

*As I sit alone this evening and my thoughts begin to roam,
To a cottage in far distance and a joy that waits me home.
There's a picture of an angel, Dearest far than any pearl,
Tis a picture of a baby, yes a blue eyed baby girl.
Oft I've sat and told her stories and she tried so hard to speak,
And I knew that she was smiling by the dimples in her cheeks.
She's worth more than all the riches in the sea or on the land,
Though she's just eight pounds of sweetness,
She is worth a million grand.
Oh! The gladness that she brought us, only God will ever know,
For we love each little finger and we love each little toe.
She can turn the clouds to sunshine,
She can drive away each care,
She's an angel sent from Heaven, just in answer to a prayer*
