

Conservation District Education Coordinator Dan Rhodes shown facilitating a program for the Bradford County Audubon Society on the topic of 'Bird-language'. Participants attending this program learned about many different vocalizations and behaviors facilitated by local songbirds that if observed carefully by a dedicated bird-watcher, can effectively predict the movement, activities and intent of different species of wildlife and people in the surrounding landscape.