

Tom Glass has spent his life working for limited government in various ways. Most of the time, he spends his time focused on stopping domestic enemies of the Constitution from subverting our liberty. But lately, he has added protecting our state and country from foreign enemies of our way of life from destroying our critical infrastructure, including the electrical grid. He spent the 2015 and 2017 Texas legislative session focusing on Texas grid protection bills and constitutional enforcement bills.

Tom is retired from a career in information technology at ExxonMobil, the latter half of that career spent in cybersecurity. He spent 2014 managing the Libertarian gubernatorial campaign of Kathie Glass, his wife. They have two grown children who were both born and raised in Houston. Tom is a graduate of Odessa Permian High School, and earned a Chemical Engineering degree from Texas A&M University, an MBA from Harvard Business School, and a J.D. from the University of Houston Law Center.
