Artist Statement

I feel that music can touch the very soul of people. It can provoke them to sing, dance, smile, heal, laugh and cry! I also believe that God is the author of music. God has called us to worship Him and music is an important form of worship.

In the music I sing, I strive to be the vessel of God's anointing, touching the hearts of those who listen. Whether they are new or older songs, I look for those songs that touch me, songs that lead me to worship the Father and honor Him. Often the old southern Gospel songs of my youth touch people more than others, and I therefore incorporate them into the music I sing.

God has given me a heart to minister to people's needs. I long to be the voice that lifts their eyes to the One who carries them through, the One who loves them unconditionally, the One who never fails. I strive to speak to their needs, but also to bring them to a place of Thanksgiving and Worship.
