WHAT IS MICROCASA?

MICRO-credentials for life-long learning and employability:

Building Capacities for Developing Agile Educational Interventions in Southeast Asian Universities

VISION

MICROCASA is the first international project aimed at sharing the European experiences and building institutional capacities in Southeast Asia to co-create, promote and deliver short competence-oriented educational units leading to micro-credentials with the goal of solving various economic and social problems.

Focusing on different aspects of micro-credentialing, for instance course content co-creation, educational technology, transparent quality assurance, technologies for issuance and verification of digital micro-credentials, the project builds a comprehensive set of competences and technical capacities in Southeast Asian universities.

PROJECT PARTNERS/MEMBERS

The consortium is composed of 11 partners, including, for the European side, 3 European universities with complementary competences, the Italian NARIC Agency and the quality assurance expert company.

The representative group of 6 Southeast Asian university includes central agenda-setting national universities, as well as universities with regional development missions.
