Space Coast Apprenticeship Consortium Consultant Bryan Kamm to Speak at CECU Event in Orlando Tomorrow

For Immediate Release

Date: June 4, 2018

Founder and GAP Consultant of Kamm Consulting Group, LLC, Bryan Kamm, will be speaking to a national audience tomorrow at the 2018 CECU \(Career Education Colleges and University\) Annual Convention & Expo. The convention will take place at the Walt Disney Dolphin Resort.

Mr. Kamm will be speaking on a panel entitled "Competing Career Education Models: Apprenticeships, Boot Camps, OPMs, Industry Partnerships and Other Alternative Training Models - How to Keep Current Amidst the Disruption" scheduled at 11:00 am on June 5, 2018, in the Asia 2 conference room within the Conference Center at the hotel.

Mr. Kamm will be discussing the Space Coast Consortium Apprenticeship Initiative, which is an apprenticeship program currently being registered with the Florida Department of Education. The initiative is being led by OneWeb Satellites and RUAG Space and 11 other Aerospace, Aircraft, Aviation & Defense manufacturing companies in the Space Coast area. The apprenticeship program is a long-term solution proposed to address the critical workforce talent pipeline needs of Consortium member manufacturers located around the Cape Kennedy Space Center.

"Apprenticeship programs are frequently misunderstood in the US", says Mr. Kamm, but they are proven 'alternative training models' in other countries where global leaders in advanced manufacturing 'keep current amidst the disruption' in the highly automated and robotic advanced manufacturing environment of today."
