

A Note From my Pastor

It is my privilege to recommend Paul and Anita McCaulley and their work in Aviation Missions, Inc. I have been blessed to know the McCaulleys since 2003. They have demonstrated a heart for the Lord and the work of the local church. We are thankful to serve as their sending church.

The need for Aviation Missions, Inc. is evident in the number of missionaries and their families who have been assisted by this ministry. When a missionary needs to be evacuated, it is imperative that we are able to swiftly and efficiently meet that need. God has blessed Bro. McCaulley with the contacts and resources necessary to make that happen.

Bro. McCaulley is also available to conduct training for pastors and missionaries to help them develop an emergency plan. He has assisted some of our own sent missionaries to be equipped in this way. We include his information in our annual missions conference to each missionary in attendance. I believe you will find his material informative and relevant to the work you are endeavoring to accomplish in world missions.

AVIATION MISSIONS, INC.

In December of 1957, at the age of ten, Dr. McCaulley realized his lost condition before God and that even a ten year old boy would go to hell if he was not saved. He had been raised all his life in an independent fundamental Baptist Church, so he understood the Scriptures and that he must be born again. That day, through repentance and faith, he accepted Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour between Sunday School and church. The following spring (after the creek thawed), he was baptized.

Although, as a senior in high school, his church granted him a license to preach and his desire was to be a missionary pilot, God's plan was for Dr. McCaulley to enter the U.S. Army and fly. He left home in 1965 to follow God's will for his life.

At the age of twenty, he formed an aviation detachment and deployed to Viet Nam for a year of combat flying. It was during several helicopter missions in Viet Nam that God placed a burden on his heart to use aircraft in support of missionary outreach. On one of those missions, God sent an enemy sixty millimeter mortar round and blew up the helicopter he was commanding. His gunner was killed and his crew chief and he were wounded. God had his undivided attention.

Upon returning to the United States, Dr. McCaulley was stationed at Fort Eustis, Virginia, where God brought his wife, Anita, into his life. She was born and raised in Muskegon, Michigan and joined the Army Nurse Corps after receiving her RN from Hackley School of Nursing. She was stationed at the hospital at Fort Eustis as an Army nurse.

They were married in July 1969 and 45 days later were both deployed to Viet Nam where she was a nurse in an Army Evacuation Hospital and he flew helicopters for another year. During this tour of duty in Viet Nam, Dr. McCaulley received a battlefield commission as a first lieutenant. His wife, who was a commissioned officer as a nurse, administered the oath of office.

Anita was born again and baptized in the fall of 1970. She left active duty in 1971 to be a full time mother and raise a family at home. They have two children, Ken and Karen; and seven grandchildren: three boys and four girls.

Dr. McCaulley retired from the US Army in 1987 after a 22 year career as a pilot, staff officer, commanding officer, and liaison officer. During his career as an Army officer, he held a variety of positions with a wide range of responsibilities that included: helicopter flight leader and aircraft commander in combat during the Viet Nam war for two years; command and staff positions, including operations and training; liaison between the US Air Force and US Army on a major surveillance platform; and is a graduate of the Army's Command and General Staff College.

Dr. McCaulley is the founder and President of Aviation Missions, Inc., a missionary help and assistance ministry that provides advice, consultation, and referral services to missionaries, sending churches, and families of deployed missionaries.

AMI: conducts basic training seminars for veteran missionaries, missionary candidates, mission organizations, churches, and Bible colleges; and consults with organizations and individuals on subjects relating to missionary security and evacuation/extraction planning.

In addition to his responsibilities with AMI, Dr. McCaulley is a member of a network of missionary organizations security professionals, a member of the US State Department Overseas Security and Advisory Council working group of Faith Based Organizations, and a member of the International Association of Missionary Aviation (IAMA).

Dr. McCaulley has preached across the country in missions conferences and special meetings with emphasis on worldwide missions. He has provided advice and consultation in crisis and emergency situations to dozens of missionaries and their families around the world.

Dr. McCaulley earned a Bachelor's degree in Professional Aeronautics from Embry Riddle University, Masters' degrees in both Biblical Studies and Theological Studies and a Doctorate in Theological Studies from Bethany Theological Seminary in Alabama.

His Doctoral Thesis was on the Theology of Missions. He has written a book on the blood of Christ and a booklet on neo-fundamentalism. He has also published several articles on preparedness for missionaries and churches.
