Additional Biographical Information:

During her formative years in Prattville, Alabama, she experienced joy and success in coaching, showing, and training horses in multiple equestrian disciplines (www.alextrmeequine.net); playing baseball and basketball; participating in 4-H, Youth Teen Court, and various community service events; all while continuing her acting, modeling, and singing performances in numerous venues.

Jessie Lynn's musical and performing career began at the age of three when she began singing in church and participating in Little Boots Rodeo contests. Jessie participated in piano lessons for two years, and sought classical voice training from 2005 thru 2012. She recorded her first "demo" CD at the age of eleven and received multiple acting and singing "callbacks" from various management groups located in Florida, Los Angeles, New York, and North Carolina. However, at that time, Jessie's parents opted not to pursue the numerous "callbacks" as they wanted Jessie to enjoy her childhood and gain more performance experience prior to seeking a career on the stage. Since 2005, Jessie Lynn has gained extensive experience in acting, modeling, performing, and singing at multiple venues throughout the Southeast. She also performed with her "One Voice" choir tour group in multiple locations in St. Louis and New York City.

Musical talent runs through Jessie Lynn's veins! Jessie was named after her Great-grandmother, Jessie McIntyre Hanson (1919-2000), who was known as an accomplished pianist, organist, and singer from Muskogee, Oklahoma. Mrs. Hanson sang with the "Temple Quartet" on KMUS live radio in Muskogee from 1948 – 1955. She continued performing live broadcasts with various church groups until 1962 and performed and taught music until the early 1990's. Mrs. Hanson was a graduate of the Sherwood School of Music in New York, and began developing her twin daughters', "The Hanson Twins", gospel singing careers when they were seven years old (1947). "The Hanson Twins" performed professionally from 1947 – 1960 at gospel singings and conventions in Oklahoma, Kansas, and Missouri. They also performed at numerous ceremonies, special events, and weddings throughout Oklahoma. Jessie Lynn's Grandmother, Loyce Hanson Dugan, (one of the twins) is credited for developing Jessie Lynn's love of music and performing when she introduced her to singing in church at the age of three! The rest is history as they say!
