The Virginia Tech track and field and cross country programs have become a model of consistency under Director of Track & Field and Cross Country Dave Cianelli since his hiring in 2001.

The Virginia Tech dynasty continued in 2023 with the men's and women's teams winning both ACC Indoor Track and Field Championship titles. The men's team picked up their third-straight team title with 110.5 points, and the women claimed their second-straight title with 93 points. Julia Fixsen became the programs first outdoor pole vault champion winning the NCAA Outdoor title.

2022 marked a historic year for the Hokies and saw some of the team's greatest accomplishments under Cianelli. Tech hosted the 2022 ACC Indoor Championships at Rector Field House, marking the first time ever in the ACC that a host school won both men's and women's titles, indoors or outdoors. The Hokies swept the men's and women's titles for the first time in school history. For his leadership over the two championship teams, Cianelli was voted both the Men's and Women's ACC Indoor Coach of the Year.

Success for Tech was not just limited to the conference level, as at the 2022 NCAA Indoor Championships Rachel Baxter (pole vault) and Lindsey Butler (800m) picked up the 18th and 19th NCAA titles in program history, all under Cianelli. The two national titles and eight other All-American performances on the women's side saw the Hokie women finish in sixth place at the national meet, the highest indoor finish for the women in program history and their second highest ever (2010, fifth outdoors).

In addition to picking up the NCAA pole vault title, Rachel Baxter also won her fourth-straight ACC title, becoming the first vaulter – men's or women's – to win the conference title four consecutive times. Lindsey Butler's NCAA title in the 800m capped a sensational run of form where she repeated as ACC champion in the event and anchored the distance medley relay team to ACC Championships and Rector Field House facility records. Cole Beck won the men's 200m at the ACC Championships and finished third in the 60m, earning Men's Track MVP for his performances.

Outdoors in 2022, Beck and fellow Blacksburg native Ben Fleming set the standard for Cianelli's Hokies. Fleming won the 3,000m steeplechase at the ACC Championships, marking the third consecutive time a Tech athlete has won the event. Beck finished as runner-up in both the 100m and 200m, adding the outdoor Men's Track MVP to his indoor honor. Beck also anchored the historic 4x100m relay team, as he joined with Kahleje Tillmon (who won the 200m over Beck), Torrence Walker, and Kennedy Harrison to win Virginia Tech's first ACC title in the event, break the school record three times with three sub-39 performances, and earn Tech's highest ever finish in the event at NCAAs.

Yet another of Cianelli's athletes picked up an ACC record, as Sara Killinen delivered the furthest hammer throw in conference history on the women's side. The Finn's mark of 71.02m (233' 0") made her the first woman ever in the ACC to throw the hammer past 71 meters and earned her fourth-place honors at the NCAA Outdoor Championships. With Killinen's record, Cianelli's athletes now hold the ACC hammer record on both the men's and women's sides, as Marcel Lomnický's mark of 75.84m (248' 10") from 2011 stands unbroken.

The Hokies' long run of excellence continued in 2021, as the Virginia Tech men's track and field team won the ACC indoor title by the largest margin of victory in the ACC's modern era. The Hokies tallied 136 team points, 55 more than any other team at the meet. Cianelli was awarded ACC Men's Indoor Coach of the Year and USTFCCA Men's Indoor Coach of the Year for the Southeast Region following the men's team's success.

Overall, under Cianelli, the Tech men's and women's track and field and cross country programs have combined to win 21 ACC team championships.

Following the 2020 collegiate season, several Hokies continued their training for the postponed 2020 Tokyo Olympics. Adding to the athletes Cianelli has guided towards Olympic qualification were Irena Gillarova '17 and freshman Barbora Malíková. Both athletes represented the Czech Republic in Tokyo, with Gillarova competing in the javelin throw and Malíková running the 400m. Hokie legend Marcel Lomnický competed in his third consecutive Olympic Games, throwing hammer for Slovakia.

The 2019 season certainly featured its share of great individual moments as well. Rachel Pocratsky and Deakin Volz both concluded their great careers under Cianelli, with Pocratsky earning a bronze medal in the 800-meter dash at the NCAA Indoor Championships and sweeping both the 800 and the 1,500 at the ACC Outdoor Championships for the second straight season. She departed with six ACC gold medals, while Volz swept the gold medal in the pole vault at both ACC meets this past season, giving him three for his career. Both Volz and Pocratsky earned All-America honors during both the indoor and outdoor seasons.

Younger student-athletes also flourished in 2019 under Cianelli's leadership. Jacory Patterson won gold medals in the 400 during both the indoor and outdoor seasons, and he set four individual school records during his freshman season. Bashir Mosavel-Lo won the gold medal in the 800 at the ACC Outdoor Championships and earned All-America honors at the NCAA meet, while Miles Green won a gold medal in the 400-meter hurdles at the ACC's outdoor meet.

The 2019 season continued the recent dominance of the track and field programs. In 2018, the program brought home its 17th event national title – and its first in running – when the distance medley relay team (Vincent Ciattei, Greg Chiles, Patrick Joseph and Neil Gourley) claimed the crown in convincing fashion at the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships held in College Station, Texas. All of the program's national titles have come under the direction of Cianelli.

In addition, in 2018, the men's and women's teams recorded top-15 finishes at both NCAA Championships, a rare occurrence in track and field. The national title helped the men's team finish fourth at the NCAA's indoor meet, which marked the program's best finish ever, and it also came in 15th at the outdoor meet behind Ciattei's silver medal in the 1,500 – the second of two silver medals for Ciattei in 2018. And for only the second time in program history, the women's team finished in the top 15 at both NCAA meets, coming in tied for 14th at the indoor meet and 10th at the outdoor meet. Both finishes marked the women's best since 2010.
