

So many parents want the benefit of martial arts for their kids but work too late

So many parents want the benefits of martial arts for their kids but they work until five or six in the evening and cannot make it home in time to pick up their child from daycare and then get them to karate class. Even if they could get off of work a little early and rush a couple times each week, when with their child doing homework and have some downtime before bed?

This is where Haven Haven Budokai comes in

We pick up your child directly from school, eliminating need for a daycare. We transport your child in one of our vehicles to our martial arts facility. The kids didn't wash their hands and have a snack. After snack time, everyone suits up into their karate uniform and attend one-hour martial arts class. Students didn't change out of their uniforms and It is followed by 30–45 minutes of supervised homework Time and mandatory reading time. The great news is that their homework is done (or at least gotten a good start), karate time is done and the rest of the evening is free for family time and recreation. The best news is that you know that they weren't just sitting around for three hours after school doing nothing.

So come in, take a free karate class on us and experience our professional Family environment.
