Service to the profession (selected projects)

KKTPM Calculator – An Open-Source Karush Kuhn Tucker Proximity Measure calculator. Supports XML-based inputs and symbolic mathematical function evaluations.
Unified NSGA-III – An Open-Source implementation of our published many-objective optimization algorithm. (work in progress)
Tex2Math – An extensible Open Source API for parsing and evaluating mathematical expressions. The library supports a wide range of operators. It also allows for a great deal of flexibility on the user's side. (distributed as a part of the KKTPM Calculator)
Automatic Timetabler – A Simulated Annealing (SA) based application for schools/university timetabling optimization. The application produces full timetables in different formats satisfying a highly-conflicting set of hard and soft constraints.
Multilingual Chatterbox – Pluggable/Customizable Chatting service with major emphasis on Arabic support and content filtration.
CDC SCORM editor – SCORM course editor for handheld devices. (SCORM is a standard electronic format used in e-learning) ORION – An early social network mobile client for CLDC devices. The application includes a photo gallery, RSS feeds reader, e-mail client, Advertisement utility and a Remote Desktop Control system. (funded by ICT-Egypt)

Instant Desktop Arabic Text Search Engine – An instant text-retrieval application for small sized textual data. This application combines text stemming and normalization with hashing techniques to create a constant-complexity non-exact-matching search engine in Arabic text.

Land-use allocation using gene expression programming (GEP) – An application that uses GEP to optimize cost and compactness in mid-scale land-use allocation problems. (Compatible with Map Objects API from ESRI).
