Remembered at Mass

We stand together in the mystery of Christ's death and resurrection. The following will be remembered during the Holy Eucharist: Ruth Shump and Betty Legg.

Deceased: Ruth Shump, mother of Carol Crescenti and Betty Legg, friend of the Janks Family. May they find peace and comfort in the embrace of the Lord and may their families find strength in the Lord and comfort and support from family and friends.

14TH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME: At the end, gratitude . . .

"In whatever house you enter, first say, 'peace to this household.'"

Luke 10: 1-12, 17-20

The president of one of the nation's leading theological schools and a former church pastor himself visited two pastors. Both ministers had lived long, productive lives and were now in the last stages of terminal illnesses. They all knew this would be the last time they would talk, so they took their time and chose their words carefully.

M. Craig Barnes, the president of Princeton Theological Seminary, recounts the conversation with his two senior colleagues in an essay in The Christian Century [January 4, 2019]:

"As I listened to these two pastors, the most striking thing to me wasn't their fearlessness at dying. Nor was I in awe of their amazingly sturdy faith, which was why they had so little to fear. The thing I keep thinking about is what both of them kept talking about at the end of their lives: gratitude.

"They were grateful for their families and for those who loved them through their days of faithfulness and failure over the years. They expressed gratitude to God for the grace of life. And they were grateful that they got to be pastors.

"Both of them had served several congregations over long ministries before becoming members of our seminary's board of trustees. In their later years they became very close friends. It was almost as though they knew they would be leaving life on earth together. When our board had dinner, they would often sit together and exchange stories from their ministries. I loved listening in.

"There was nothing particularly remarkable about these stories, except the part where holiness broke through. But they were told as a way of saying, Can you believe I got to see that? At the very end these two well-worn pastors were amazed that they got to be used in God's story with the congregations they served. That was their last sermon."

"This is how pastors spend their lives. And at the end, this is what they remember, and why they die with gratitude on their lips. They don't tell the stories of their successful capital campaigns or how many new members they found for the church. Nor are they particularly bothered by their ideas that failed badly and almost drove the congregation into the ditch. They believe in grace too much to care about what went well and what did not . . .

"This is what the old pastors remember, and why they are so grateful at the end of their lives. They got to spend their years functioning essentially as angels who keep saying, Behold! They knew the ground of the church was holy even when it was a holy mess . . .

"That's the real job description of the pastor: revealing the presence of God in the ordinary life of a flawed church. Good pastors give their lives to do it again and again."

That's what Jesus calls the seventy-two — and now all of us — to do: "to reveal the presence of God" in every ordinary life, and to do so not with a sense of superiority or self-righteousness but in a spirit of gratitude and humility that we might be the means for God to illuminate and bless the life of another. And, as we work to make a difference in our "neighbors'" lives, we make a difference in our own: the peace we work for embraces us and our own families, the justice we seek changes the way we see ourselves and others, the good we are able to make happen gives our lives a satisfying sense of meaning and purpose. We can bring such joy and peace to our own homes and neighborhoods in our own response to Jesus' call to work for God's harvest of reconciliation and justice in the part of the vineyard God has entrusted to us.

BOOK OF INTENTIONS

You are invited to include your prayer intentions in the Book of Intentions at the prayer station on the left as you enter the worship space. You can include the names of someone who has passed, someone who is ill, or a prayer for someone in need. We have renamed the book of Remembrance to be more inclusive of our prayer needs.

PASTOR'S CORNER

Summertime is a great time for vacations! Yes, it is. Just a gentle reminder, however, that the one thing that does not take vacations is "bills." They come in all the time. It is greatly appreciated if you would remember your sacrificial gift to St. John's when you are away. Thanks for your continued support!

God bless us all!

Fr. Rick

14TH SUNDAY ORDINARY TIME

July 7, 2019

"He said to them, 'The harvest is abundant, but the laborers are few...'"

(Luke 10:2)

As Catholics we are all called to serve. However, many of us are unsure of what our charisms or gifts from the Holy Spirit are to help build God's Church. Through prayer we are able to discern how God is calling us. The next time your pastor or fellow parishioner asks you to join a committee, ask God first, if that is what He wants you to do with your gifts.

NOTES FROM THE GARDEN

The strawberry harvest at St. John's was great! Many, many quarts of strawberries were delivered fresh to Elijah's Promise Soup Kitchen, SHIP soup kitchen in Somerville and the guests of the Interfaith Hospitality Network who were hosted by Spruce Run Lutheran and St. John's last week. Another 20 quarts have been harvested in the last few days. They have been frozen and will make delicious desserts for the soup kitchen in the coming months. The blueberry bushes are loaded with fruit. Plan to join us for the harvest! The first snap peas came in this week and many other vegetables are well on the way. Come out and see what is growing in the garden. Spend some quiet time and enjoy the gifts of God's earth.

