

Outsourced Head of L&D

Similar to a NED (non executive director) role, having an outsourced head of L&D can be useful for smaller Learning and Development teams who don't have an internal head of learning or a learning Director, or for teams that just want the benefit of regular external insight.

We provide an outsourced role for organisations, providing the following services:

- Attending regular senior team meetings
- Helping develop a learning strategy fully aligned to the business priorities
- Implementing a process for design and delivery
- Challenging your thinking and current ways of working
- Advising on global expansion of L&D services
- Idea generation
- Preparing you for learning award entry
- Utilising own network where necessary/useful
- Plus any specific needs you may have
