

I remember her saying:
"Just listen to your heart! "

As if that was so easy!
My heart was standing
on the other side of the road.

Trucks roaring by.
People walking by,
chatting.
Rain falling.

Sometimes I understood
a word or two,
but usually I just
saw her frightened face.

One day,
it was a pretty hot day
the air was dense from all the exhaust.

She was wearing a nice
Light blue summer dress.
She was standing
on the other side of the road
jelling something over at me,
but it was really unclear.

It started raining

Then a car stopped,
A cabriolet, a red cabriolet.
The guy in the car started talking to her

and I saw
how she was a little
uncertain at first,
but soon
they started chatting
away.

Of course
I
could not understand a word
of what they were talking,
but
I could see how she started smiling.

She was smiling for the first time
in a very long time.
I saw him smile
she smiled back at him.

I watched them
from the other side of the road.

Cars zooming by,
people walking by,
chatting.
Rain falling

He got out of his cabriolet with a yellow umbrella and he went around the car
to protect her from the rain.

I remember he was Whispering something
In her. ear
she was
bursting into laughter.

She was so beautiful,
when she was so happy.
I had forgotten,
how beautiful she was
When she was happy.

She burst into laughter
then he opened the car door
she sat down.

They were still talking
she was still laughing.

She was holding the Yellow umbrella
he did not seem to mind
the rain at all.

A big bus drove by
when it had passed
the cabriolet was gone
and so was she.

I was standing there
drenched from the rain.
Cars were zooming by,
People were walking by,
chatting
Rain falling

People say you can't live without a heart.

It's a lie.
