

Solair: Transit-oriented luxury high rise is first of its kind in Los Angeles

A new $160 million transit-oriented development named "Solair" is under construction in Los Angeles. A joint development between Koar Wilshire Western, LLC and the Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (Metro), the Solair luxury high-rise is the first for-sale condominium, mixed-use development in the Wilshire Center/Koreatown area since the Metro Line expanded in the year 2000. Slated for completion in December, 2008, the 22-story structure will create a skyline signature that contributes significantly to the long standing vision for a transit-oriented, urban lifestyle in Los Angeles. For more information, visit www.solairwilshire.com.