

Royal Balance

Prepared By: Quantum Corp.

In late November Prince Harry proposed to Meghan Markle. We congratulate them, and will respectfully support their successful future from a balanced distance. Quantum Corporation will politely cover Royal engagements when the Royal family deems it appropriate to do so. This balance is best created with Prince Harry serving on the future board of Quantum Corporation, but if he is unavailable to do so the courtesy will still be met through other arrangements. Creating the proper conditions for communication will be imperative to navigating complex geo-political turmoil as issues like Brexit search for resolution. As defined in last weeks Company guidance the danger of social media to maintaining family integrity is real. Deploying solutions like Air Time for Equity to re-balance any misleading, and unwanted social narratives through captivating real time innovation will be at a premium. Air Time for Equity strategies will be available much in the same way Geordie Shore mirrors Jersey Shore. This reciprocal international reflection allows Quantum Corporation to shape narratives in real time to create any effect necessary or appropriate to the conditions. This allows a diverse array of tools to be deployed at an instant in satisfaction of Her Majesty's Royal guidelines. Its not the position of this paper to be too serious, and by all means this is a happy occasion, but these issues need to be addressed. After they are addressed, they need to be readdressed. As we begin our transition away from wire related complacency personal professional conduct will be of greater significance, and previous acceptable ways of reporting will no longer be acceptable. As commencing ceremonies begin, wedding dresses are picked, and guests are seated we remain well mannered. This may seem like common sense, but amidst social intrusion people have become too accustomed to unacceptable practices. As we partake in the joy of the occasion we do so reflecting upon why we are shifting our core business to clean energy. In the coming days our Annual report will be filed, and everyone will get a better sense of what exactly is at stake with respect to not only leading the Company forward, but shouldering the load of Corporate America setting new industry standards globally. The Company will be judged around the world on how it behaves in relation to the transition, and previous wire related practices will unfortunately be met with swift disciplinary measures. In this context the once socially intrusive perch of federal protection will no longer exist. Reporting and including original public narratives into content will look very much like that of 1980's, but with a technological respect for public privacy second to none.

Is that clear to everyone? Our business model shifts to clean energy allowing us to properly supplement our traditional Time Warner Inc. arm, and with a conservative estimate of revenues upward of One Hundred Billion dollars per year, there is no need or place for wire related complacency as funds will be available for sources of inspiration. This allows the negative paradigm of the public - media relationship to shift leaving our competitors behind as new data rules and restrictions are put in place curtailing wire related social federal protectionism in the advent of emerging Technological Singularity Economic Equilibrium. This positions the Company well ahead of industry standards in line with the positional burden necessary to lead the American economy forward. Further instruction and guidance will will be provided incrementally so that changes are gradually implemented in line with new standards. This will create the type of balanced reciprocity necessary to allow for favorable diplomatic negotiations as needed. Nationalism is sometimes a burden to maintaining the beauty of sovereignty. Maintaining order in the Commonwealth requires a type of diverse multifaceted approach

Quantum Corporation will be able to deliver in accordance with Royal guidelines. Quantum Corporation will be there in the best and worst of times to provide the support the Royal family needs to negotiate varying conditions. This Company self reflection is most appropriate in preparation for the much anticipated wedding next year, which is an ideal time to incorporate essential changes securing a successful transition. In the spirit of the Royal wedding we pause for self reflection about how to be better people, and we must strive to treat others how we ourselves would like to be treated. Incorporating this type of balanced introspection into the workplace will create positive synergies necessary to the Company's success. We extend the warmest of welcomes to the beloved Royal family and Her Majesty's Parliamentary Governing body not only wishing Prince Harry and Meghan Markle the best of futures, but respectfully engaging with them to shape that future. As we strive to meet this demand, and as changes begin to take effect in line with social data restrictions we will find ourselves well established with the dignity worthy of Her Majesty's consideration. This type of balanced understanding is critical to maintaining relationships and creating the environment trust worthy of Royal standards. Again, Quantum Corporation looks forward to maintaining Royal balance extending the kindest of regards to Prince Harry and Meghan Markle.
