The Lutheran World Federation (LWF) has unilaterally moved to suspend regular meetings with the International Lutheran Council (ILC), following a joint decision by LWF General Secretary Martin Junge and LWF President Panti Filibus Musa. {Lutheran Church Canada is a member of the ILC.} Dr. Junge announced the decision in a report to the LWF Council in Geneva on June 29, 2018.

The International Lutheran Council received the news with regret. "We are disappointed in the LWF's decision to break off regular discussions," said ILC Executive Secretary Albert Collver. "It is difficult to see how unilateral action of this kind does anything but damage the relationship between our two organizations."

"It is true that the ILC and the LWF have significant differences of opinion on a number of theological issues," Dr. Collver continued. "But despite these very real differences, the ILC remains willing to meet with LWF leaders in a spirit of friendliness and mutual respect."

Sweep it under the broom tree. Elijah under the broom tree, and yes, I helpfully tell you what a broom tree is so you don't have to feel bad for not knowing (I had to look it up too). Also, how hard is the journey, and is it too hard for you?

Supreme Court Rules against Christian University:

On June 15, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled against Trinity Western University (TWU), which was seeking to have the law societies of Ontario and British Columbia's refusal to accredit graduates of TWU's proposed new law school overturned. The societies had stated they would not accredit graduates of TWU, an Evangelical Christian university, because of the school's community covenant, which prohibits sexual intimacy outside heterosexual marriage.

The Supreme Court released a pair of complex 7-2 rulings, finding in favour of the law societies. While eight of the judges agreed that the decision to refuse to accredit TWU graduates represented an infringement on the university's religious rights, the majority decided such infringement was justified in favour of upholding LGBTQ rights.
