Invoice factoring is a financial transaction whereby a business sells its accounts receivable to a factoring company to free up their cash; usually to secure working capital to meet expenses, cover payroll or expand their sales.

Invoice Factoring

Invoice factoring lets you turn current, unpaid invoices, into cash. "Invoice financing", "accounts receivable financing" and "receivables financing" are all interchangeable terms used for factoring. The generous terms requested by your clients means that invoices can be outstanding for 30, 60, or 90 days before payment arrives.
