LINKS

Our Website may contain links to sites for which the present Policy is not valid and where the data protection practice may differ. These sites are not owned by us and we are not operating them. We recommend studying the data protection policies related to the sites of these third parties before supplying your personal data in such a site or using such a site, since we are not assuming liability for these and we are not checking the procedures with which the data are being collected, used, made accessible or handled in any other way in these sites.

SECURITY

In the Internet it is not possible to assure the full protection, security of the personal data, however we do everything to protect your personal data, therefore we are applying such technical and organisational security measures that try to protect the personal data against the accidental or deliberate manipulation, loss, destruction, unauthorised publishing respectively access. Despite the above – considering the Internet's characteristics – we can't guarantee that no unauthorised third party will have access to your personal information during the unauthorised intrusion.

THE DATA PROTECTION OFFICIAL

Pursuant to the GDPR's article 37 (1) the data manager is assigning a data protection official if the main activities of data manager involve data processing operations that – due to their characteristics, scope and/or objectives – require the substantial regular and systemic monitoring of the concerned parties; or the data manager's main activities include the handling of the special categories of personal data when considering the GDPR's articles 9 and 10.

The We Love Budapest is notifying every Concerned person that it does not handle data related to the GDPR's articles 9 and 10 and the data processor's main activity is covering the operation of the User's and the newsletter databases. These activities do not require the regular and considerable monitoring of the Concerned parties.

Considering all these the We Love Budapest as the data processor does not assign a data protection official however it is reviewing this decision every calendar year according to the all-time situation of the data processing.

REPORTING THE DATA PROTECTION INCIDENT, INFORMING THE CONCERNED PARTY

The We Love Budapest is reporting to the competent supervisory authority every data protection incident without unjustified delay, and if possible in maximum 72 hours after he got informed about the data protection incident except when the data protection incident is probably not involving risk regarding the natural persons' rights and liberties.

If the data protection incident is supposed to involve high risk regarding the natural persons' rights and liberties then the We Love Budapest is – without unjustified delay – notifying the Concerned parties about the data protection incident. In the notification given toward the Subject person the We Love Budapest is clearly and understandably presenting the characteristics of the data protection incident and tells at least the information and measures contained in the GDPR's article 34. (2).

The We Love Budapest is not obliged to notify the Concerned person about the data protection incident if one of the following conditions is met:

- the data processor has taken proper technical and organising protective measures and these measures were applied in regard of the data concerned with the data protection incident, with special regard to the measures that disable the people unauthorised to access the personal data to understand the data;
- after the data protection incident the data processor took measures that assure that the high risk related to the concerned party's rights and liberties does probably not occur in the future;
- the notification would require unreasonably efforts. In such cases the subject people will be informed through publicly announced information or there is need for similar measures that assure the similarly efficient notification of concerned parties.

RIGHTS OF THE SUBJECT PARTIES RELATED TO THE DATA PROCESSING, RESPECTIVELY LEGAL REMEDYING POSSIBILITIES

Pursuant to the GDPR's articles 12 – 22 the Subject person is entitled to

- the right to have access and the right to be informed pursuant to which the We Love Budapest is obliged to inform the Subject person about the rights he is entitled to according to the GDPR, the data protection incidents and the information contained in the GDPR's articles 13 and 15; and
- the right of carrying the data, and the right to correction and deletion, simultaneously the right to make objection.

As accordingly the data processor

- is informing the subject person about the processing of his personal data, and within this the Subject party's data handled by him respectively processed by the assigned by him or according to his orders, their source, the purpose of data processing, legal grounds, duration, name, address of the data processor and the activity related to the data processing, circumstances of the data protection incident, impacts and the measures taken to avoid it (if there was any) and – if the Subject person's data are being forwarded – the legal grounds and addressee of the data forwarding; and
- he is correcting, deleting or blocking the personal data supplied by the Subject person (the Subject person can himself delete his personal data in the was specified during the registration, and he can also ask for the deletion through the data processor's customer service).

Notification about the rights

In order to fulfil the above-mentioned the data processor takes measures in order to supply every announcement in a concise, clear, transparent, understandable and easily accessible format, especially in case of the information supplied for the children. The information shall be supplied in writing or other way – including the electronic way. If requested by the Subject person even oral announcement can be supplied provided that the Subject person's identity has been proved somehow. The data processor is assisting in the exertion of the Subject persons' rights. The data processor without unjustified delay de definitely in maximum one month from receiving the request is notifying the Subject person about the measures taken based on the request according to the GDPR's articles 15–22.

