

POPULAR BICYCLE SHOP RELOCATES

Since 1937, Hans Ohrt Lightweight Bicycles has served the residents of Beverly Hills and West Los Angeles from a location at the corner of Little Santa Monica and Camden Drive.

"We have had the enjoyment of seeing many of our customers grow from tricycles to 10 speeds and then return with their children to go through the same process. Now we are serving the grandchildren of some of our early customers. In 1972, we opened a new location in Westwood Village, some two miles west of the Beverly Hills address," states a spokesman for the store.

"We have sold our property in Beverly Hills and on Dec. 27, we consolidated our retail bicycle sales and service into our Westwood facility, located at 1071 Gayley in Westwood Village. We will continue to give the same personal service, maintain the same expert personnel and carry the same fine product lines," the spokesman said.

In addition to better parking and no one-way streets, the Westwood store was designed from the bare walls specifically as a retail bicycle location. Hans Ohrt continues to be the most convenient bicycle store to the residents of Beverly Hills. All warranties will be honored, the store continues to offer the convenience of BankAmericard and Master Charge and the firm is reactivating 30-day charge accounts. "We also are starting a pick-up and delivery service for $10 so our customers won't feel deserted. While we have adequate parking behind our store, there is also ample validated parking at Gayley Avenue Parking, 1020 Gayley Ave., across the street," the spokesman continued.

"We are going to miss our daily contact with many of you and being on "our corner" in the middle of things, but traffic and parking were getting too hectic for many of our customers and we feel this move is for the best interest of all," he concluded.
