Now in its 27th season, is a two-year training program in contemplative spiritual direction. During the two years of learning the art of spiritual direction, participants will discover the richness of contemplative community, the intimacy of small group interaction, and the gift of close supervision in the practicum portion of the program.

PROGRAM FORMAT - OPTIONS FOR PARTICIPANTS

Our "Classic Track" format is well refined to provide a learning environment offering participants an intimate community, strong teaching and quality supervision. We also recognize that for a variety of reasons related to schedules and distance, participating at this level can be challenging for some. Two years ago, we began an alternative track that addresses these challenges. We call it our "Hybrid Track" and it creates a local option for community and learning while maintaining access to the teaching and the content of the program. Wherever we have at least four interested participants in an area a cohort can be formed, a leader provided and five of the yearly meetings will take place locally. The hybrid cohorts join the full SDSG community for the opening and closing retreats and for one meeting day in the winter, thus reducing the number of trips to our training site to three a year while being present to half of the year's total training days. Content of "missed" sessions is provided online.

This program has taken me from reading about the practice of presence, to experiencing others' presence, to simply being present. The shift has been profound and natural all at once.
-Lisa Lee (SDSG participant 2016)

FOCUS OF PROGRAM

The focus in the first year is twofold: Grounding participants in the Christian contemplative tradition, through readings, presentations and prayer experiences, and training participants in becoming guides for others on their spiritual journey. Participants are asked to have a spiritual director while in the program and, by December 2017, begin meeting with two individuals as a spiritual guide in training.

Meeting days include a rhythm of teaching sessions, prayer experiences, community building, individual reflections, discussions, and small group experiences. Central to our process in both years are peer groups of 4-6 people who spend time each month in spiritual support of one another and in reflecting together on the practice of spiritual direction in which the participants are engaged. Each peer group is facilitated by a trained spiritual director. In the Hybrid Track, five of these peer group meetings will take place locally.

In the second year, the rhythm and contemplative atmosphere of the meeting days continue while the content shifts and deepens with sessions focused on spiritual direction, specific spiritual traditions, various contexts for practicing spiritual direction, and with expanded peer group time for strengthening the practice of spiritual direction. In the Hybrid Track five of these peer group meetings will take place locally.