If required and taking into consideration the complexity of the request and number of requests, this deadline may be prolonged with two more months. The data processor is notifying the Subject person about the prolonging of the deadline in a month from receiving the request by specifying the reason of delay.

If such measures are not being taken, then without delay but in maximum one month from receiving the request the data processor is informing the Subject person about the reasons of not taking the measures, and about the fact that the Subject person can submit a complaint at a supervisory authority and may contact the court for legal remedy.

The data processor is assuring the information – related to the GDPR's article 13 – as well as the above information and measures free of charge. If the Subject person's request is clearly ungrounded or – especially to its repetitiveness – is excessive, the data processor - considering the administration expenses related to the requested information or notification or the measures – may ask for a reasonable fee or can refuse the request-based measures. The request is clearly ungrounded or the proving of its excessive characteristics is the task of the data processor.

Notification and the access to the personal data

At the moment of obtaining the personal data the data processor is supplying the Subject person with the information contained in the GDPR's article 13 (1) - (2). The Subject person is entitled to get feedback from the data processor on whether the processing of his personal data is in progress and if such data processing is in progress then he is entitled to have access to the personal data and the information contained in the GDPR's article 15 (1) - (2) (right of the subject person to have access).

The data processor is supplying the Subject person with the copy of the personal data that form the subject of data processing. The data processor may ask for a reasonable fee for the further copies requested by the Subject person based on the administrative cost. If the subject person has submitted the application electronically then the information shall be supplied in the widely used electronic format, except when the Subject person asks otherwise.

Right to transfer the data right

Pursuant to the GDPR's article 20 the Subject person is entitled to receive the related personal data supplied by him to the data supplier, in a widely used mechanically legible format, and he is also entitled to eventually forward these data to another data processor (right to carry the data).

Correction, deletion and objection

Regarding the future the Concerned person can any time – without justification - withdraw his consent related to data processing. Pursuant to the GDPR's articles 16-18 the Subject person is entitled to correction, deletion of the data and the restriction of the data processing.

As accordingly the Concerned person is entitled to ask the data processor - without unjustified delay – to delete the related personal data, and the data processor is obliged to delete the related personal data without unjustified delay if the personal data are no longer required for the purpose used for collection or processing; pursuant to the article 6 (19) of the GDPR the subject person withdraws his consent that formed the base of the data processing, and the data processing has no other legal base; the subject person is objecting against the data processing, and there is no primary legal reason for the data processing; the personal data were processed illegitimately; or if the personal data need to be deleted in order to meet the legal requirements stipulated in the EU or Hungarian law.

In addition – pursuant to the article 21 of the GDPR – the subject person is entitled to object against the processing of the personal data supplied by him. Thus the Subject person is entitled to object any time against the processing of his personal data due to reasons related to his condition.

Should the Subject person object then the data processor may not process the data any longer, except when the data processor proves that the data processing is justified by coercive legitimate reasons that are primary over the Subject person's interests, rights and liberties or that are related to the submitting, enforcing or protection of legal claims.

If the processing of the personal data takes place with the purpose of direct business gain (e.g. newsletter sending), the subject person is entitled to object against the processing of his personal data with this purpose

Right to legal remedy

The Subject person may send questions and notifications related to the above through the info@welovebudapest.com e-mail address and the following address of the We Love Budapest: 1052 Budapest, Bécsi utca 5. 1. em. 1.

During the exertion of the rights related to the processing of the personal data the Subject person may contact the National Data Protection and Liberty of Information Authority (NAIH) respectively to the Court for legal remedy according to the GDPR and the Info tv. if the request respectively notification sent to the data processor is being rejected, or the contents are not fulfilled.

In addition the subject person

- in order to enforce his/her rights related to the processing of the personal data,
- in order to get compensation for the damages caused by infringing the data security requirements or the illegal processing of the data, and
- because of the infringement of his personal rights in connection with the illegal processing of the data and regarding the infringement of the data security requirements, in order to ask for compensation can contact the court according to the contents of the GDPR's articles 77-82. The concerned people are entitled to all the rights, legal remedying and other claim enforcing possibilities specified in the law, the GDPR and the Info tv.

MODIFICATION OF THE POLICY

We are regularly review and modify the present Policy so that it complies with our objectives and the data protection law in force. When the present Policy gets modified then we are publishing the modified version in the Website.

We recommend to regularly review the present Policy to be updated about all the facts and information related to the processing of your personal data.
