Employee benefits packages are one of the biggest incentives you can offer your people. It is a challenge to get the right package in place and maintain momentum through your internal communications.

Total Reward Statements provide a full snapshot of the benefits you as an employer are investing in your people. Employees are increasingly defining what benefits matter to them, so an employee-centric approach that the breakdown of benefits provides in each statement is an effective tool to drive employee engagement.

Paydata can design and deliver clear, concise and engaging Total Reward Statements to demonstrate the full value of the reward package you offer.

Key benefits of using Total Reward Statements:

Increased employee engagement

Statements provide greater clarity around the benefits you provide as an employer and the true overall value of the reward package, resulting in a happier, more motivated workforce.

Demonstrate the value of non-financial benefits

Outline the breadth of the benefits on offer, which cover staff discounts, holiday entitlement and life assurance.

Improve the take-up of benefits on offer

Increase awareness of the potential benefits available to employees.
