Confidentiality Agreement

Information concerning the management and operation of our Organization is generally not known to the public and should be kept confidential.

Guidelines for protecting confidentiality

It is important that we diligently protect the confidentiality of information. The following guidelines have been developed for this purpose:

- Confidential information should be shared only with those inside the Organization whose jobs require them to have access to the information or when the law requires or protects the release of such information.
- Board Members, Employees, or Volunteers should not disclose sensitive or non-public information to people outside the Organization or discuss it in public places.
- When information is disclosed to individuals having a business relationship with the Organization that requires such disclosure, it should be done with the understanding that the information will be kept in confidence, and only the minimum amount of information necessary to accomplish the function should be disclosed.
- Documents containing sensitive information - including information stored on computer systems - should be handled carefully and must be properly stored.
- Discussions between the Organization and its lawyers are usually privileged and should be kept confidential. Any disclosure of those discussions to a third party may result in a waiver of the attorney-client privilege and possible harm to the Organization's interests. This point is especially important due to the nature of prosecuting animal cruelty cases.

I understand the above and agree to comply with the FFH Confidentiality Agreement.
