

Rebekah Maxner

Rebekah Maxner is a well-respected Canadian composer whose piano solos are listed and published in every major Canadian conservatory, including the Royal Conservatory, as well as the London College of Music Examinations in London, England. To date she has published twelve books of piano music, beginner to early advanced, and her music is heard in recitals, festivals and exams globally. Rebekah maintains an independent piano studio in Hantsport, Nova Scotia, where she lives with her husband and three growing children. She attended Acadia University ('95) where she studied piano with John Hansen, and completed her music degree with a major in composition under Owen Stephens. A member of the Nova Scotia Registered Music Teacher's Association and Red Leaf Pianoworks, Rebekah is an active member of our Canadian music community, having given workshops for teachers, master classes for students, and as an adjudicator of junior piano and composition contests.
