

WALK AT BOVENEY – 21 APRIL 2013

The Branch's walk at Boveney Lock (originally called Baddie Lock) is a popular event as it takes members along by one of the busiest, most attractive parts of the River Thames.

Walkers gather - Jackie Proctor with Petit Basset Griffon Vendéen Lily; and Deborah Wilson talks to June Creevy

← Brian Proctor joins Jackie, with Deborah and Pete Wilson

Walkers pass the 12th century chapel of St Mary Magdalene, which is mentioned in the Domesday Book. Built of chalk rubble and flint, this disused chapel, under renovation for many years now, was used by the bargemen and bargees who plied their trades on the Thames.

Near water? "Look at what those Bassets are getting up to!" Walks organiser, Rob Carter, makes sure Margaret & John Wilkins and Jackie Proctor don't miss anything.

Boveney Lock is situated on the Buckinghamshire bank opposite Windsor Racecourse and close to Eton Wick.

The return route across fields in glorious weather.

What better way to spend time with friends – and Bassets!
