tony Bennett said: "Your individual skill development is probably the biggest thing you lose, in the offseason, when you can really work on specific skills and develop them. From the hours put in and the time spent, those are the things that you just can't do when you're playing another sport."

Bennett is 42, which makes him old enough to remember a time when multi-sport athletes were more common.

"Your parents would tell you you'd play football, basketball, baseball, or track," Bennett said. "You'd play three sports. Now it seems like with personal trainers and individual skill development, it's specialized. You're focusing on your sport and trying to make that your deal."

Bennett grew up in Green Bay, Wis. So perhaps it's not surprising that he appreciates what has become the most popular sport in the United States.

"Football is about second and third effort, being continuous," Bennett said. "You hit the hole and you keep driving. And it's about real physicality. We talk about physicality in basketball, but real physicality is [in football]."

No one has questioned Evans' toughness, strength or quickness since he arrived at UVa in 2009. His shooting has been the issue. But the young man known as "Bub" to friends, teammates and coaches has steadily improved in that area.

As a freshman, when he started 11 games, Evans shot 36.9 percent from the floor and 56.3 from the line and averaged 2.4 points. As a sophomore, he started 27 games and averaged 5.7 points. He also improved his shooting percentages, to 39 from the floor and 59.6 from the line.

He's coming off a game at Duke's Cameron Indoor Stadium in which he went 0 for 6 from the floor, his final miss a 3-pointer that would have forced overtime. But Evans has scored in double figures three times this season, and his percentages are up to 44.9 percent from the floor and 68 percent from the line.

His scoring average (5.6 ppg) remains modest, but Evans has become proficient with an array of floaters and runners, shots that weren't really part of his repertoire in 2009-10. It's common to see Evans working on his shooting with assistant coach Ron Sanchez after practice at JPJ.

"He's certainly improved," said Bennett, who like Evans is in his third year at UVa. "He's had good offseasons, and he's had great experience. Because of where our program was upon his arrival -and my arrival, really -- he had opportunities where he was thrown into the fire when older guys had injuries. He was put in some spots where you learn through success and failure, and that's been a positive thing for him. He's used those and developed, and he's continuing to add things to his game."

After starting all but one of Virginia's first 28 games last season, Evans came off the bench for the final three, with Sammy Zeglinski taking over at point guard. With Zeglinski coming back this season too, there was no guarantee that Evans would reclaim the starting job. But Evans' progress has allowed Bennett to start Zeglinski, the team's top 3-point threat, at shooting guard.

"It just motivated me," Evans said of his late-season demotion. "I just felt like my lack of offensive abilities last year was the reason why I didn't start those last couple of games during the end of the season. So I took that and I turned it into motivation in the offseason. I worked on my offensive game, and now I'm right here being the starting point guard and playing solid."

No. 15 Virginia (1-1, 14-2) faces ACC foe Georgia Tech (1-2, 8-9) in Atlanta at 8 p.m. Thursday. Evans leads the Wahoos in assists (3.6 per game) and steals (1.7 per game) and, as he has throughout his career, specializes in harassing ball-handlers.

"I've been happy with my play," Evans said. "I've been showing a lot of people I can score, I can run the team. My defense has picked up since my first two years. I'm not a gambler. I just feel like I've been very solid this year."

Evans still can be overly aggressive at times on defense, Bennett said, but he's a major reason why UVa's Pack Line defense has been so effective this season.

"I always say, Bub's got a little bit of riverboat gambler in him in terms of his defense," Bennett said. "So you don't want to take that away and squash it completely, but you just have to be sound when you gamble."

During a playing career that took him to the NBA, Bennett was a point guard known for his 3-point shot. Evans has a different skill set, but it's effective, too.

"I really love guys that can set your defense first, and he can do that," Bennett said. "When Jontel's locked in, he's so strong and quick, and he can really get to the lane. I've been on staffs with different kinds of point guards. Some have been real good scorers that can really stretch the defense. Some have been not as [strong on offense], but they set the defense, they make the extra pass, they get in the lane and distribute.

"It just depends what's around you. As long as you've got the right pieces, you can win with different types of point guards."

In UVa's 61-58 loss to then-No. 8 Duke last Thursday night, Evans totaled 6 assists, 1 steal and no turnovers in his 31 minutes. It was an emotionally draining game for him. About 36 hours before the 'Hoos and the Blue Devils tipped off in Durham, Evans' great-grandmother Agnes Buchanan passed away in York, Pa., the city where he was born and where many of his relatives still live.

"If you go up there and visit and you see somebody walking down the street, most likely they're my cousin," Evans said with a smile.

Mrs. Buchanan, a York native too, was 92. She had 46 grandchildren, 103 great-grandchildren and 59 great-great-grandchildren, according to her obituary.

"I didn't have any thoughts about missing the game, but it was tough," Evans said. "I loved her to death, and I was just sad to see her go.

"Every time I visited up there, we always stopped by her house and spent some time with her. She was one of my biggest fans."

Mrs. Buchanan's funeral was Saturday in York, and Evans was in attendance. He got back to Charlottesville around 4 p.m. Sunday and turned his attention to the Yellow Jackets.

Fourteen regular-season games remain for the Cavaliers. Then comes the ACC tournament and, they hope, their first trip to the NCAA tournament in five years. Evans finds it hard to believe that he's well into the second half of his college career.

"It feels like I just got here yesterday," he said, "but that's what the coaches and some of my old teammates told me: If you blink, it's going to be gone, so just take advantage of every year, and that's what I'm trying to do, because I know the end is near."

Joe Harris: Virginia's Underrated Star

by Andrew Jones

Joe Harris isn't going to grab most people's attention when the Virginia Cavaliers go through their layup lines before games.

Harris looks like just another guy on the team. Mike Scott? Asasne Sene? Yeah, those bigs easily stand out. But not Harris, until the game starts.

He's sort of like fine wine to the average basketball observer. After a while, though, watching him come off screens for 3-pointers, jumpers in the lane, his use of the dribble, how he adroitly gets to offensive rebounds, his desire to box out so bigger teammates can grab defensive boards, and just the way he carries himself on the court, one comes to appreciate Harris' overall game. When Harris is on the floor, No. 16 Virginia is usually at its best.

