Ann J. Pond, PhD

graduated with a B.A. in Art History (1989) and an M.A. in History (1991) from the University of New Orleans. In New Orleans she was employed as Assistant Director of the Gallier House Historic Home and taught Art History at Delgado Community College. She has lived with her family in Mobile since 1992.

In Mobile she was Curator of Education for the Mobile Museum of Art and taught History part-time at Spring Hill College, the University of South Alabama and Bishop State Community College. In 2006 she received her PhD in American History from the University of Southern Mississippi.

Her writing and research focus on urban America in the nineteenth century, particularly the Gulf Coast, race relations, ritual and popular culture. She has published "Cowbellion: Origins of the American Mardi Gras," "Masons and Mardi Gras: Secret Origins of the Mystic Krewes," and "Joe Cain and the American Mardi Gras." is working toward the completion of two books:

"American Festivity and the Origins of American Culture" with Southern University of New York Press

"Before the Krewes : Mardi Gras In Antebellum New Orleans" with Louisiana State University at Lafayette Press

Ann and Steve have four children and reside in the Oakleigh Garden District. She now owns Mardi Gras Trail Tours, LLC and continues to teach history online.
