Angelo is a very loving boy but he does not like to feel blocked in. Apparently he spent the first few months of his life in a cage before coming to us. His previous female caregiver was not very nice to him. He is actually very loving towards females but you must go a little slower than normal. As time goes by he seems to forgive his previous owner's treatment and is turning into a great kitty. He would love for someone to show him what a loving owner can be.
