

The story is about a woman, who lives in a house on a hill. She does not leave the house at all, because she works all the time. One night she sneaks out and discovers all the beauty of the flowers and she likes to chase bunnies, feel the wind and count the stars. She is really happy. So she starts doing this every night. The seasons change and it gets really cold. She can't let go and is still sneaking out every night, because she is so stubborn. One night in the winter, she falls asleep. She starts dreaming. Her dreams are very beautiful, so she decides to stay curled up in her dreams. When spring comes her hair turns into a river and her tears turn into milk. Her body turns into a big stone and on top of it there sits a little bunny wondering where his friend went.