Harris is a well-rounded player capable of dipping his hands into every statistical basket and then some. But for those in and around the Virginia program, sometimes Harris' impressive stroke overshadows his many other attributes. That's only because he has such a gorgeous shot.

"Every time Joe Harris shoots, I always think it's going in," said Cavs point guard Jontel Evans told the Roanoke Times following a win at LSU in December, a game in which Harris scored 14 points and hit a crucial 3-pointer with 90 seconds to play, preserving the victory.

"He's a great shooter. Textbook. Perfect. Even with a hand in his face, I knew it (the key shot) was going in."

A 6-foot-6 wing who led UVa by hitting 41.7 percent of his 3-point attempts last season – the most by a freshman in the ACC since 2000 – Harris is the consummate gym rat, and it shows.

He loves making nice passes to cutting teammates, wrap-around bounce passes, no-look kick outs to the perimeter, and later fake the same moves while sinking a 13-footer. Harris is happy taking the mid-range jumpers, seemingly a lost art in basketball. It has become an effective weapon, especially since teams are trying to take away his perimeter game more than they did a year ago.

Harris knew this would happen, so he had to adjust. First, he worked over the summer on raising the arc of his perimeter shot and second, he improved his ballhandling, especially his first-step handle, so he could get past overzealous defenders.

So far, it's working. Harris is averaging 12.4 points, 3.8 rebounds, 1.6 assists and a steal a game for the Cavaliers, and that doesn't include intangibles such as always being in the right place offensively to allow the Wahoos to execute more smoothly, his poise, defense and growing leadership.

"You set your game up with that outside shot because it's a weapon," Virginia coach Tony Bennett said. "But he's actually got some quickness that he's not just your typical spot-up shooter or zone buster. He can get by you. He's worked that attack."

Harris has saved his better performances this season for the more challenging opponents. In wins vs. Michigan, at Oregon and at LSU and in a 3-point loss at Duke, Harris is averaging 15.1 points, 5.3 rebounds and two steals.

"He's really good," said Duke forward Ryan Kelly. "He's got a lot of moves; he can score a lot of ways. He's just a polished player."

Harris spent much of last season playing out of position after Mike Scott went down for the year with an injury. But this year, the Chelan, WA, native is playing his more natural position.

The Cavaliers' 14-2 start to the season is a reason, but that's only happened because the Cavaliers are executing their roles so well. At the top of the list is Harris, who just might be the most underrated player in the ACC.

Trip to Pacific Northwest has Special Meaning for Harris

by Jeff White

CHARLOTTESVILLE -- In its three games this season at 17,000-seat KeyArena, the Seattle University men's basketball team has averaged 3,272 fans.

If the crowd is larger than usual for the Redhawks' game there Wednesday night, UVa sophomore Joe Harris may deserve some of the credit. Seattle is a three-hour drive from Harris' hometown, but that may be as close as he ever gets to Chelan, Wash., for one of his college games. So the 6-6 swingman has no complaints about Virginia's upcoming road trip.

"I'm really excited to head back and just get the chance to play in front of all my family and friends," Harris said after a recent practice at John Paul Jones Arena.

The Cavaliers (8-1), who have yet to play a true road game this season, leave Friday for the Pacific Northwest. Virginia plays Sunday at Oregon (6-2). Three nights later, UVa will take on Seattle (2-6) at KeyArena.

Harris expects his mother to be at the Oregon game, as well as several other relatives, but work obligations will keep his father from attending. The elder Harris, also named Joe, is head coach at Chelan High School, where his son starred.

The Seattle game will be another matter. Harris' cheering section at KeyArena will include his parents and his three sisters, along with many others with ties to the family.

"I've heard a lot of people have gotten tickets already," Harris said.

So what's a kid from Chelan doing on the other side of the country, at a school more than 2,600 miles from his hometown? The attraction, first and foremost, was Tony Bennett, who's in his third season as UVa's coach.

Before coming to Virginia, Bennett spent six seasons at Washington State, the final three as head coach, and that's where he first heard about a promising young player in Chelan named Joe Harris.

"I got a letter from someone who sent me a newspaper clipping -- I wish I could remember who -- and said, 'This is a young man that you're going to want to take a look at. He's a coach's son. He's from a remote area but sounds like the kind of player you would like,'" Bennett recalled.

Harris was probably in the ninth or 10th grade then, Bennett said, and "I remember I got that article and said to my staff, 'Hey, here's a guy in the state, let's take a shot.' That was the initial introduction I had to him, from a Washington State alum or fan. I feel bad that I can't remember who it was. I'm sure there's probably 30 people that are claiming they sent me that letter. And then one of my assistants [at WSU] really liked him a lot. Ben Johnson saw Joe and thought he was a heck of a player."

After the 2008-09 season, Bennett left Pullman for Charlottesville, where he intensified his pursuit of Harris. In August 2009, Harris committed to UVa, and he enrolled there about a year later.

Chelan is a small high school, and Harris didn't regularly face elite competition during his career with the Goats. But he played AAU ball for a strong Seattle-based program -- Friends of Hoop -- and that experience accelerated his adjustment to Division I basketball. So did his pedigree as a coach's son who grew up around the game.

Ultimately, though, a "lot of it's what's inside a player," said Bennett, a coach's son himself.

"Joe adapted pretty quick. I remember the first couple practices, when we did some oneon-one stuff, and he had never seen quickness like Mustapha [Farrakhan's]. I remember he could barely get the ball out of his hands to get a shot off before Mustapha was blocking that thing. Maybe it would leave his hand, go six inches off his hand, and then: Boom! And then he's trying to guard Mustapha, and Mustapha's giving him windburn going by him so quick.

"But all good players, they adapt and they adjust and they figure out ways to use their strength. When you see guys adjust and be able to take their game and make it work, then you know you've got a real solid one, and Joe did that at a pretty early stage."

