The accuracy of the information contained in this document is reviewed by the University and may be verified by the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education.

2.1 Educational aims and objectives

The BA (Hons) Media Production programme aims to:

- To provide a comprehensive foundation in Media Production, based on QAA benchmarks and professional standards, for students wishing to pursue a career in the media production sector.
- To develop versatile, creative media practitioners while at the same time fostering the professionalism required in the field.
- Create opportunities for students to investigate and develop interrelationships within and between different areas of media production and foster an interdisciplinary approach to the subject.
- Engage students creatively, practically and intellectually in media production projects, critical reflection and written and oral debate and discussion.
- Cultivate a wide range of interpersonal, communication and problem-solving skills in the student, alongside encouraging systematic understanding of the field, proficiency in critical analysis and fostering the acquisition of transferable skills.
- Enable students to become independent, flexible learners who are responsive and proactive in dealing with future challenges and changes in the field and beyond.
- Meet local, national & international need for skills in media production.
- To promote access to further progression within higher education, research and professional development.

2.2 Relationship to other programmes and awards

The BA (Hons) Media Production programme sits within the cluster of programmes in the Arts and Media including Acting for Stage and Screen, Digital Arts, Journalism and Digital Marketing. It also has particularly strong links with the Journalism programme with some staff teaching across programmes.

The BA (Hons) Media Production programme is closely related to the BA (Hons) Journalism, but both remain as separate courses. Most of the modules will be shared across the courses, but due to the nature of the different disciplines, they will be taught with different slants to ensure students are given the information they need. For example, the video modules will see students taught key video production skills at L4, but additional seminar activities will allow the journalism students to produce factual content, but the media students will explore the depths of video content produced across the industry, including documentaries, short films, studio productions, music videos and advertising.

2.3 For Foundation Degrees, please list where the 60 credit work-related learning takes place. For apprenticeships an articulation of how the work based learning and academic content are organised with the award.

4. Distinctive features of the programme structure

- Where applicable, this section provides details on distinctive features such as:
 - where in the structure above a professional/placement year fits in and how it may affect progression
 - any restrictions regarding the availability of elective modules
 - where in the programme structure students must make a choice of pathway/route
- Additional considerations for apprenticeships:
 - how the delivery of the academic award fits in with the wider apprenticeship
 - the integration of the 'on the job' and 'off the job' training
 - how the academic award fits within the assessment of the apprenticeship

The distinctive features of the Media Production programme are;

- The programme offers a progression route for students with Level 3 qualifications including BTEC, A levels, and HE access courses. For example, it is a direct link for students studying at Peterborough College, the neighbouring educational institution, on the L3 Creative Media Practice programme, which features a Media Production pathway.
- It takes a multi-platform approach within a single programme to provide students with a broad understanding of the industry as a whole to increase their chances of future employment.
- The course focuses on commercial aspects of the industry to help students gain a wider knowledge of the sector as a whole, including how they can develop into a freelance journalist.
- The course offers a combination of theoretical, practical and studio-based skill enhancement.
- The course provides students an opportunity to undertake either a traditional dissertation route, or a major practical project, thus enabling them to better enhance their career credentials.
- Employability is evident in key modules, such as Employability (in Level 5) and Professional Development (in Level 6), where students will build a wider knowledge of their future career paths and undertake substantial work experience (three weeks). However, employability is built throughout the course, with key skills learned and developed to ensure students are work ready for their chosen future career opportunities.

- Students will follow the same path, relative to some options in Level 5, but their L6 is set to allow them autonomy throughout many of the modules to choose what they want to do and they will be encouraged to link this to their futures. We expect students by this point to have their understanding of media production and now to apply that into their chosen careers; particularly through the paired Media Production Portfolio modules (1 and 2) in the final year.

5. Support for students and their learning.

(For apprenticeships this should include details of how student learning is supported in the work place)

The timetable is consolidated to run over two days per week. This arrangement has worked well with employers for scheduling work patterns and fulfils our commitment to supporting the widening participation agenda and promoting employability within our cohorts. All delivery is designed to be face-to-face based on previous student and staff feedback; it is proposed that the practical elements of the course and peer engagement cannot be substituted with online learning for the proposed course.

While studying at UCP, students are provided with academic support through a variety of mechanisms. Regular tutorial sessions are built into all courses delivered at UCP to provide students with the opportunity to access specialist support from their lecturers. Sessions provide both group and one to one assessment support for students, allowing them to gain formative feedback on work and discuss their overall performance on the course and address any welfare concerns. Each tutorial scheme has learning partnership as its core theme, with the Level 4 tutorial scheme focussing on preparing to study and academic skills, Level 5 on developing skills and autonomy and Level 6 on progression and transferrable skills. Tutors have an open office policy and the HE Managers host a daily student surgery so that concerns can be addressed promptly.