Read at the beach, at the park or at your kitchen table, and then we will meet one evening a week to discuss and reflect. Created to Relate explores the natural gift women have for building and maintaining relationships. TAG SALE AND TRICKY TRAY LEADERS NEEDED

We are looking for volunteers to run both the Tag Sale and the Tricky Tray. Both of these are important fundraisers for St. John's.

The Tag Sale is usually the 3rd Weekend of September and runs along with the Califon Town Wide Tag Sale. They say one person's junk is another person's treasure and this is a great way for you to clean out your basement or garage and it would be sold at the tag sale. The proceeds would then go to St. John's for this fundraiser.

The Tricky Tray is usually held in October. The date can be selected with your availability in mind. This event has been lots of fun in the past. There is something for everyone of all ages to be won. There are door prizes and the kitchen will be open to purchase refreshments.

We need your help! We do have previous volunteers for both events who can guide you through the process and teams of parishioners who are always ready to help. Call the office 908-832-2513 or email sjn@ccsjn.org if you are interested or have any questions.

Would you like to volunteer?

Members of the same household as saints like Thomas? It might seem like such a stretch, especially when you think of how much saints accomplished for Christ. You might feel your life falls far short of such a high standard. But remember, as Thomas' own story tells us, the saints were not perfect. Look at the apostles, the "foundation" Paul says we were built upon: Peter misunderstood Jesus and denied him. All of them except John abandoned him. Thomas himself proclaimed he wouldn't believe Jesus had risen until he had probed the wounds with his own hands.

You are a member of God's household, and in this household, the saints are your big brothers and sisters.

"Jesus thank you for bringing me into your household of faith."

Reflections like this are found in The Word Among Us. Pick up a copy from the Narthex.

VOLUNTEERS FOR CLEANING

We are in need of volunteers to help with church cleaning, once every six weeks. One task is vacuuming and mopping narthex floor. We also need someone to vacuum the worship area. Contact the office if you want to see if this could fit into your schedule.

"The club"

They refer to themselves as "the club."

But no one wants to be a member. No one would seek to join. Most of the individuals in "the club" have little or nothing in common with the others.

Except for one thing: All are parents of children who were killed in school shootings.

In its December 10, 2018 cover story, TIME reported on this "invisible network of similar threads [that] connects hundreds of grieving parents across America. The connection is not formal. There is no organizational structure, no listserv, no roster of names. But their bond is strong enough that they often describe themselves — glibly but also in earnest — as 'the club.' There is only one criterion for membership: you sent a child to school one day and then never saw them again because of a bullet, leaving you with pain, loss and perhaps even other shattered children."

A parent of a child killed at Sandy Hook says, "It's a club you spend your whole life hoping you won't become a part of. But once you're in, you're in."

These parents reach out to one another in their efforts to heal and move on from this horrible experience. When Sandy Hook parents launched a foundation in honor of the kids killed there, parents and survivors of other school shootings flew to Connecticut to lend their support. Parents of children killed at Sandy Hook, Parkland, Santa Barbara, Columbine, Virginia Tech, and other places that have experienced such shootings text each other on the anniversaries of their children's deaths. They check in on each other and their families, offering solace during the first overwhelming waves of grief and the wisdom learned from their own painful experiences of trying to move on while struggling to keep marriage and family intact.

Some members of the "club" have found solace in speaking out and becoming activists for changes in gun laws, expanding access to mental health care and tightening school security; other parents give of their time to education programs in their communities' schools; other families seek to avoid the public debates that follow these tragedies and reclaim their privacy. "The club" supports them all.

This web of wounded souls spans America. They come from rural outposts and big cities, from Democratic strongholds and the reddest Republican states. They have different religions, income levels and ethnicities. They are not of one mind on what needs to be done about gun violence. What they share is the agony that comes with losing a child to gun violence in a place where that child was supposed to be safe.

Even family and friends "can never fully understand," says the parent of a student killed at Virginia Tech in 2007. "So you feel a special connection with other parents who have gone through this."

And, tragically, membership in "the club" continues to grow.

Sometimes we're the one "sent" by Jesus to offer support and consolation, and at other times, we're the ones needing to be rescued from the ditch — and there are some situations in which we are both the minister and the ministered to. These parents of the "club," who are both servants and served, mirror the seventy-two in today's Gospel. In sending them ahead, Jesus gives them no magical powers; he invests them with no special authority. They're to go about their work of humbly revealing God's love among them. They're to put aside their own needs to accept gratefully whatever hospitality is offered to them. They're to be God's agents for healing and reconciliation. In peace and humility, may we go forth and take on the "demons" of despair and "serpents" of fear that God's kingdom may be realized in our towns and homes.
