Chaos Guitars announces a limited edition “Slice of Life” series
A blood-splattered guitar tribute to the Dexter T.V. series

Fogelsville, P.A.: Chaos Guitars is announcing a new series of limited edition custom-modified guitars celebrating the Dexter T.V. series. This small custom shop nestled in beautiful Fogelsville, P.A. is becoming known for it's out of the ordinary guitar projects. The Slice of life series will consist of three guitars, the first of which is almost finished and entitled the B.T.D. which looks like something straight out of a crime scene. The details for number two and three in the series are yet to be determined and may be built under contract for customers if the right opportunities arise.

Rose Kline, the director of operations at Chaos Guitars said “When I saw one of the builds Dave created with the blood-splatter look it immediately reminded me of Dexter’s blood-splatter slides in his office, so I suggested we do a ‘Slice Of Life’ series in homage to my favorite show and character. Each of our series or creations are limited edition, therefore, we want these to get into the hands of collectors or guitarists who have an appreciation for knowing what they own will not be mass produced and will have a higher value.”

Chaos Guitars is quickly becoming known for their unique approach to guitar modification and building. The guitars they build are anything but bland. In a world of black and white, Chaos Guitars is building in neon green and blood red.

According to the National Association of Music Merchants (NAMM)

- 54% of households have a member who plays a musical instrument.
- 48% of households, where at least one person played an instrument, there were two or more additional members who also played an instrument.

And Chaos Guitars is determined to build a one of a kind instrument for a good amount of those people.