By the third game of his freshman season, Harris was a starter, and he scored 12 points that night at Stanford. Four days later, at the Maui Invitational, he had 19 points against Washington, and then he scored 24 in an ACC/Big Ten Challenge victory at Minnesota.

Injuries to Mike Scott and Will Sherrill forced Harris to play out of position at power forward for long stretches in 2010-11, but he still finished the season as the Cavaliers' third-leading scorer (10.4 ppg).

In his second season, he's second on the team in scoring, at 12.4 ppg, and he's showing there's more to his game than a deadly 3-point shot. Harris has made more 2-point field goals (22) than 3-pointers (13) this season, and he's shooting 90.6 from the line. He's even dunked twice, showing off athleticism honed in workouts with strength-and-conditioning coach Mike Curtis.

"Certainly he's a year older, more mature physically, and he really worked," Bennett said. "He played point guard for his dad in high school a lot, and so he does have some ball skills where he can put it on the floor, but he did really work hard this offseason on a pull-up, on trying to get into the lane and make some plays."

Harris said: "Coach gave us that list at the end of last season with things that we needed to work on, and on my list it had being able to get in the lane and finish, and hitting floaters, just finishing at the basket. So it was something I really focused on in the offseason."

During his first year at UVa, Harris said, he returned to Chelan for fall break, but "that was it. And then once school got out in May I went home."

Harris made it back to Chelan for fall break again this semester, and then he saw his parents in the U.S. Virgin Islands when the Wahoos played in the Paradise Jam on St. Thomas last month.

Did he get homesick after enrolling at UVa? "Definitely," Harris said. "Everybody goes through that, though. I know every freshman has the homesick woes, even if you're not playing a sport. It happens to all of us."

That's one reason why Bennett, like many coaches, tries to schedule games near the hometowns of his players whose families live far from the school. Bennett said he signed off on UVa's series with Oregon and Seattle -- each of which visited JPJ last season -partly because of Harris' roots in the Pacific Northwest.

Bennett still has friends in that part of the country, as does Ritchie McKay, UVa's associate head coach. McKay's wife, Julie, is from Seattle, and the family visits the city regularly. McKay is a graduate of Seattle Pacific and is a former assistant coach at his alma mater and at the University of Washington.

In the end, though, the trip "isn't a homecoming, really," Bennett said. "It's nice that Joe's going to get to play in front of some of his family and friends, but this is an opportunity to take your team on the road and play a team" --Oregon -- "that's projected high in its league and know that we'll have to play well to have a chance to win."

Jesperson Happy to Contribute in Reserve Role

by Jeff White

Е --

CHARLOTTESVILLE -- At some point in the first half, probably around the second media timeout, No. 2 will check in for the UVa men's basketball team Tuesday night at John Paul Jones Arena.

Whether Paul Jesperson plays in the second half will depend on how the ACC game between No. 16 Virginia (4-2, 17-3) and Clemson (3-3, 11-9) unfolds. "I fly by the seat of my pants in the second half," third-year coach coach Tony Bennett said with a smile Monday. "You see where we're at and what's going on."

That Jesperson, a freshman from Merrill, Wis., is even part of the Cavaliers' rotation at this stage of the season is something of a surprise. In November, Virginia's coaching staff and Jesperson agreed it would make sense for him to redshirt this season, and the 6-6, 197-pound swingman watched the first 11 games from the bench.

Then came the departures of 6-9 redshirt freshman James Johnson and 6-4 sophomore KT Harrell, each of whom left UVa shortly after the team returned Dec. 22 from a trip to the Pacific Northwest. Suddenly the Wahoos, with only eight scholarship players who had seen time, were severely undermanned, and Jesperson had a decision to make.

Before the Christmas break, Jesperson recalled Monday, the coaches raised the possibility of his playing this season, but they "didn't really get into detail with it, said it was up to me. And then when I got back into Charlottesville after break, I just went up to Coach and said, 'I'll take [the redshirt] off if you think that's ### best.' "

Before doing so, Jesperson said, he had talked to each of the team's seniors -- Mike Scott, Sammy Zeglinski and Assane Sene -- and "they thought I could help the team, too. So that was a big thing. Anything I can do to help those guys out, I will, because this is their last go-around."

He also sought the advice of his roommate and best friend at UVa, 6-5 freshman Malcolm Brogdon.

"I told Paul to do what the team needs him to do first, and then also to do what's best for him, because he wants to make sure he makes the right decision," Brogdon said Monday. "But if the team needs him, then he needs to play."

The 'Hoos needed him, and Jesperson embraced the opportunity.

"I think he's really stepped up like no one thought he would and showed that he can play with us this year," Brogdon said.

Jesperson made his college debut Dec. 27 and scored 5 points in 15 minutes against Maryland-Eastern Shore. He's the second perimeter player off the bench for UVa, after Brogdon, and his appearances since the UMES game have ranged in length from one minute (at LSU) to 14 minutes (at Georgia Tech). He scored a season-high 6 points against the Yellow Jackets.

"At times he's really given us a lift, and I think he's becoming more solid defensively," said Bennett, another native of Wisconsin. "That's the one thing that has been a pleasant surprise, and hopefully that'll continue. At times he's shown that he's a first-year that didn't have the advantage of playing those first 11 games he missed. But his minutes have been valuable. His feel [for the game] has showed, and I've been pleased with him. Certainly I think there's a lot more development to come, and we'll see the best of him as time goes on."

Jesperson said: "Those first couple games when I got in there, I had a lot of nerves and things seemed to be going pretty fast. But now I think I've adapted to it and things are coming along better. Defensively I think I'm doing better, so I think I've adapted well.

In UVa's 61-58 loss at Duke, Jesperson went backdoor and threw down an emphatic dunk, a display of athleticism that elicited a flood of text messages and phone calls from friends back in Wisconsin.

"A lot of people hit me up when I did that," Jesperson said with a smile. "They were surprised. It was fun to hear from some of those people."

At Merrill High School, where he was a two-time all-state performer, Jesperson became known for his 3-point shooting, not his dunking. He's only 3 for 15 from beyond the arc as a Cavalier, but that doesn't worry him.

