

Craniofacial Australia Newsletter

September 16th-19th is the date for the 18th Congress of the International Society of Craniofacial Surgery in Paris, the birthplace of Craniofacial Surgery. The Society was founded more than 20 years ago under the Presidency of Mr. Paul Tessier.

Founder and former Head of the Australian Craniofacial Unit, Professor David, will be attending the meeting in order to receive the Tessier Medal, for his long service and contribution to the development of Craniofacial surgery in the world. This comes at a time when Professor David was honoured as the 2018 South Australian of the Year. Professor David has been requested to share his vision on the delivery of health care to those with Craniofacial deformities on a global basis, when he receives the Tessier Medal.

Andrea Ogier - Finding my Voice

In 2010 Andrea Ogier decided to tell us her story, an incredibly personal journey of her life and how she overcame cruelty and adversity to find happiness. Here is a small extract of this, 9 years later, to remind us all of how we can achieve anything if we put our mind to it.

I was born in the early 1940's, the middle child of three with a severe palate deformity with no roof to my mouth which meant that I was never able to speak. In those days there was no hospital support and, I was not capable of sucking like a normal baby, I had to be fed either by a tube through my nose to my stomach or intravenously. My mother found it very difficult to cope alone as my father was away at the war.

The first four years of my life were spent either in and out of the Children's Hospital or with an Aunt. When I turned five the question of schooling arose. I didn't qualify as a handicapped child so was sent to a mainstream school which began a nightmare for me. There were groups of children (mainly boys) who waited for me every morning at the gate to tease and taunt me. They gathered at morning recess and lunchtime too, following me and making fun of my inability to speak or to eat properly. Each time I drank or ate, some of it would come out of my nose. I had no roof in my mouth to control this so you can imagine the torments of cruel kids when this happened.

You can discover the rest of Andrea's story by purchasing her book or booking Andrea for your next speaking engagement. Andrea is an Ambassador for Craniofacial Australia and is a much sought after corporate speaker. If you would like to book Andrea for your next event please contact us here at the Foundation on (08) 8267 4128. Copies of Andrea's book are available for purchase through our office.

Amanda Osborn, Research Officer, School of Psychology, University of Adelaide, will be attending to present the findings on behalf of the Metopic Synostosis research team. The topic will be “NEUROPSYCHOLOGICAL, BEHAVIOURAL AND PSYCHOLOGICAL FUNCTIONING OF CHILDREN AND ADULTS WITH UNOPERATED METOPIC SYNOSTOSIS” and she will give a short talk on this. This important research was funded by Major Sponsor APEX and the Australian Cranio-Maxillo Facial Foundation.

Training for World Record Attempt

Jordan “Biggie” Steffens is at it again. This man mountain is in training for our next event, a World Record attempt of pulling an A380 plane to raise funds for Craniofacial Australia.

Unlike most of us who train at the gym for any endurance events, Jordan can be found pulling trains, competing in Medieval Fares or pulling Kenworth trucks.

On Sunday May 26th, Jordan will be attempting to pull the SteamRanger train to help them raise funds for restoration works. However, for us it is another training session to ready him for our challenge later this year. Stay tuned to our social media pages for updates.

Matthew who has a degree in creative writing is a welcome addition to the marketing team and we look forward to his input in cataloging our vast media files onto video and social media channels.

Look who dropped in to see us

Cruz Gorman loves to drop in and visit when he is here in Adelaide and this month was no different. Bec and Cruz were happy to update us on his progress and Cruz stole the morning with his delightful stories about what he has been doing at school. Cruz tells us he would like to be a policeman one day and had even written a story to share with us. We reminded Cruz of his trip to the zoo and showed him the photo taken back then. The challenge, set by Cruz, was to recreate it for us and he did just that. You can see Cruz is clever at ensuring the details were there. See you again soon.

Refined Real Estate Platinum Sponsor

What is the Refined difference?

It's not about selling the best houses, it's about being the best with the houses we sell.

Many people mistakenly believe that Refined is a brand that only sells and leases high end property. When we ask them why, we hear a myriad of responses including everything from; the way the office looks, our logo, our doormats that we place in front of every home we sell, the way we dress, our events...and the list goes on. All the above is true, however, it's not because we think we're so special. We put a lot of effort into our brand, our presentation and our marketing to make the houses we sell look exceptional and to give the clients the best possible experience and result. The real points that make Refined special are as follows:

Preparation: Our slogan says "It's the little things that mean a lot", what we have discovered is that by putting extra effort into preparing the home and getting everything just right, we are able to put ourselves in a position to optimize the result. In other words, it may take an extra week or so to do all the little fix ups and improvements, but that preparation is frequently rewarded with a far quicker and higher sales result.

Focus: "Jack of all trades but master of none." It's very important that the agent is completely immersed and dedicated to being the best they can be for each and every client they take on. This takes not only experienced skillset but also being the best and highest version of yourself at any given moment. At Refined we make sure that we don't take on too many listings as this would dilute our focus and not allow us to achieve the best result.

Team Approach: We always combine our strengths and resources to get you the best result. At Refined we have architects, lawyers, builders, economists and marketing professionals who all contribute to creating a better outcome for you. We also collaborate well with other agencies to allow you to achieve the best result.

We Are Part Of Your Profit, Not Your Cost: 'The Refined Difference' can be summed up by the results we achieve - time and time again. For many satisfied repeat business and referral clients, it is a great agent that adds more value than their cost, making them a great part of any winning team in a real estate transaction.

Having just been inducted into the REISA Hall of Fame: Refined is recognised as one of the most awarded agencies in South Australia with a proven reputation for excellence. At Refined we are acutely aware that it is what you give - not how much you make that is most important. As major sponsors and contributors to numerous charities, we as individuals and as an agency assist in the creation of hundreds of thousands of dollars for worthwhile South Australian organisations. To us, Refined means that we are in the process of constantly improving and refining ourselves and our processes so we can better serve our clients. We believe we are better this year than the last and we strive to be better next year than the previous.
