Solutions for your educational and program needs

EDUSERV'S ultimate goal is serving children. All of our work is driven by a passion for improving the lives and education of students.

PROGRAM EVALUATION

Accountability is essential and important with grantors, whether Federal, state, or local. Funders want to know that money spent on a program has had measurable results. This is especially true now at the Federal level, as a result of the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA). GPRA requires Federal agencies to manage activities with attention to explicit outcomes. This means that grants funded by the USDOE and TEA now require more complex evaluations in order to secure continued funding. EduServ can help you navigate the labyrinth of GPRA, formative and summative evaluation, survey-based data collection, reporting requirements, and more. We see program evaluation not as a fault-finding exercise, but as an opportunity to work in-depth with a program to truly understand its implementation, its challenges, and its successes. In our evaluation process we work with clients in all phases of their program, from beginning to end. We maintain our independence, but do not see that as a barrier to providing our clients active support in making their program successful.

David Gerabagi, Ph.D. is an experienced evaluator, grant writer, and grant trainer. He specializes in federal, state, local governments, as well as foundation grants. He has helped secure over 120 million dollars in k-12 grants since 1990.

PROPOSAL DEVELOPMENT

We believe in a holistic approach to making your organization effective and sustainable in today's competitive funding environment. Our background as grant administrators, trainers, and program evaluators gives us exceptional insight into what grant makers are looking for, what the trends are, and how proposals should be developed and written.

We will work as partners with you to create grant proposals that will impress federal, state, corporate, and foundation program officers alike. We specialize in coaching organizations who want to dedicate themselves to grant development and writing. We are also able to write grants for your organization that are carefully researched and developed.