"Those shots are going to fall," Jesperson said. "I'm a shooter. That's what I do. I've put in enough reps, so I'm confident they're going to fall."

In high school, he rarely came off the court, and if he missed a shot or turned the ball over, Jesperson knew he would soon have an opportunity to redeem himself. At UVa, he's averaging 7.7 minutes a game.

"It was kind of tough in the beginning, but it's just about accepting roles," Jesperson said. "Everyone has their own on the team. For some people it's going to be to come in and do things defensively. Some it's going to be to shoot. Mine's just to come in, hit shots when they're there and be good defensively. I'm going to support that role and hopefully keep working to get a bigger role."

Bennett said: "I think his minutes are very valuable for him and for us, now and as it unfolds for him down the road. He got to play against Georgia Tech a lot of minutes. He's gotten to play in big-time settings, tight games against NC State and Duke, and he's part of the rotation, so it's good for him."

The games themselves, Jesperson said, are infinitely more enjoyable as a participant.

"It was kind of hard just sitting there knowing that you weren't going to play with that redshirt on," he said. "But now when you come in here and know you're going to get in the game, it's a lot of fun."

WORTH NOTING: One of Clemson's starters, 6-9 junior Milton Jennings, did not make the trip to Charlottesville with the team. Jennings, a former Mc-Donald's All-American, has been suspended indefinitely for academic reasons. He's averaging 8.9 points and 5.4 rebounds this season.

Jennings is the No. 3 rebounder for a team that ranks eighth in the ACC in rebounding margin (plus-2.3). Virginia is third in the league, at plus-5.8, even after getting outrebounded 42-25 in a one-point win over NC State.

Richard Howell, a 6-8, 250-pound junior, led the Wolfpack with 18 rebounds Saturday night. No UVa player had more than 5 boards.

"You certainly have to be as good as you can be going to get the ball, blocking out, having a nose for it, and Howell, he looked like a man amongst boys, really, most of the game," Bennett said Monday on the ACC coaches' teleconferences.

There's more to rebounding than proper technique, Bennett added. "There's a point where you've got to do that, and then you've got to go pursue the ball and come up with it. That's where he outworked us ... We were just a half-step behind and not ready."

Mitchell Grows Into Larger Frontcourt Role

by Jeff White

CHARLOTTESVILLE -- Mike Scott won't be on the UVa men's basketball team forever, even if it might seem that way sometimes. And that's one reason this season is so important for the Cavaliers' young big men.

Scott, a fifth-year senior who's one of the ACC's premier power forwards, will be out of eligibility when the season ends. So will 7-0 center Assane Sene, who arrived at UVa in 2008, a year after Scott did. Virginia's frontcourt reserves this season are 6-8 sophomore Akil Mitchell, 6-9 redshirt freshman James Johnson and 6-8 freshman Darion Atkins, and they'll be expected to make significant contributions in 2012-13.

Mitchell may be ready to play a major role this season. Remember that skinny 17-year-old who enrolled at the University in June 2010, the Charlotte Christian School graduate who stood around 6-7 and was widely considered a mid-major prospect at best?

That player is a fading memory. With the 6-8 Scott sidelined for most of last season with an ankle injury, Mitchell was forced into the Wahoos' frontcourt rotation, and he proved he could contribute at the ACC level. He's now the first big man off the bench for Bennett and and says he feels infinitely more comfortable and confident than at this time last year.

"Definitely," Mitchell said after practice Tuesday. "Offense, defense, everything."

Bennett said: "He's improved physically. He's a lot stronger and heavier. He had a pretty good build on him as a freshman, but he really has physically become impressive from a year ago."

Mike Curtis, the team's strengthand-conditioning coach, has charted Mitchell's progress over the past 17 months.

"He's gone from a kid who was about 215 when he came in, and now he's at 230 consistently," Curtis said Tuesday. "But in addition to that, he's gained a tremendous amount of strength. Some of that's relative to him gaining body weight, but at the same time it's been functional mass, because that increased strength has allowed him to be more explosive and to feel more comfortable in banging and doing all those things in the post that I think the coaching staff has wanted him to do for the last year or so.

"But other than that, it's maturity. I think he's gotten to a place where he's happy where he is from a weight standpoint and an explosiveness standpoint, which has allowed him to embrace more the roles our coaches would like him to have."

As a Charlotte Christian senior, Mitchell attempted 141 shots from 3-point range. (He made 44 of them.) Virginia's coaches want him to operate closer to the basket and to focus on defense and rebounding and "the little things," Bennett told reporters last month during the ACC's media day in Mitchell's hometown.

That's where it starts for a developing big man such as Mitchell, Bennett said, and "if you're ready to contribute in other ways, then that will happen. But you better contribute in the most important ways that you know you can." Mitchell has refined some lowpost moves and is "becoming more consistent with his outside shot," Bennett said. "So as that stuff evolves, his game becomes more effective."

As a freshman, Mitchell averaged 2.4 points, 3.0 rebounds and 15.1 minutes. He closed his first season with a career-high eight boards against Miami, but he was 0 for 4 from the floor in that ACC tournament game. For the season he shot only 33.8 percent from the field and 51.7 percent from the line. Mitchell was 1 for 8 from beyond the 3-point arc.

Mitchell knows his shooting must improve, and he continues to put in extra time in the gym. Where he's most likely to have an impact this season, however, is on defense. He's one of the Cavaliers' most athletic players, and the long-armed Mitchell can guard players on the perimeter as well as in the paint.

"I've had guys like that in the past," Bennett said, "and that's really a nice luxury when you have a guy like that, just depending on matchups ... An athletic guy at 6-8 can make a difference."

Mitchell: "I've worked a lot with Coach Curtis on trying to get a little bit quicker and being able to defend multiple positions. I think I can do that."

Reflecting on his first season at UVa, Mitchell said, he recognizes that Scott's extended absence was "kind of a blessing in disguise for me." The leg injuries that 6-9 forward Will Sherrill, who was a senior, battled last season also meant more playing time for Mitchell and other Cavaliers.

