Israel to Resume Sale of Electricity to Gaza After 6-month Hiatus

Restoring Israeli power supply was among the promises made as part of the Palestinian Reconciliation process

At the request of the Palestinian Authority, Israel will resume...

In last weeks Company guidance we began to outline the potential formation of the Middle Eastern Union, and Israel responded by resuming the sale of electricity to Gaza. This is a significant first step towards achieving the goal of a unified vision for the Middle East. This is a monumental achievement for the Company, and all that helped should be congratulated. However, that is just the first step, and much work has yet to be done. It seems the people of Israel and Palestine express a shared desire on the West Bank wall solar initiative. This allows Israel to shape new trade dialogue, and adjust its perception in the Middle East. As we move forward, the formation of the Middle Eastern Union becomes more relevant in the current context of Iran. Due to longstanding regional grievances Iran has been reluctant to set forth a diversified vision that contributes to the overall unified vision of the region. There has been less demand for hydrocarbons, reducing Iran's leverage in Strait of Hormuz, and if protests continue Iran is expected to resume its nuclear program.<sup>1</sup> The Middle Eastern Union would provide strength through the convergence of the respective economies to counter economic instability due to any Western value appetite for conflict provoking Iran. Against this backdrop, it is appropriate for United Nations Secretary General Guterres to not only hold a meeting on the Iranian protests, but to suggest a superior course of action through the Israeli U.N. delegation proposing the formation of the Middle Eastern Union to redirect temporary 1979 regional value divisions with viable long term diplomatic solutions. Israel displaying this type of leadership and new found understanding in parallel with the West Bank solar initiative will display the commitment to the peace process the international community has been searching for. This will give Israel a sterling opportunity in the formation of the Middle Eastern Union.

The strategy of the Middle Eastern Union allows Israel to reduce broad sweeping regional disputes into manageable Azerbaijani - Armenian grievances. The reapplication of the Quantum - Trump border wall to the West bank gives Israel new trade, the foundation for revised diplomatic negotiation, and a basis to properly address the U.N. delegation resolving the current Iranian dispute. Moving on, when beginning to conceptualize the economic framework of the Middle Eastern Union it is also useful keep in mind that Turkey controls many natural resources including water for a majority of the region. Through the West Bank solar initiative Israel will have fulfilled a necessary precondition to negotiations with Turkey about strategic water opportunities that allow for a more swift consolidation, and formation of the Middle Eastern Union. This type of understanding will create the conditions necessary to attract potential Middle Eastern Union Member States. For example, if the Middle Eastern Union existed it would be able to counter strategic value division relying upon a qualified majority of Middle Eastern Union Member States to offset any type of unforeseen short term trade imbalance wishing to exploit regional division. This approach would create the type of long term diplomatic reciprocity necessary as the region transitions into a contiguous developed market economy. Overtime working together to thwart regional economic disruption will create the basis for a unified Middle Eastern Union Military consolidating regional power, and rogue militant factions through the diplomacy of a Majority of Middle Eastern Union Member States. This insight is critical to keep in mind when beginning to formulate a unified vision for the Middle East. A competitive Qatar World Cup 2022 vision contributed to the Saudi Vision 2030, and from that competition a unified vision in the form of the Middle Eastern Union has begun to take shape. The evolution of the economic construct remains hidden in perpetual motion, and through diplomatic self awareness we become able to unlock its true potential. True to our word the Company has taken the next step in creating the conditions necessary to advance the Middle East peace process, and has been successful. Palestine should feel confident in taking the next step in advancing the West Bank solar initiative knowing that the sterling opportunity Israel has to reshape its perception in the region is not infinite. The time sensitive conditions of the West Bank solar initiative are real, the stakes for the region are high, and in this context Israel has ability to demonstrate its diplomatic ability in relation to the current situation in Iran. In chapter 1., Article 1., subsection 1. Charter of the United Nations it states that, "The Purposes for the United Nations Are: To maintain international peace and security, and to that end: to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace." The dialogue around the inception of the Middle Eastern Union is most appropriate in the instance of current Iranian turmoil in parallel with U.N. Resolution 181(II) drawing to a successful conclusion. The Company, as a model U.N., brings these viable solutions to the legitimate delegation of the U.N. with the hope that the propositions inspire the next round of negotiations helping to mitigate long standing diplomatic impasse in the Middle Eastern region. The Company welcomes further debate around the Middle Eastern Union, and looks forward to contributing toward new positive dialogue.
