FREDERICK GOODING

As a member of the National Speakers Association, Frederick Gooding travels the country and world counseling, exhorting, and challenging Young Adults to think expansively and critically about their immediate environment.

As a former trial attorney, Frederick made the risky but necessary choice to transition from the courtroom to the classroom, and has also served as an adjunct professor, having taught collegiate courses at California State University, Northridge, the University of New Mexico and Georgetown University.

Gooding stimulates and promotes critical thinking in two ways; products, curriculum, testimonials and past and present clients may all be found online at the following two websites:

critically analyzes race in mainstream media

Material is shared in the following formats:

- Keynote Presentation
- Workshops
- Classroom Visits
- Seminars (whole or half-day)
- Trainings
- Consultations
- Retail and Resource Management

In the process, Gooding educates audiences not just with his presentation, but with his presence as a young, black, entrepreneurial male who is expert at his trade (boo-ya!).