"They had to play," Bennett said. "They had to fail. They had to succeed at times. They just kept growing."

Mitchell's growth continued in the offseason.

"He got stronger," Scott said last month, "and he's been working on his touch, working on his jump shot. Seems to me he's jumping higher."

Mitchell may add a few more pounds before his college career ends, Curtis said, "but I think 235 would probably be his ideal playing weight. As long as he's still explosive and displays that athleticism that all of us are kind of wowed by at times, that's going to be the biggest thing."

Mitchell and Atkins Look to Capitalize on Opportunity

by Jeff White

CHARLOTTESVILLE -- When Akil Mitchell saw the stat sheet from his first ACC start, one number stood out to him, and not in a good way.

In 25 minutes against Virginia Tech on Sunday night, Mitchell grabbed no defensive rebounds. His only rebound, in fact, came off a layup he missed in the second half of the Cavaliers' 47-45 loss to the Hokies at John Paul Jones Arena.

"I know me, personally, I was a little nervous and it took a little longer to settle in," Mitchell said.

The 6-8, 234-pound sophomore from Charlotte, N.C., expects more of himself, and his second ACC start went much better for Mitchell -- and for 19th-ranked Virginia, which pulled away from Boston College for a 66-49 victory late Thursday night at JPJ.

In only 22 minutes, Mitchell totaled 10 points, 5 rebounds, 2 assists and a blocked shot while shooting 4 of 7 from the floor and 2 for 2 from the line.

"He's always had that in him," said fifth-year senior Mike Scott, the Wahoos' other frontcourt starter.

The key, Mitchell said, was "just settling in and not really thinking about my offense, just letting it fly."

He impressed BC's second-year coach. In his postgame remarks, Steve Donahue singled out Mitchell, whose previous high in an ACC game was 6 points.

"I think Akil Mitchell played very well," Donahue said. "I thought he was really aggressive. I think they're a much better basketball team when he's attacking and not just being someone who's trying to pass the ball out. I think Akil is a really good basketball player."

Mitchell moved into the starting lineup after center Assane Sene, a 7-0 senior, suffered an ankle injury Jan. 19 against Georgia Tech. Sene underwent surgery the next day and isn't likely to play again before early March.

In his absence, UVa has only three post players: the 6-8 Scott, Mitchell and 6-8 freshman Darion Atkins. Scott averages 16.6 points and 8.4 rebounds; Mitchell, 3.7 and 4.0; and Atkins, 3.0 and 2.8 rebounds.

All three distinguished themselves against Boston College. Scott, an ACC-player-of-the-year candidate, led the 'Hoos with 18 points on 7-for-11 shooting from the floor. (He was 4 for 4 from the line on a night when UVa made all of its free throws.) Atkins came off the bench to contribute 6 points -- his high in an ACC game -- as well as 3 rebounds and a steal in 12 minutes.

Atkins' baseline jumper with 5:47 left, off a pass from junior point guard Jontel Evans, started a game-ending 16-3 run for the Cavaliers.

"I thought Darion and Akil were solid," Bennett said. "Darion bothered them defensively. They're both active. They finished. Obviously they had a size advantage, and so Akil took advantage of that early on and had some plays right in front of the rim. And then Darion was just active. I think that's Darion's greatest strength. He has to continue to learn to keep pursuing and be continuous, but they both gave us nice lifts."

Virginia's frontcourt remains a work in progress as it adjusts to life without Sene, but it performed markedly better against BC than versus Virginia Tech. Scott was held to 10 points Sunday night, and Atkins didn't score.

"We're still trying to mesh, and hopefully we're going to have better chemistry getting used to being without Assane," Bennett said. "Darion and Akil showed that today, so I thought we were better with our chemistry and had a better feel playing the way we're going to have to play for the majority of the year now."

UVa, the ACC's fifth-place team, plays Saturday night at the RBC Center in Raleigh, N.C. At 8 o'clock, in a game that ESPN2 will televise, Virginia (3-2, 16-3) meets NC State (4-2, 15-6). The Wolfpack, which lost Thursday night to No. 7 North Carolina, is in its first season under Mark Gottfried.

"It's a big game as far as our team," Mitchell said. "As far as me personally, I've got, like, 10 people coming to the game. It'll be good to see family and friends and to be back in North Carolina again."

Bennett's team is 6-2 away from JPJ this season. One of those losses was by two points to TCU on a neutral site in the U.S. Virgin Islands. The other was by three points to Duke at Cameron Indoor Stadium.

Credit the Cavaliers' rugged Pack Line defense for their success outside of Charlottesville.

Mitchell and Atkins Look to Capitalize on Opportunity

"Our defense travels," fifth-year senior guard Sammy Zeglinski said Thursday night. "The Pack defense kind of keeps us in a lot of games, and when we're hitting offensively, then we're going to be pretty tough to beat. Our defensive system is what travels well."

Virginia, which destroyed Georgia Tech 70-38 on Jan. 19, is the first ACC team in the shot-clock era to hold three conference opponents in a row to fewer than 50 points. The 'Hoos are allowing 50.1 points per game, the secondfewest in Division I.

Mike Scott Has Learned Leadership Skills For U.Va. On And Off The Court

by Norm Wood

When Mike Scott's name is announced Thursday night during Virginia's senior night festivities, his father expects Mike to offer little more than a polite wave and a warm smile.

He's sort of been raised that way rather, it's the persona Mike has adopted over the years. Yet, he could very well be the bigheaded type of player. After all, he's a legitimate Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year candidate, averaging 16.9 points and 8.1 rebounds per game while displaying a devastating fadeaway jumper that has led to a conference-best 57.3 shooting percentage from the floor.

While the lessons taught to him as the son of a retired 20-year veteran staff sergeant in the Marines have stayed with Mike, he also has had his share of profound changes in his college career that he has managed to use to instill a quiet self-confidence.

"I've had an up-and-down career," said Mike, a graduate of Deep Creek High in Chesapeake and Hargrave Military Academy who will lead No. 24 U.Va. on Thursday night against No. 22 Florida State (19-9 overall, 10-4 ACC). "I went through coach changes and fought an injury. Now, I've come back and I'm trying to make this season last."

