The Cayuse Junior Rodeo Association (CJRA) has been helping to shape the lives of several generations of rodeo competitors since 1993.

Over the course of the rodeo season, hundreds of competitors meet to share in the great American sport of rodeo and its rich cultural traditions and to compete against the best youth athletes in the Northwest. Many of our past members have gone on to successfully compete at the High School, College, Amateur and even the Professional levels.

We start them young as our cowboys and cowgirls range from 5 to 18 years of age. These kids work hard to compete in up to 10 rodeos per season by practicing their riding and roping skills on the ground and on horseback. They have the responsibility to feed and care for their gentle giants while on the road and at home on a daily basis, as well as take care of themselves mentally and physically, as rodeo is demanding on both the body and the brain. But the rewards are great!

Members of the CJRA compete in sanctioned rodeos for fun, competition, good sportsmanship and a chance to earn points for year-end awards.

We need your help!!! Rodeo can be an expensive sport, so we look to the generosity of sponsorships from great community partners like you to help us reward our competitors. We are looking for sponsors for 2018. The following pages show the levels of sponsorships available for this year.

Junior rodeo is the foundation that gets youth involved and helps to keep them involved for a lifetime of family based activity. With your help, CJRA will light the way for generations of families and cowboys and cowgirls to come.

If you have questions or need additional information, please contact me at the number below. I will follow up with you soon.

Thanks for your support,
