Inspired by real events

Story and Screenplay by Steven Scaffidi

Three and a half days before the most mysterious day of the past one hundred years, a man convinces his family to travel deep into the eerie Louisiana swamps to finally solve the mystery of a unique series of numbers.

Obsessed with the number 11 and the strange connection it has with his deceased father, Sam convinces his wife Maria, his two children Sammy and Alexandra, and his best friend Michael to drop everything and follow him on a journey to find an isolated fishing camp where he believes that all of his questions will finally be answered.

When the group eventually make their way down to a tiny remote village in the heart of the Cajun bayou, and miles off the main road, they meet an old fisherman who tries to discourage Sam from continuing his journey into the misty swamps.

Despite the warnings, and determined to bury the haunting visions of the final days of his father's life, Sam is convinced that a higher power is guiding him to the only place where he will once and for all discover the truth, and ultimately his purpose in life.

Over 100 million people see the 11:11 wake up calls.