Mike has worked his way back from a left ankle injury that robbed him of all but 10 games last season and required surgeries in December 2010 and January 2011 to completely remove loose cartilage and bone spurs. Despite his injury, he entered his fifth-year at U.Va. (21-7, 8-6) as a preseason first team all-ACC selection in the eyes of the media.

"It was a very humbling experience," he said of his recovery from the ankle injury, which didn't stop flaring up on a regular basis until a week before the regular season. "I was down on myself. I tried to be the best cheerleader my teammates could've had last year, and I tried to still be a leader out there."

Just as it is for most players, becoming a leader has been a journey. Michael Scott is pleased with his son's accomplishments on the basketball court, but the fact Mike finished up his degree in anthropology in December is what makes Michael prouder than anything.

"I told him he can go to U.Va., play ball, barely get through school and be one of those guys that at the end of the day that's still hunting and searching for his degree," said Michael. "I didn't want him to be one of those guys."

Always a social kid, Mike led the typical early years of a military brat, living in Dale City in northern Virginia and joining his dad on work trips to Quantico, where Michael trained young men to become battleready. Mike also lived in Oceanside, Calif., for a few years before coming to Chesapeake when he was in the fourth grade.

Michael said there were several episodes where Mike had to learn to harness his gift of gab during his freshman year at Deep Creek. When Mike's grades started to suffer, Michael had heard enough.

Michael made his son quit varsity sports until Mike could prove he could handle sports and academics together. Mike didn't play his first varsity boys basketball game until the end of his sophomore season, playing in Deep Creek's final two games. He went on to make a significant impact in his junior and senior seasons, averaging 23 points per game, before averaging 18.5 points per game at Hargrave.

"He had to learn it the hard way," Michael said. "I think it sunk in."

Though Mike figured out how to stay on a promising academic path, Michael is still a commanding presence in Mike's life. At every U.Va. home game, the one voice that can be heard every time Mike steps to the free-throw line is Michael's — "hit your free throws!"

As U.Va. coach Tony Bennett can attest, getting Mike to stick with a positive routine on the court never has been an issue.

"I'm very happy for Mike that after having to sit out last year you can see the maturity in his game and the improvements he's made," Bennett said. "The thing about Mike, too, I like is he'll be the first to say, 'I've got to improve in this area' or 'I didn't do well particularly in this situation.' So, he's still seeking for ways to help this team and improve."

Mike will be joined by his father, his mother, Lisa Mackall, and his two brothers, 10-year-old Derrick and 16-year-old Antonn, when he garners the senior night accolades. In Mike's opinion, all that will be left for him to accomplish as a college player will be a trip to the NCAA tournament, something that may await U.Va. this season for the first time since '06. Everything else, including the possible conference player of the year honors, will be gravy.

"I just feel people have had a lot of respect for me," Scott said. "I only played nine or 10 games last season, but people still knew how effective I can be. I didn't really feel any pressure coming into this year. I knew I could just play, and that's exactly what I've done."

Great Scott: No. 23 Works His Magic Again

by Jeff White

CHARLOTTESVILLE -- The Mike Scott Fan Club is adding new members with every passing game. Boston College coach Steve Donahue came on board last week. Clemson guard Tanner Smith joined Tuesday night after getting his first look of the season at Scott, a 6-8 power forward who has emerged as a leading candidate for ACC player of the year.

"As you saw tonight, the only thing he can't do is consistently make a half-court shot, and I think that's about it," Smith said at John Paul Jones Arena, where Scott led 16th-ranked Virginia to a 65-61 victory over Clemson.

"He's a great player, very active, unselfish, but demands the ball at big times, and he did that tonight."

Tigers coach Brad Brownell on Scott: "He is just a tremendous player. You do the best you can."

Clemson's best against Scott wasn't enough in this ACC game. The fifth-year senior from Chesapeake made 8 of 11 shots from the floor and 7 of 8 from the line to help the Cavaliers (5-2, 18-3) secure their third straight victory.

He finished with 23 points and 10 rebounds, both game highs, and matched his career high with 3 blocked shots. With 16.8 seconds left and Virginia leading 61-58, Scott was fouled and went to the line for a one-and-one. He hit both ends. After Smith's fourth 3-pointer pulled the Tigers to 63-61, Scott made two more foul shots with 6.8 seconds remaining to close out the scoring.

"I'm a confident free-throw ### shooter," Scott said.

"That makes a difference," thirdyear coach Tony Bennett said of Scott's prowess at the line. "It was significant. Probably the greatest joy as a coach is when you see a player mature on the floor, which he has, and everyone can see that. His game is good."

But Bennett said he's equally pleased by Scott's growth "off the court in terms of leadership, really caring and reaching out for his teammates. Not that he wasn't that way earlier, but it's really become a priority to him. And I can't tell you how enjoyable that is for me to see, and I'm just proud of him to see how he's responded. Even when we've had a few bumps in the road, coming back that next practice, you see it in his eyes, and certainly you see it on the floor."

UVa point guard Jontel Evans marveled at the way Scott "approaches each game. He's so focused mentally. Nobody's knocking him off his game. His focus is unbelievable this year."

There have been games this season when Scott has had to supply most of the Cavaliers' scoring. Not this one. Scott's classmate Sammy Zeglinski's roller-coaster ride on offense continued against Clemson (3-4, 11-10) -- the 6-1 guard made only 1 of 7 shots from 3-point range -- but sophomore Joe Harris tied with his ACC career high with 19 points.

"They worried about me so much, they forgot about Joe," Scott said.

Harris, a 6-6 swingman, missed only twice Tuesday night -- once from inside the arc and once from outside. His five 3-pointers tied his career high and helped Virginia shoot a blistering 55.8 percent from the floor.

"I was just taking the open shots when I had them," Harris said. "When I had room-and-rhythm looks, I was letting it fly."

The 'Hoos also got a significant lift from forward Akil Mitchell. In his fourth ACC start, the 6-8, 234-pound sophomore totaled 8 points and 7 rebounds in 35 minutes. Mitchell, who came in shooting 48.1 percent from the line, made 4 of 6 free throws, including both ends of a one-andone with 1:23 to play.