UCP also offers an additional Study Excellence programme which students can access if further support is required in developing more generic academic and employability skills. A series of optional lunch-time sessions covers issues such as developing academic writing techniques, undertaking effective academic research to support undergraduate major project, and forming coherent and well-structured arguments.

To further underline the importance that UCP places on the development of these skills, the institution used the revalidation of the ARU provision to introduce a new approach to developing Academic Skills into each year of the revised courses, either as stand-alone modules or through embedding the content into other relevant modules. The module aims to formalise the topics delivered within the Study Excellence programme, providing students with academic credit for completing the modules. Commencing for all new entrants in 2019, modules at Level 4 will introduce and develop the underpinning skills required for higher education study, with each year that follows providing a more contextual focus on the academic skills required in the discipline. An example of a distinct module which has been developed to achieve this is the Academic and Professional Skills for Social Scientists which is a core module for all students on social science degrees.

UCP also offers additional English as an Additional Language (EAL) lunchtime sessions for students who need extra help to articulate their ideas effectively. In common with Study Excellence, these sessions are available to any student who wishes to improve their grades; not just those at the lower end of the grade profile. Statistical analysis has evidenced that students who habitually use UCP's EAL support from the start of their studies achieve a higher classification than those who decline the support.

Following a successful trial within the BA (Hons) Psychosocial Studies course, UCP has adopted an approach to offer peer support to students via a Vertical Mentoring Scheme. It was initially identified that mature students were less likely to participate in extracurricular activities due to external commitments, yet extracurricular activities enhance student experience and performance. The Vertical Mentoring Scheme was established to try to improve mature student engagement. Initially, Level 6 students mentored Level 4 students over lunch times. They were fully trained to scaffold support and provide effective mentoring. Subsequently, alumni mentors took over this role and provided help and guidance to Levels 4, 5 and 6. Qualitative feedback revealed improved engagement in activities on and off campus. Statistical analysis of grade profiles and NSS satisfaction highlighted substantial improvements. Due to its success, the scheme is being introduced into a variety of other undergraduate courses in 2019 and has been formally recognised as an area of focus within the UCP Teaching and Student Outcomes Strategy.

A dedicated Student Support Team ensures that there is easy access to a variety of services which can support students throughout their studies at UCP. The Student Support Officer and Student Advisor have ensured that the evolving needs of students in academic, pastoral and professional contexts can be supported. The team, working closely with the Student Officer, provides information and guidance on issues surrounding employability (explained further below), mental health, mitigations and extensions, and financial management, via a range of activities from one to one advice sessions to large scale organised events. Issues surrounding the support of students are carefully considered at a number of institutional committee meetings, with updates and statistical reporting (on elements such as correlations in late submissions, number of extensions etc.) being consistently provided at Student Engagement Learning and Teaching Committee and Academic Board.

To further enhance the institution's interaction with local industry representatives, a new Employer and Community Consultative Group was established in March 2019. The group, which has evolved from the HE Steering Group, will provide crucial input into how the curriculum will develop to ensure that UCP is producing employment-ready students, in subjects with recognised skills gaps in the local and regional economy. Initially chaired by the Chair of the UCP Council, the guidance provided by the group will be heard directly by the senior authority at UCP, ensuring that the voice of employers is carefully considered when planning new courses or initiatives.

10. Methods for evaluating and improving the quality and standards of teaching and learning.

The UCP has 25 years' experience of delivering HE courses. Where the delivery team are not appropriately qualified at the level they will be teaching, they have many years of previous professional experience in their specialist field and some work part time as consultants.

Each member of staff has consistently been graded in observations as good or better by the UCP quality department over the last 5 years. The department performs annual inspections for all subjects and also offers personal developmental coaches to improve and maintain teaching and learning standards. In addition, HE Managers at UCP conduct quality walk-ins during each semester to ensure consistent quality of provision.

Staff development is available at UCP at least three times a year and staff actively take part in training events (e.g. Ethics, Scholarly writing and use of new technologies). Each new member of staff at UCP undergoes training and induction by the HE Managers. HE Staff also participate in Learning Teaching and Assessment meetings once a month to share good practice.

UCP has Learning and Teaching lead for Higher Education to oversee the training needs of staff and to mentor and support applications for Higher Education Academy fellowship.

All the team attend the annual UCP HE Learning and Teaching Conference which focuses on developing pedagogical skills. In addition, module evaluation surveys are undertaken per semester, however the team regularly ask for feedback on module in class, via the student rep and at Student Engagement, Learning and Teaching meetings. This way modules can be constantly adapted to student feedback if appropriate.
