

S.H.E. Gallery was founded by faithful and intuitive Mexican Artist, Dulce Maria Diaz. In 2014, while facing life challenges and illness, Diaz followed a series of repetitive dreams that led her to the study of the business for the arts specifically through The University of Chicago. Faithful to her dreams and with little to no resources or financial support she took a risk, worked through her obstacles and followed her dreams.

June, 2015 while completing her business for arts course, Diaz founded Sharing His Energy Gallery and organized her first art exhibition, Pave Way. By September, S.H.E. Gallery was incorporated as a 501(c)(3).

Diaz takes her life's personal turmoils, educates herself and helps others get involved. Utilizing her faith and intuition as solid foundation to heal and help heal, Diaz finds that through arts and education, we can better understand the true economics of humanity and fight for our right for real freedom, equality and true pursuit of happiness.

Sitting as Board of Directors are Diaz siblings: Dulce Maria Diaz, Cesar Diaz, Maria Diaz and Nick Diaz, Jr., Nick is a victim of gang violence. Although, he was left in a wheelchair, he chose not be handicapped. Nick has earned his degree in Visual Digital Communications and designs for our gallery.
