Riding Weather is Here!

The last few days have been perfect for riding. I have been out on the bike for rides and am getting back into the thick of traffic. Keep your head on a swivel on your bike and in your car. You never know where a vehicle will come at you – from the back, side or from the front.

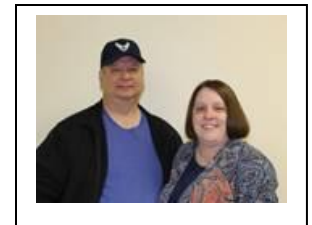

When the weather is warm and sunny get out on your bike and enjoy the view from the back of the bike or trike. Travel through the hills and valleys that are scattered around this beautiful state of Ohio.

If a member has been on an interesting ride and would be interested in taking some members on that ride bring it up at a gathering and we will add it to the Ride Calendar. As members we love having fun, eating good food and, of course, eating our favorite – Ice Cream!

MEMBERSHIP ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM

MEMBERSHIP

I am used to hearing the term "JAM" a lot, meaning "JUST A MEMBER". A volunteer leader at the end of his/her appointment would say "I am going to be Just a Member". I find the term to be distasteful, because it indicates they are less than someone else. We need to never forget the "MEMBERS" are the building blocks of GWRRA. Chapters and Districts organized, but without members we don't need leaders, without members we are like an empty bus going down the road. The schedule or destination does not matter because there is no one to arrive and get off the bus. Some members get the feeling that they matter less than a leader. That is so far from the truth; "ALL" members are important and make a real difference in the GWRRA organization. Each chapter member serves the Chapter thru attendance, participation, and support to the other chapter members. So, please always remember that "YOU" the member is the "MOST" important asset the GWRRA and your Chapter has. Without you we are

NO MEMBERS---NO CHAPTER---NO GWRRA

PLEASE REMEMBER THE FOLLOWING MEMBERS

Bill Ford: going thru cancer treatment and doing great..

Gladys Carter: Severe health issues....

Robert Vogel: His father's health issues....

Evelyn DeLong and Family.....

Also the members that have lost family members and members that have had to have medical testing and treatments...

Should I have missed someone "PLEASE" LET ME KNOW.....

MOTORIST AWARENESS DIVISION
Karen Ballou

Share the road with motorcycles  MAY (AND EVERYDAY) IS MOTORCYCLE SAFETY MONTH

In Ohio during 2016, there were 4,234 motorcycle accidents. The full breakdown of this number into fatalities, single bike, multi-vehicle, etc. is still being worked up by the state, but overall this number is another year of a downward trend in accident numbers. Even small numbers are welcomed.

An increase in awareness of motorcycles through PSA, digital road signs, banners and yard signs have all helped. Additionally, it seems as if more people who purchase motorcycles are being encouraged and are taking rider training courses. Many motorcycle dealers are now offering basic rider courses with the sale of a bike, and the courses from the State of Ohio are quickly filled every summer. Let's hope this trend continues.

Throughout May, the National Safety Council will encourage motorists to share the road with motorcyclists and be extra alert when they are nearby.

NSC offers these tips for motorists and motorcyclists alike:

Motorists:

- Allow greater following distance behind a motorcycle.
- Be extra cautious in intersections. Most crashes occur when a motorist fails to see a motorcyclist and turns left in front of a motorcycle.
- Give a motorcycle the full lane width – never try to share a lane.

Motorcyclists:

- Avoid riding in poor weather conditions.
  - Position your motorcycle in the lane where you are out of a motorist's blind spot.
  - Use turn signals for every turn or lane change.
- (Continued on next page)

While May is Motorcycle Safety Awareness Month for everyone, members of GWRRA and many, many responsible riders treat every month and day of the year as Motorcycle Safety Month. Our lives depend on it.

RIDER EDUCATION DIVISION

Gary Ballou

This month's article is submitted by Amanda Stufflebeam, assistant Rider Educator

So you carry a first aid kit in your motorcycle, that is awesome, but is it a generic kit? I ask you to think about what you have in your kit. Does it have motorcycle specific items? What would you add to your kit?

Dick Oder GWRRA #84047 • Lima, Ohio asked riders to give him suggestions for a motorcycle specific kit and here are the suggestions and the kit he designed. This article originally appeared in WING World Magazine in 2012 and I did a little collaborating.

Surgical Gloves, Because of the many infectious diseases found out there in trauma land, always glove up before treating anyone in an emergency situation. Gloves are easy to tear while donning, especially while you're nervous, so always carry extras. Surgical gloves have limited shelf life, so replace them periodically. I suggest each Chapter buy a box or two for its participants and replace them annually. Most men require the large size; most women require a small or medium size.

Pocket Mask, You should avoid mouth-to-mouth CPR if possible. Pocket masks are the answer. They're compact, light, and provide excellent ventilation while eliminating direct mouth-to-mouth contact.

Triangular Bandages, Great for immobilizing arm and shoulder injuries.... Most first aid kits supply one or two, but they may be small and prove inadequate for your needs depending on the size of your patient and the nature of the injury. Carry several.

Cold Pack Compress, Cold packs help reduce the swelling and discomfort associated with many injuries, especially those involving joints. They're activated by striking the pack with a fist, mixing the bag's contents—ammonium nitrate and water. The resulting chemical reaction causes the cold pack to chill immediately and remain cold for 30 to 40 minutes. If direct application of a cold pack is too cold for comfort, simply wrap it in a triangular bandage and reapply.

On a personal note, a cold pack enabled me to get home on the Wing one day after a wasp evaded my windshield and glasses and stung me next to my eye. I was able to reduce the swelling around the eye to the point my vision wasn't affected, allowing me to continue on.

Trauma Dressings, The thin 4 by 4-inch dressings found in most kits won't be much value if you encounter a major bleeder. Instead you'll need larger, thicker pressure trauma dressings. Disposable sanitary napkins are cheap, sterile, and highly absorbent, and do the job well.

Kling®, You will need something to secure your pressure dressings in place. Kling is a good answer. It comes in rolls of from one to six inches in width. It clings to itself to secure dressings in place by unrolling it around the injury site. Taping the end may not be necessary; I do anyway for peace of mind.

Medical Tape, Available in one or two-inch widths; the two-inch tape can be torn lengthwise if desired.

Here's a trick of the trade: peel back half an inch from the end of the roll and then fold the end onto itself, sticky side to sticky side. This creates a small pull tab that's easy to grasp even with gloves on. (Try unrolling a new roll of tape some time when you're nervous and wearing gloves and you'll see why I mention it.)

Bottled Water, While not sterile, it can be used to flush an eye or an abrasion. It is also useful for countering dehydration.

A Small Pen Flashlight, Helpful in dim light conditions and close-up illumination of injuries.

Alcohol Wipes, Quick disinfectant protection as needed.

Tweezers, Useful for delicate work hindered by gloved hands. So much for what you should carry in your well-stocked kit, now let's address a few items that may be taking up valuable space that are of little or no value and may actually complicate the job of the emergency room staff you should eventually see.

Elastic Wraps and Bandages, Though many people like to carry them, elastic wraps may cause complications if improperly applied. As with any bandage, make sure you don't over-tighten and impair circulation.

Burn Cream, I would not apply this to anyone else but when you accidentally get a burn it is nice to have.

His disclaimer and mine. The information should not be construed as representative of GWRRA or any established first-aid organization's curriculum. These are just suggestions. All of the suggested items can be purchased at reasonable cost at a local pharmacy or through any emergency medical services (EMS) supplier.

Have fun, but be safe. “Dress for the Slide, Not for the Ride”