"It's all about my mind at this point," Mitchell said. "I think my mechanics are getting better. I just gotta go up to the line and shoot and not really think about it. I feel like I'm definitely getting better."

Three nights after they were outrebounded 42-25 in a one-point win at NC State, the Cavaliers redeemed themselves against a Clemson team missing 6-9 forward Milton Jennings (8.9 ppg, 5.4 rpg). Jennings was suspended indefinitely Monday for academic reasons. The 'Hoos collected 34 rebounds Tuesday night, to only 19 for the Tigers.

"NC State just punished us on the glass," Scott said. "We worked hard at it in practice and we watched film, and we just told ourselves that wasn't going to happen again. We just owed it to ourselves to be more aggressive on the boards."

Junior forward Devin Booker led Clemson with 16 points and Smith added 14. Senior point guard Andre Young, the Tigers' leading scorer, was held to 7 points. Young missed 9 of 12 shots from the floor, in no small part because of Evans' suffocating defense, especially in the second half.

"He's a great player," Evans said of Young. "Strong, physical, and he can really shoot the lights out. So I just wanted to try to pressure him and get him out of his comfort zone."

The Tigers shot 48 percent from the floor in the first half. Virginia's defense was markedly better after intermission. It needed to be, or the players would have felt the wrath of their head coach.

"He doesn't always seem like he could get that mad, but you don't really want to see the dark side of him," Harris said with a smile.

Bennett's halftime message was direct. "He got on us a little bit," Evans said. "He just told us that we [weren't] playing to our ability. That's our bread and butter, and he just wanted us to pick it up on the defensive end in the second half, and that's what we did."

Harris said: "We weren't playing Virginia basketball there in the first half, and [Bennett] was pretty disappointed with us. He got after us and really challenged us to play with more energy and passion, and I think we did that in the second half."

The Cavaliers have only eight healthy scholarship players, none taller than 6-8, and so that energy and passion must be present every time out if his team is to be successful, Bennett said.

"We walk a fine line, and we need everything," he said. "We're not the deepest. We can't afford to have many breakdowns. We have to play at a very high level on the defensive end to be in games and then to win games, and the guys have been doing that, and they responded in the second half.

"It's physically and mentally draining to play that hard for that long, but that's what's required, and there's no other options ... We can't assume we can walk in, just because we're at home or we're off to a good start, that we can just show up and beat people. We've got to be clicking at a high level. It's a humbling spot to be in, but it also keeps you ready."

NEXT UP: Virginia, the ACC's fourth-place team, meets No. 21 Florida State (5-1, 14-6) at 1 p.m. Saturday in Tallahassee. The Seminoles are the league's hottest team, having won five games in a row.

"They're athletic, they're long, and they got some good shooters," Scott said, "and they're very good defensively, so it's definitely going to be a battle."

UVa's players have Wednesday off, and the break is much-needed. The win over Clemson capped a three-games-in-six-nights stretch for the undermanned 'Hoos.

"I'm sleeping all day tomorrow after classes," a smiling Mitchell said Tuesday night. "I don't think anybody else is doing anything else, either."

Zeglinski said: "We're all a little sore. It's been a long stretch, and we're fortunate to come out of it 3-0, and going forward it's just going to get tougher against Florida State."

When Shots Stopped Falling, Virginia's Sammy Zeglinski Contributed Elsewhere

by Steve Yanda

CHARLOTTESVILLE — To a certain extent, Virginia guard Sammy Zeglinski's career will be defined by his three-point shooting ability. Such is the consequence of making more threepointers than all but four players in Cavaliers history.

But what happens when the shots suddenly stop falling? This was Zeglinski's situation two months ago, when the most grueling shooting slump of his career began. Hesitant to acknowledge it at first, Zeglinski grew to accept his circumstance and adjust his focus. And by doing so, he built on the other defining pillar of his time at Virginia: resilience.

When No. 24 Virginia (21-7, 8-6 ACC) hosts No. 22 Florida State (19-9, 10-4) on Thursday, Zeglinski will take the court at John Paul Jones Arena one final time. The fifth-year senior still would prefer all his shots fall, but he no longer ties his value to the team directly to his shooting percentage.

"Whenever you go through a slump, it's frustrating not being able to knock down shots and contribute offensively," Zeglinski said. "It was hard for me, being my senior year, to get through that. But just having such great teammates and such a great coaching staff to lean on really showed they believe in me.... It makes it easier to keep playing and not think about your shot as much and go into games thinking about other areas."

Zeglinski is shooting 27.5 percent from three-point range this season in ACC play. He'd experienced the highs and lows of shooting streaks before, but never had a rut extended as long as it did this winter.

When he confided in Coach Tony Bennett, as well as various other team officials and teammates past and present, they all told him the same thing: keep shooting.

"I really don't worry about his shooting; Sammy's a shooter," fifth-year senior forward Mike Scott said. "I'm only worried when he doesn't shoot, when he gets down on himself because he's not shooting and he's scared to shoot the ball because he thinks he's going to miss."

During a 60-48 loss Feb.14 at Clemson, Zeglinski made 1 of 5 three-pointers in the first half and then did not attempt a shot from behind the arc in the second. He finished with three points, and fans noticed. To that point, he had averaged 5.5 points per game in conference play. Zeglinski said some fans made their feelings known via postgame Twitter messages, not all of which were supportive.

But what the Cavaliers noticed were the other contributions Zeglinski made that night. He tallied six assists, four rebounds and two steals. In fact, Zeglinski has averaged 4.5 rebounds and 1.3 steals and has posted a 2-to-1 assist-toturnover ratio over the past six games. On an injury-depleted team with only three fully healthy guards, that production has been significant.

"There's a lot of people that will have something to say to you or try to beat you down," Zeglinski said. "Just having that mental toughness to persevere and know that you can impact the game in so many other ways, and your shot is something that will come around. I've made shots in the past, so I'm not really — it's not that I can't shoot. It's just something you have to get through."

