The Grandeur of God

About a century ago, the Jesuit poet and priest Gerard Manley Hopkins wrote a poem that begins: "The world is charged with the grandeur of God."

It's a beautiful statement of the miraculous— and it's more surprising because Hopkins himself suffered from depression. His life was a struggle, full of difficulties and disappointments. It was not always easy for him to see God's goodness in the world around him. It can be that way, at times, for all of us. But there is no better time to look for God's grandeur and to discover it than now, the beginning of a new year.

You see that in all the news stories today they mention the first baby born in the new year. But you could also see it last night, in the hundreds of thousands of people who huddled together in Times Square, shivering in the cold, waiting for that ball to drop, waiting for history to be made, and waiting for a new number to be added to the calendar.

It's there in every horn that was blown, every explosion of confetti. It's loud and crazy—but it is our way of saying "We are alive. Despite all that has happened to us, and all that we have done wrong, and all that has gone right..." And I would add: We are able to do that because "the world is charged with the grandeur of God."

We need to be reminded of that I think. It's easy to miss—especially given the times we live in. Foreclosures, unemployment, recession, growing debt, the bloody battles underway in Israel. It seems hopeless. But then we look at the feast we celebrate today and find hope.

Mary was a woman who herself understood what it was like to live in an uncertain and frightening time. The Mother of God was forced, days after giving birth, to become a refugee to save the life of her child. Yet she never abandoned hope. She never lost trust in God. Her trust in God and her faith in the future is one reason why we honor Mary today, the first day of the new year.

But consider another reason, too: In this early moment, the brand new year—like the Blessed Mother—is spotless. The future is a clean page, an empty calendar, waiting to be written on. Everything is possible. And that is Mary. She is possibility. She is Creation begun anew—the New Eve. With Mary, and the birth of her son, the coming of God as man, we get a fresh start. It begins this day with a reminder of how it began 20 centuries ago, when the grandeur of God was made known in the unlikely of places, a manger. The Gospel reading today speaks of the first people to discover it: the shepherds who hurried to the stable. As Luke tells us, they left from that encounter with Jesus to "make known the message that had been told them about this child."

Peace, Fr. Jim

El Salvador ha crecido en familia

El evangelio de hoy, en su conjunto, es toda una historia familiar, con la que Lucas cierra lo que se conoce como el "evangelio de la infancia" (aunque queda el último episodio en Jerusalén). La intencionalidad de esta lectura para la liturgia de hoy es manifiesta; quizás por lo que se afirma de que cumplieron "lo que prescribe la ley del Señor". Es una familia que quiere ser fiel a Dios, y en aquella mentalidad la fidelidad a Dios se manifestaba precisamente en el cumplimiento de todo aquello que exigía la ley del Señor. De hecho, el texto podría reducirse a los primeros versículos y al final de este conjunto (vv. 22-23"39-40).

Entonces quedarían descartados, a todos los efectos, el episodio de Simeón y de Ana, en el momento de la purificación de la madre y de la presentación de Jesús al Señor en el templo. Por lo tanto habría que incidir en el sentido de la vida familiar, de una familia judía, piadosa, probablemente de educación farisea, que era lo común, que no se sale de la norma tradicional y religiosa. No es este un matiz a olvidar, porque deberíamos aproximarnos siempre a la figura de Jesús desde la normalidad de una vida en el judaísmo de la época, en la normalidad de trabajo y de la vivencia familiar.

Bien es verdad que Lucas concluye su relato con una expresión que va más allá de lo que es vivir normalmente: "el niño crecía en sabiduría (sofía) y gracia (járis) de Dios" (y. 40; cf. 2,52). Hay mucha intencionalidad en esto por parte del redactor del evangelio. Porque si bien quería presentar el marco normal de una vida de crecimiento de un niño en una familia religiosa, por otra está apuntando a que este niño está llamado a otra cosa bien distinta de los demás. No obstante Lucas ha relatado esta historia de familia con unos pormenores que la hacen especial. En la presentación del niño se debía rescatar al primogénito (cf Nm 8,15-18;18,16) mediante el pago de una pequeña cantidad, cosa que no se nos describe, ya que no lo entiende él como "rescate". Continuará...

Con gratitud Padre. Ubaldo
