

Born in Buford, Georgia, Kathie Glass was the first person in her family to go to college, working her way through college and law school at the University of Georgia. On 7/7/77, she came to Texas where she met and married Odessa native Tom Glass, and they lived and raised their family in Houston and their small ranch in central Texas. Kathie practiced as a highly successful civil trial lawyer in Houston for over 30 years.

Kathie wants to unite Texans to fight two threats to our liberty: a tyrannical federal government, and a state government corrupted by cronyism.

She was the Libertarian Party nominee for Texas governor in 2010 and 2014, and for Texas Supreme Court in 2016.