Perseverance is a quality in which Zeglinski is well versed. He has suffered ankle, knee and hip injuries during his college career. He missed two games in November because of ankle problems. And yet no Virginia player has averaged more minutes per game this season than Zeglinski.

Of late, his shot has come around as well. Zeglinski has made 8 of 22 three-pointers (36.4 percent) over the past three games, during which he has averaged 11.7 points per contest.

Zeglinski "knows that his teammates and coaches, nobody ever doubted him," sophomore guard Joe Harris said. "We're always trying to instill confidence in him and let him know how great of a shooter we think he is."

Zeglinski Stays Buckled In On Roller-Coaster Ride

by Jeff White

CHARLOTTESVILLE -- His father, John, played football and baseball at Wake Forest. One brother, Zack, played football at Penn State, baseball at Temple and basketball at Hartford. Another brother, Joe, played hoops at Hartford.

Sammy Zeglinski's family members appreciate better than most people the peaks and valleys of athletic competition, and when the fifth-year senior from Philadelphia struggles the way he did Saturday against Florida State, they give him his space.

"They know not to talk to me after a game like that," Zeglinski, a starting guard for the UVa men's basketball team, said with a smile Monday at John Paul Jones Arena.

"They know I really don't like to talk to people after games. They give me my privacy, and then I'll give them a call later, around midnight or something, and talk to my dad, and he's always really supportive."

To say Zeglinski's college career has been a roller-coaster ride would be an understatement. The fans at John Paul Jones Arena cheered him wildly when he buried two late 3-pointers Jan. 26 against Boston College. The crowd at FSU's Donald L. Tucker jeered him mercilessly Saturday when he put up four airballs.

"Definitely highs and lows," Zeglinski said. "I think it builds character, so it's good for me."

He's had numerous memorable games -- remember the six 3-pointers he hit in College Park last season to lead Virginia past Maryland? -- but has had to battle ankle, knee and hip injuries along the way. And now he finds himself in a troubling slump at a time when the Wahoos, who are down to eight healthy scholarship players, desperately need production from Zeglinski.

In UVa's three ACC losses, he has gone 2 for 22 from the floor -- 1 for 16 from 3-point range. For the season, his shooting percentage has dipped to 37.1 and his scoring average to 8.7 points per game.

Zeglinski, who ranks fifth alltime at UVa in 3-pointers, with 182, has made only 12 of his past 45 attempts from beyond the arc. Still, you can expect to see No. 13 in the starting lineup again Wednesday night when 19thranked Virginia (4-3, 18-4) hosts ACC foe Wake Forest (2-7, 11-12) at JPJ.

On the ACC coaches' teleconference Monday, UVa's Tony Bennett was asked if he had considered starting freshman Malcolm Brogdon and bringing Zeglinski off the bench.

That is "not out of the realm," Bennett said, "but I don't think that's the answer."

UVa has five perimeter players -- Zeglinski, junior Jontel Evans, sophomore Joe Harris and freshmen Brogdon and Paul Jesperson -- and "they're all going to play," Bennett said, though Jesperson's role remains small.

"Whether you come off the bench or start, I think that's not as significant of a deal," Bennettt said. "It's just a matter of, again, playing and doing the right thing."

Zeglinski is second on the team in assists (54) and steals (31), and he's an important part of Virginia's Pack Line defense. He's generally been careful with the ball -- his 32 turnovers are the second-fewest among UVa starters -- and can run the offense when Evans is on the bench. It's no secret, though, that the 'Hoos need his outside shooting to ease the pressure on their best player, Zeglinski's classmate Mike Scott.

"Sam's a really experienced player, and he understands," said Harris, one of Zeglinski's roommates. "He knows when he plays well and when he doesn't. There's been all this talk about Sam having on games and off games and what not, and I just feel like it's the last thing we want to do, try to talk to him about it."

Bennett said he'll encourage Zeglinski "to keep impacting the game with his defense, with his decision-making, with his leadership, and then keep taking good shots. And if they're there, you gotta take 'em, and if you're not feeling it, then pass it up."

Thirty times in his college career, Zeglinski has made at least three 3-pointers in a game. In UVa's Jan. 28 win at NC State, he hit 4 of 5 from beyond the arc.

"I just gotta keep shooting the same shot and keep shooting with confidence," Zeglinski said. "Shooters go up and down. I don't know the reason for it, but you can't let it affect you or the team. Just gotta keep playing through it."

He heard the fans riding him in Tallahassee, Zeglinski said, but "you gotta be able to block them out and keep playing."

The Seminoles' long, athletic defenders bothered him more than the crowd did.

"Probably my shot was a little too quick and it was a little off balance," Zeglinski said. "They definitely did a good job of closing out. I probably could have shotfaked once or twice and got by them."

That's what he did in the final minute, driving the left baseline and then passing the ball out to Harris at the top of the key. Harris' 3-point attempt, which would have tied the game, barely missed, and FSU held on to win 58-55.

"Joe was the hot hand," Zeglinski said. "He was knocking down some shots in the second half. So I got by my guy, and I knew I probably could have got to the rim, but I felt someone on my back [and thought] maybe he would have been able to get a piece of it. I saw Joe out of the corner of my eye, and I knew he had a top-of-the-key look. More times than not he's going to make that shot, and the ball went in and out. It was halfway in."

In 2006-07, a UVa team led by point guard Sean Singletary -like Zeglinski a graduate of Penn Charter School in Philly -- advanced to the second round of the NCAA tournament. The 'Hoos haven't been back to the NCAAs since, but with eight regular-season games left, plus at least one in the ACC tournament, they're well-positioned to break through this year.

"That was obviously one of our main goals before the season even started," Zeglinski said, "so to have it in our grasp and in sight is exciting for us, but we know we still got a lot of work to do to get to that goal. And to move even forward after that, to have success in the NCAA tournament, we're going to have to tighten up some things and play a little bit better.

"You just keep pressing on, and hopefully we learned some things from the Florida State game -- I know I did -- and apply them [against Wake] and just try to keep pushing forward and getting better."
