

The Aquadrome, Rickmansworth 8 October 2017

RICKMANSWORTH AQUADROME is a 0.16 square miles public park and Local Nature Reserve in Hertfordshire.

There are two lakes, which were created by the extraction of gravel for the original Wembley Stadium; Batchworth Lake is used for water skiing and Bury Lake is used by Bury Lake Young Mariners for sailing and canoeing. The site has a diverse range of wildlife habitats.

The Aquadrome has open grassland; areas of woodland with trees such as oaks and willows; many birds including herons and moorhens; plenty of car parking; a café and a children's play area.
