The meaning of the "TEAR"

Tear Drop

"Our teardrop logo is a symbol for weeping at the violence and degradation suffered by rape and abuse victims; but, more importantly, it is a symbol of cleansing, healing and hope"

Children's Books

Hi all, could I ask if anyone with children's books they're finished with could bring them to school? A lady is donating a container to the squatter camp in Germiston to turn into a little library like we did for Rondebult. Any donations would be greatly appreciated. We will be collecting up until the end of term 4's second week. We have received a great number of books already. Thank you!

Bottle tops and Bread tags!

We have reached 180 kilograms. Wow! We need 450 kg for a wheelchair. Please keep sending! Every bit makes a difference! Thank you for all the donations. ☺

Hidden Treasures

Please send names to Ms Pheiffer on Dojo if your child would like to volunteer during the holiday. It's a very big life lesson and it's extremely enjoyable!

Please send all and any second-hand donations to Mr Mostert e.g. Toys, clothes, appliances, books, gadgets, bedding, cutlery, crockery, CDs, DVDs, etc. All the proceeds go towards feeding orphans.

SPCA

Please assist us with collecting newspapers, blankets, pet food (wet or dry), soft leads and collars (no chains please), pet toys, food and water bowls. These items are to go to Mrs. Robinson (G31). These donations will then be dropped off at the Alberton SPCA.

Your contributions will go a long way and is so appreciated.

Pollution Solution

We are trying to keep our school spotless. Any Grade 4 – 7 learners may collect a black bag from Ms Pheiffer. Also we are making eco-bricks with our pollution and 2 litre cold drink bottles.

Let's start making Eco Bricks!

Mrs. Lawrenz will be collecting this term. Collect plastic, chocolate and chips' wrappers, etc. NOT PAPER. This is such a fabulous initiate! Help us clean up our area. Kids can bring a 2 litre cool drink bottle to school and put any waste mentioned above in their bottle during the day. A house has even been built with these... Ripley's Believe it or not..... !

PARENTS' CORNER

It's never too early – and it's never too late – to start a Culture of Accountability in your home.

The word "accountable" itself means responsible, or taking responsibility for one's actions. So when we are talking about children, the question becomes, how will you make sure your child accounts for his or her actions? In other words, how will your child take responsibility for their behaviour after the fact? And how can we help them think about that responsibility before they behave inappropriately?

Remember, we want to promote a system of responsibility and accountability for actions in our home. This means that each member of the family is responsible for their own actions and behaviours, each person is responsible for following rules and expectations and each is responsible for how they respond to stressful or frustrating situations. The simple truth is that most children, and even adults, don't take responsibility for their actions, refuse to follow rules they find unfair, and find ways to justify their behaviour.

When you have created a Culture of Accountability in your home, your child will know that no matter who started it, or what happens first, everyone is responsible for their own behaviour, and everyone has to follow the rules.

Giving consequences and sticking to them is another important piece of the accountability puzzle: your child should know that if he chooses to break the rules; there will be a consequence for that choice. The bottom line is that no one in the family should get away with changing the rules to fit their needs or feelings.

Use consequences to hold your child accountable

Once you have clarified the rules and helped your child come up with some ideas on how he might behave, let him know what he can expect to see happen if he still chooses to break the rules. Remember, tie the consequences to your child's behaviour, and keep them short-term. For example, let your child know, "If you choose to call your brother names, you will lose access to your electronics until you can speak appropriately for two hours." Be sure to follow through with the consequences you set; remember, without clear consequences, there is no real incentive for your child to become accountable.

The good news is that creating a Culture of Accountability, is a very reachable goal for parents. In fact, effective parenting helps your child learn to be accountable – to both accept responsibility for meeting the expectations of your family, and to develop the skills they need to meet these expectations. When all the members of your family start becoming accountable to each other, your children will have a clear understanding of the rules and will be much more motivated to uphold them.

Realise that when you first try to put the Culture of Accountability into place in your home, your children may fail to meet their responsibilities, even with clear limits and good problem solving techniques. It will take practice to help them understand that they will be held accountable for their actions. Remember, "Parents are the solution, not the problem." You can teach your children the skills they need to take responsibility in their lives now, and for their future. In this way, they will grow up into accountable adults.
